BONDS IN THE VALLEY

The News wants to take this opportunity to congratulate Mrs. J. J. Villair and all her assistants in the fine record they have made during this third bond drive. The results have been most flattering, and the work done by Mrs. Villair and her coworkers is gratifying to the extreme.

The Cave Junction post office will have well over $20,000 written in bonds by Saturday night when the drive ends. Postmaster Arnold had to send several thousand dollars worth of bonds into Grants Pass as he ran out of blanks, and the banks in Grants Pass have written many thousands of dollars worth of bonds for others.

All in all, we expect the valley to hit $50,000 before the drive is over, and we think this is remarkable. We are sure that the county chairman and his staff appreciate what the valley has done.

To the people in the valley who have so generously purchased bonds, we have nothing but the highest praise for the splendid way you have helped in the war effort.

GREEN GUARDS TO BE AWARDED

All members of the Oregon Green Guard are urged to send in their completed manuals and service records to Keep Oregon Green headquarters, Salem, Oregon, before October 10, 1943.

The contest for the 167 prizes is to be judged on the basis of summer services performed, new members enrolled, and on an essay written on the subject, "Why We Keep Oregon Green".

The Association is interested in knowing of the services performed by the Green Guards in our fire prevention campaign. Many members have a very good chance for a prize for their services alone. The essay is required for only the first two groups of prizes, and was added to help those people who have not found the opportunity to perform some outstanding feat. Green Guards, get busy! You have a chance to win.

EASTER LILY BULB HARVEST BEST YET

Harvest of the Easter lily bulb crop in Oregon is now well under way and will continue through mid October. Grading and packing will be completed by the end of October.

The largest crop yet taken from the Easter lily fields in Oregon will be harvested this year, according to horticultural inspectors of the state department of agriculture.

The Easter lily production in this state has developed commercial proportions within the short span of five years and had its inception in the Bandon and Harbor areas through the enterprise of the late Mr. Croft, after whom the principal variety now being produced in this state was named.

Observation Post News

in the Filter Center and on an observation post. Typical of these are Ida May Striker and Sara Humphrey who serve both at the Eugene Filter Center and take a regular shift at the Observation Post on Spencer's Butte.

The members of the Corps come from practically all walks of life. Some are housewives taking their duties at the Center in addition to maintaining a home, such as Mrs. Alice Tibbits of Portland, Mrs. Golda Nickell of Roseburg, and Mrs. Blanche Mark of Eugene. Then as the old saying goes, "Heaven will protect the working girl," many of the people who spend long hours at various jobs, wend their way to Filter Centers when their day's work is done. Every night in Oregon, more than 70 tired women quit their desks, adding machines, counters, switch boards, or other places where they have been working all day to devote an additional six hours working for the Aircraft Warning Service.

Among the volunteers, practically every type of work now performed by women is represented, and it seems that the busiest ones are the ones who find time to spend an extra shift at the Filter Center. These ladies whose voices greet you with "Army, Go ahead please" are an important link in the vast network that makes up the Aircraft Warning Service.
