OFF IN A CORNER WITH PHIL SNORT

Dear Ed:

They is quite a few folks what is livin' in the Illinois valley what I don't see very much, and some of 'em says why don't I write more for the News, as they had rather read what I write than to see me and hear me shoot off my gab; and so this 'ere letter is fer them air critters and nobody else. To tell the fact I do git darned lonesum when I can't see such old neighbors like Jim Lewis, Ed Tycer, Roy and George Wells, Ben George, Dave and George Bour, Bert Addams and a lotter more critters, but I jest hafter grin and hear it. Mebby I can git "Hell-O" to 'em thru the News.

Lee Currier and his Mrs. jest left my place fer thtir homt in Kerby. They sed that they comes up to see if we wuz livin' yet. I tell him that we want, not jest azackly, not yet, but that we wuz tryin' dern hard to. We always has a good visit when Lee and Mrs. comes to see us.

Night afore last, Nov. 16, we had our first frost fer this fall, but they haint none of us cryin' over it. Fact is we could of stood it fer a while longer without one. We have been awful bizzy feelin' sorry fer our friends back in Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, South Dakota and Iowa. We knows lots a folks there and all we could do to help 'em wuz to wish they wuz here in the Illinois valley. I jest finished a letter to one of my good friends in Sioux City, Iowa, and I tells him that if he could only live six months in the Illinois valley he wouldn't never care whether they wuz a heaven or not.

I gess I hadn't better write much more, fer if I do I won't have anything fer next time. This letter is writ fer the purpose of lettin' all the folks in the Illinois valley know that old Phil hopes none of 'em has to go without oleo fer Thanksgivin'.

PHIL SNORT.

"You Can't Fool Your Wife" Best Comedy

Said to be one of the best comedy-dramas of domestic life the screen has presented in recent years, RKO Radio's "You Can't Fool Your Wife" co-stars Lucille Ball and James Ellison at the head of a clever cast at the Cave City Theater Wednesday and Thursday.

Ellison is seen as a young accountant in a big C. A. P. firm, and Miss Ball has the role of his bored and discontented wife who after five years of matrimony has come to think him a hopeless worm. When Ellison is assigned to entertain a young playboy whose father is a partner in the company, things begin to happen, and the mixture of gay night-life and of mother-in-law suspicion definitely breaks up Ellison's none-too-happy home.

Although the two young people are still in love, each is led to believe that the other wants a divorce and mother-in-law sees to it that they don't get an opportunity to talk things over. So when the young Englishman takes a hand and tries to straighten out the affair through the medium of a masquerade party, unforeseen complications arise that lead to the hilarious conclusion of the picture.

Celebrates Their 40th Wedding Anniversary

Last Sunday, November 17th, friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Boling to help them celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary. After a delicious noon dinner the guests presented them with gifts.

The guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hogue; Mr. and Mrs. Clem Sauer and sons Jackie and Larry; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh White; Mrs. Dolly Duncan; Mrs. Millie Trefethen; Frank Anderson; and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Martindale and children, Shirley and Eugene.

Mr. and Mrs. Boling are the parents of Mrs. W. E. Martindale.

"GHOST BREAKERS"

She suddenly finds that she has inherited a famous old castle on Black Island in Cuba. Ignoring the warnings of the Cuban Consuls and the attorney for the estate not to visit it, she prepares to go. Bob Hope, as a gossipy radio commentator, hides in her trunk in the hotel after escaping from a threatening gangster he had offended on the air.
