on its own account to private business to cover goods in transit. Like our federal reserve system it might prove a highly profitable and useful enterprise.

Dr. Harry D. White of our treasury department and John Maynard Keynes, the British money authority, have both proposed plans for the stabilization of international currencies. The White plan favors an actual gold fund. The Keynes plan favors large credits over a long period of time without requiring member countries of the world bank to put up any gold. This Keynes idea is highly inflationary. At the moment the White proposal looks the best. Unquestionably, a bank plan will be worked out with most of the 25 united nations' governments. People Want Gold

In World War I it was gold, not currency, which Colonel Lawrence used in order to win the support of Arab tribesmen. History repeated itself when our own General Mark Clark landed in Africa with a bag of gold. Gold will always talk when no other form of money is effective. That a natural demand for gold exists today is shown by the price of gold in the Bombay and Cairo markets where it is selling for almost double the United States price of $35. This strengthens my belief that international currencies, including our own, will be further reduced in value. This would mean further monetary inflation and a rise after World War II of consumer inflation followed by even more monetary inflation.

Countries in which gold will freely circulate as a medium of exchange will be the best off. Countries which attempt to get along with some form of managed currency will be in the worst shape. Hence, we should ultimately have in some form a currency which even if the circumstances were restricted would be interchangeable for gold. Thus, I predict that our present managed money system is on the way out.

More money has probably been lost through speculating in gold shares than in any other stocks. On a long-term basis, however, I now favor stocks of gold mining companies which were profitably producing before World War II. During the war, gold is subordinate in importance to nickel and copper and to the products of many other mines. In view of this, and the manpower shortage, nearly 60 per cent of the mines in the United States, Canada and South Africa have shut down. The remaining are operating on a greatly reduced basis; in fact gold production in United States and Canada is less than at anytime in 100 years.

After the war, when all efforts are turned to stimulating world trade, gold may prove the only medium through which international payments can be made. Thus gold may rise in value in terms of our present currency. Furthermore, as restrictions are lifted with respect to manpower and materials, after the war there should be a revival of earning power to the gold industry. Certainly it is no time to sell gold stocks. New purchases should be confined to producing companies with the best one rating whose over-all cost of production is reasonably low.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Judge, would you mind tellin' Charlie here what you told me the other night walkin' home from lodge. I can't word it just the way you did."

"Sure thing, Tim. Here's what I told him, Charlie. There's no such thing as votin' a nation, a state, a county, or even a community dry. We had proof enough of that during our 13 years of prohibition. What you really vote for is whether liquor is going to be sold legally or illegally...whether the community is going to get needed taxes for schools, hospitals, and the like, or whether this money is going to go to gangsters and bootleggers. That's the answer, boys... simple as A-B-C."
