FIVE SENATORS

According to an English newspaper (speaking of our five United States senators who toured the war zones) one saw no good; one heard no good; one said no good; one wanted no good and one was up to no good. Yea, verily! it must have been a goodly crowd.

The five senators toured the world in 60 days; took in all theaters of the war and report that the English are far ahead of us in most ways. They find they are established most everywhere and we Americans are not.

The five senators should remember that the British have been a trading nation for hundreds of years, while we in America have been isolationists. We were afraid to mix with other nations, lest we become contaminated with something. We refused to go into the League of Nations. We wanted nothing from Europe except her trade and money and as far as Russia was concerned, we refused for years to recognize that Communistic government for fear of getting whatever was contagious.

Now we find the Russians just a little skeptical as to our good intentions. They have not permitted any of our Allied troops in their country to help them. They have done their own fighting, and HOW!

Our five senators took a look and came home with such caustic statements that caused a small revolution among diplomatic representatives, who hurriedly tried to explain in diplomatic language of course, that the five senators didn't amount to much anyway and not to pay too much attention to their remarks, at least we gather as much from reports.

They saw and travelled over many airfields we have constructed in different places, and of course they want us to keep them after the war is over. Of course we sent money and men and equipment to build many airfields—where would we be if we had not done so. When the war is over, and the Allies make the peace, it may be possible that those countries who have benefited by our airports, may be very glad to have some sort of protectorate declared that will keep them for future guarantees that there will not be another war. If this is done the peaceful world will own them, and that's where they should be.

The five senators are now busily trying to explain themselves out of a very pernicious state of affairs that their undiplomatic tongues got them into. Well, gentlemen—you "dood" it—Now for a change why not use your energies in trying to get along and win the war.

NEWS FROM OUR BOYS IN SERVICE

Luke Field, Phoenix, Arizona.

Dear All:
Well, a new field and a new type of plane. The plane is an AT16 North American "Texan". I haven't been here long enough to know how it's going to be, but it shouldn't be bad.

I heard lately that some of the kids are down near Oakland, but I didn't know that when I was there. I would like to have seen some of the kids from home but maybe I will some day.

I see in the I. V. News about a service men's column. That is a good idea. Tell everyone hello for me.

When I was in Merced I was flying around one night, the moon was so bright and as full as it could be. I read my maps by moonlight. Flying an airplane by instruments isn't as easy as it sounds. They have instruments all over the cockpit and you keep your eyes going all over them, making adjustments and still watch the clock to figure out where you are and where you are going.

I'll have to stop now but will write more oftener and tell you all what everyone is doing.

Yours,
JACK HAYDEN.

Edwin "Bit" Smith Writes News Letter

Los Vegas, New Mexico, Oct. 2, 1943

Dear Mr. Athey:
I should have written you a couple of weeks ago and gave you my new address, so will take time out now and do it.

We left Mt. Vernon last Tuesday for Los Vegas, the town which we are now stationed. The trip was a tiresome trip, as we had to travel in chair cars all the way. None of the country I have seen yet compares to the West Coast or "Oregon."

We have started our first phase of flying at this new station. I really think it is wonderful. I am hoping the Illinois Valley airport will be completed or open for private operation when the war is over. I ought to be able to make good use of it.

Well, if you would forward the paper to my new address it certainly would be appreciated.

Thanks a lot.

Sincerely,
BIT.

Cadet Edwin C. Smith, Kennedy Hall, Los Vegas, New Mexico.

DID YOU RECEIVE YOUR NEW BONDS?

Those who purchased the Third Invasion Bonds from the banks in Grants Pass, and who have not yet received them, should let the bank know their address so they can be mailed to them.

Several people in the valley purchased bonds at the banks and they are being held there because the purchaser did not tell them where to mail the bonds. If any of our readers purchased these bonds from either bank and you have not yet received them, the banks are holding them for you. Write for them, or go in after them.
