PRICE INCENTIVE ENCOURAGES EARLY TURKEY MARKETING

Oregon turkey growers will have a financial as well as a patriotic incentive to market as many of their turkeys as possible early this season while the government is buying enough to meet the needs of the armed forces in this country and overseas, according to information received by William A. Schoenfeld, dean and director of agriculture at Oregon State college.

By recent action of the OPA, an advance of one cent per pound has been allowed from now until the end of September for live turkeys, and two cents a pound for dressed turkeys. Advances of 1/2 cent and one cent respectively are allowed for October unless the government's quota is met before the end of that month.

"These advances in ceiling prices are strictly a wartime measure intended to hasten procurement of turkeys for the armed forces overseas and in this country," says Dean Schoenfeld. "The OPA has ruled that they will prevail only while the turkey procurement program is in effect, but in no event later than October 31. That makes it a case of the early bird again getting the best of the deal."

These new ceiling prices on live and dressed birds apply to both designated and non-designated areas under the turkey procurement program.

Expansion in the armed forces and extension of battle lines to more distant overseas areas mean that the need for haste is greater than ever if all American men and once each week for four successive weeks.
