WHEN IS AN ATTACK?

At the sedition trial of William Dudley Pelley, to which Charles A. Lindbergh was called as a witness, the aviator declared his belief that "the majority of the people of this country were opposed to getting into the war—that is, before we were attacked." Mr. Lindbergh said that since that time he has devoted his effort to the war. His statement is similar to those by isolationist Congressmen who are now appealing for votes on the strength of loyalty to the war effort.

People are always naturally opposed to getting into war unless they are attacked, and governments that represent the people as do those of the United States and Britain reflect the popular reluctance. Where Mr. Lindbergh together with isolationist sections of public opinion differed from President Roosevelt and those who favored his foreign policy was on the question of when the attack on the United States really began. Mr. Lindbergh could not discern that attack until December 7.

Mr. Roosevelt discerned it while it was still directed at other nations who because of similar ideals were in reality bound together with the United States in a global system of defense.

On that difference in discernment a dangerous rift in opinion developed and was capitalized by the Axis to spread disunity in America. When the Japanese proved that the United States was in danger that rift was closed. But that fact does not mean that politicians who stood on both sides of the rift are equally qualified to remain political leaders of America.

A useful test for voters to apply to the candidate for Congress in the November election would be to determine whether he was among those who could recognize when their country was under attack or among those who had to wait until the enemy had a chance to strike a stunning blow.

FLYING BOATS

tons of cargo a year, and that the planes could be built with 18,000 tons of raw materials, against 238,000 tons of raw materials to build surface ships able to carry the same load.

We do not accept these figures as proved. Only experience can show their accuracy. But we do feel that big cargo planes have a definite place in today's war. The Axis is believed to be concentrating about 20 per cent of its plane production on the large variety of cargo planes.

The "giant" and colossal" planes are needed to give the United Nations the edge they require in a war which hinges so largely on transportation.

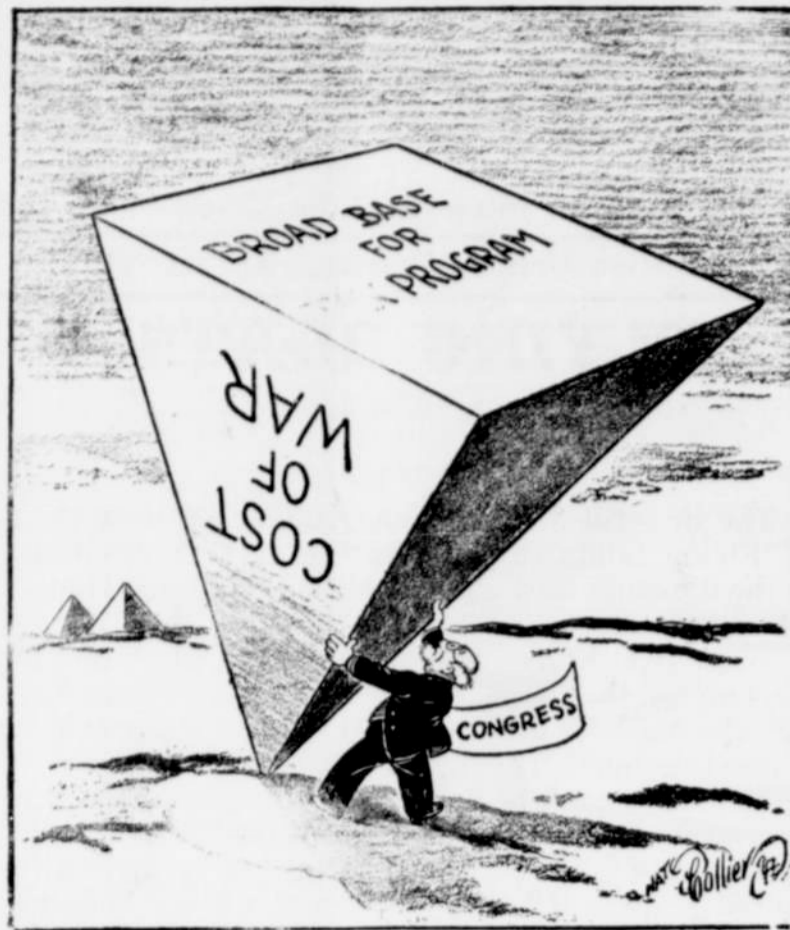

The public generally is for Mr. Kaiser and his plan to build great flying boats. But we will have those who, for selfish reasons, will cry out, "it can't be done." Which reminds us of a great maxim:

"The man who says it can't be done, is continually being interrupted by someone doing it."

