"Repent at Leisure" Thrilling Romance

Kent Taylor and Wendy Barrie have top roles in "Repent at Leisure", considered one of the brightest films about marital mix-ups at the Cave City theater Wednesday and Thursday. A strong supporting cast is headed by George Barbier and includes Rafael Storm, Nella Walker and Thurston Hall.

The plot concerns itself with the hectic adventures of a rich society girl who flees from an unwelcome marriage and while masquerading as a poor and helpless model, is befriended by a struggling necktie salesman employed in her father's department store. A confirmed bachelor, the young man learns that all single men at the store are to be discharged during an economy wave. Desperate, he tells his department boss he is married and has a baby, and then finds himself in a sad predicament when his boss invites him and his wife to a bridge party.

Now romantically inclined toward him, the heiress suggests they get married and adopt a baby. Thus is started a series of exciting events, with the unsuspecting groom being advanced in amazing fashion at the store, little suspecting that his bride has secretly put the pressure on her father.

A new crisis enters the lives of the couple when the ambitious husband learns the real identity of his wife and realizes that his promotions were not due to his own ability. He resigns from his job, separates from his wife, and joins a rival company notorious for its cut-throat practices.

Autumn Here

tain and valley quail, the wild duck, sturdy wild goose, the brilliantly plumed pheasant, timid deer and many other animals of the forest are decked out in gay plumage and harmonious hues in keeping with the annual custom of nature to present an undecipherable array of beauty during the fall months of the year.
Every mile and every minute of a trip in the Redwood Empire offers new interest: There is Gay San Francisco, colorful "story book" city offering diversified entertainment, in a romantic, historical background, with an ever widening scope of modern moods, patterns and adventures.

Beyond the horizon of the blue Pacific, the setting sun casts a pale glow on the world famous Golden Gate Bridge and tints the rugged hills of Marin county with a replica of the "International Orange" color of the majestic towers and cables of the world's longest and tallest single span suspension bridge.

Along the highways there is a harmonious blending of colors as deciduous trees and shrubs combine with harvested fields and hillsides to form a never ending panorama of natural scenic splendor.

Horseback riding, and numerous other out-door sports are "extra fun" in the early morning, clear, bracing mountain air, in Humboldt, Del Norte and Josephine counties, all areas of vivid colors.

Wild grapes, dogwood, Oregon maple, black oak, vine maple, aralia foliage and madrones loaded with berries, together with many other natural resources seem to combine into one last glorious fling of colorful beauty in the Redwood Empire.

When it's autumn . . . it is definitely color-time in the Redwood Empire.
