Five New Berries Have Been Developed at OSC

Five small fruit varieties which have been named and introduced for general use from the cooperative small fruit breeding project at the Oregon State college experiment station are described in a new station bulletin No. 416 "New Berries from Oregon's Plant Breeding Research."

The five berries that have been selected from more than 150,000 individual crosses are the Corvallis and Brightmore strawberries, Pacific and Cascade blackberries and Willamette red raspberry.

The Cascade and Pacific blackberries are both hybrids resulting from crossing one of the trailing wild blackberries with the Logan berry. In size they approximate the Logan and have the characteristic flavor of the wild trailing blackberry.

The new Willamette red raspberry produces big yields of large berries excellent alike for canning, freezing or the fresh fruit market. The flavor while good is not as intense as that of the Cuthbert.

Authors of the bulletin are George F. Waldo, federal horticulturalist in charge of the cooperative project; E. R. Wiegand, head of the food industries department; and Henry Hartman, head of the horticultural department.

All Shriners and their family are invited to attend this annual affair, and reports from the committee say it will be a "dinger" of a day. All visiting Shriners who are in the county are also invited.

The AIRCRAFT WARNING SERVICE IS FOR THOSE — WHO GIVE A DAMN!

IN TYPICAL AMERICAN FASHION, some people look upon our enemies with blazing hate . . . "We'll show those dirty so-and-so's they can't stab us in the back!"

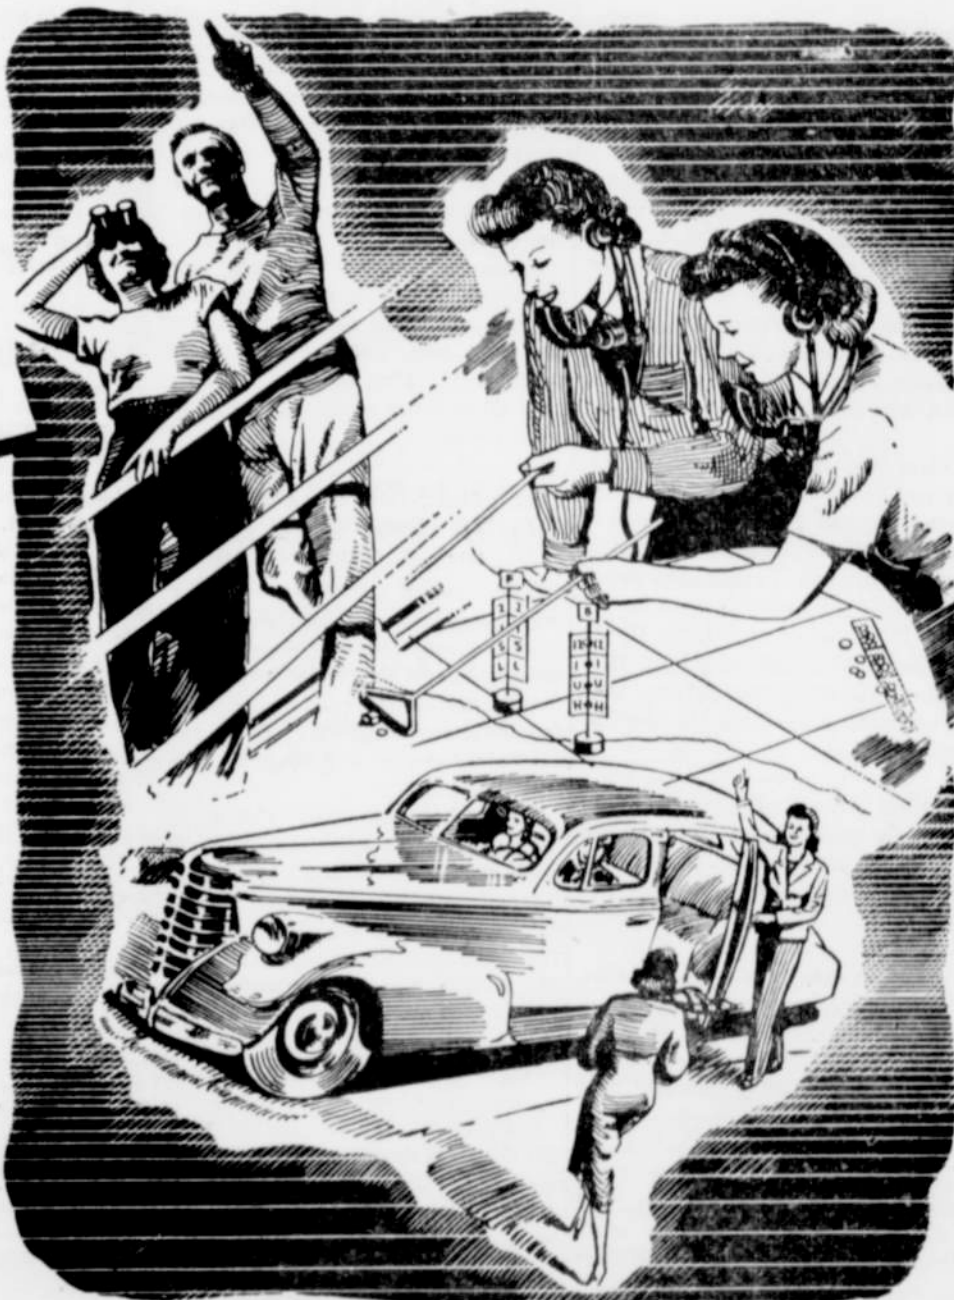

Others have loved ones "out there," and with cold determination accept every opportunity to do their part toward keeping "the home team pitching."

Still others, with tearless eyes and grim resolve, have dedicated themselves to "getting even," in memory of someone who will never come back.

Then, there are those who recognize their big stake in the future freedom of this great country of ours. They are doing their part on the home front to shorten the war, rid the earth of tyrants and restore peace and sound prosperity.

Such people as these comprise the volunteers in the vital Aircraft Warning Service . . . staffed by "those who give a damn!" Several thousand such red-blooded American men and women operate the military installations which keep this area's defenses constantly on the alert. They are the cream of American citizens, and they are doing a vital job. They serve without pay—some of them at great personal sacrifice and inconvenience. They have the stuff that makes America unbeatable!

They also realize how tragically true it is that "It CAN happen here!" They have an idea what the results would be if the Japs succeeded in a sneak air raid on our enormous concentration of war industries.