Do not consider any vice as trivial, and therefore practice it; do not consider any virtue as unimportant, and therefore neglect it.—Chinese Proverb.

CLARK GABLE NOW IN ARMY AIR CORPS

Clark Gable, the he-man of the movies and one of the most beloved and admired characters on the silver screen, has enlisted as a private in the rear ranks of Uncle Sam's Army Air Corps.

Gable, while vacationing on the Rogue river near Grants Pass with his companion, A. S. Menasco, made up his mind to enlist, as his companion received his commission as a major in the air corps. Menasco had been in the airplane business for a number of years.

Gable said he did not want to sell bonds or pour pink teas as a soldier. He wants' action, right up where the going is tough, and while he is above the age limit for pilots, there is nothing to stop him from being the nation's top gunner, and that is what he is going to school for.

Clark Gable and Jimmy Stewart, both top ranking screen actors, will be the nation's heroes when they return for their part in enlisting as privates in the army and are working their own way up the ladder.

WOMEN'S CLUB MEETS AT O'BRIEN

The club met on August 7th with Mrs. Earl Boyd, with a goodly number in attendance, and after a delicious dessert luncheon, served by Mrs. Oliver Boyd, assisted by Mrs. E. Boyd and R. Baumberger, the members responded with Current Events and the regular business of the day was taken up. A number of nice, warm knee comforters were turned in for use of convalescent soldiers, and action taken to prepare bedside kits to be forwarded to the Red Cross.

The program of the day was a symposium on the "American Woman as a Home Maker". Mrs. Wilbur spoke of the early pioneer mothers, punctuating her address with the display of many interesting articles which were common in that day, handwork, quilting, aprons, fascinators, etc., also showed early cutlery, kitchen articles, and china. She stressed the limitations and lack of advantages of these early women, yet showed that in ingenuity, resourcefulness, contentment and many sterling qualities they outran our modern women. Miss Hosford discussed South American women, their foods, customs, dress and other things in which they differ from us, displayed specimens of embroideries, and the universal mate cup from which all southern neighbors drink their herb tea. Altogether the program was most instructive and enlightening.

Visitors present were Mrs. Runyon and Hoskins, and the new little baby girl with her mother, Mrs. Lemmon.

The next meeting, Aug. 21, is to be with Mrs. Wm. A. Brown at "La Casa Willadora."

COMMUNITY CHURCH NOTES

Sunday school attendance this week was 47 and offering $7.89. Dr. Wm. A. Brown brought an inspiring message from Romans on the subject of faith in regards to strengthening morale. This chapter is full of encouragement to the believer. One of the precious promises quoted was Isa. 26:3, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee: because he trusteth in thee." Mrs. Brown read aloud a very interesting letter from Opal and Eldon Johnson, whose address is: Mission Evangelica, Challapata, Bolivia, South America. They stated that they missed hearing from those in the home land. When one is far from home and it takes so long for letters to arrive, they are especially appreciated. So let's remember to write and also to pray.

"Jesus is All the World to Me" was beautifully sung by Mrs. John Dow.

"One Day", the solo sung by Ann Sherier, was enjoyed Sunday evening. The Young People's meeting was led by Don Beard. Don is the newly elected vice president succeeding Jimmie Hines who has been called to the army. Jimmie has been faithful in attendance and has been in full charge this summer in the absence of the president. He will be greatly missed in the Young People's meetings, and in Sunday school and church as well. About 24 young people attended the farewell party given for him at his home Monday night.
