OFF IN A CORNER WITH PHIL SNORT

Dear Ed: I wished I knew the proper words and could arrange them in a way and manner that would justify the life and character of one of our finest neighbors who has just left us: Edwin N. Cooke. Only about a week ago he came up and plowed our garden and harrowed it. He was apparently in the best of health, in fact he showed no physical ailment, but was his usual congenial and happy self. While he was yet putting the finishing touch on our garden ground, one of his dearest friends, if not his dearest, was in our home, waiting for him to finish the garden task. The subject of his ever prevailing good nature and kindness, came up and this lady asked me if I didn't think he was endowed with many of the characteristics that Frank Stiwalt had. I freely admitted he had because it was true. Both loved their homes and all they contained; both loved congeniality and fellowship, loved the environment of their daily life, animate and inanimate; both were appreciated and highly spoken of by all their neighbors.

It does not seem so very long ago when "Ed" Cooke acquired the Fred Wilson place on the Illinois river. He started in to remodel and enlarge the old house that was there, and to improve and beautify the grounds surrounding it. It seems that now, when he had gotten it to that point where he could fully enjoy the fruits of his efforts, the final summons came, came and found him at the post of duty on the home front among the State Guard. His body will be laid away but his life will go on, for life cannot be destroyed, and his memory will be with the present generation, until it, too, has received the last call of nature. To his loved ones who are left to mourn, I pray that the Great Giver of all good will soften their sorrow and give them strength to endure.

Now my friend farewell. I feel that I am a better man for having known you. PHLL.

has been under consideration for several months by the Roads Committee of the House was supposedly slated to be reported out but a week ago it ran into some unexpected resistance in the Roads Committee and is now in the process of being revised and reconsidered. A number of representatives of state highway departments are here now conferring with members of the committee and are endeavoring to secure committee action on the bill. I talked with Oregon State Highway Engineer R. H. Baldock yesterday about it. This bill is of considerable importance to the State of Oregon and I am hopeful that the present difficulties will be cleared up soon.
