LABOR DAY TRAFFIC TAKES MANY LIVES

Labor day week-end traffic accidents have claimed a toll of 24 lives in Oregon during the past four years, the safety division of the secretary of state's office disclosed today in urging Oregon drivers to avoid accidents this year:

The Labor Day holiday toll for the past four years is as follows: 1943, 10 fatalities; 1942, two fatalities; 1941, nine fatalities; 1940, four fatalities.

Speed too great for traffic conditions and lack of good traffic judgment in passing were the two chief factors in these accidents, according to the safety division. The exercise of good traffic judgment is particularly important in such matters as passing other cars on a busy highway. Passing on curves or when approaching the brow of a hill is dangerous and resulted in several of the Labor Day fatalities in past years.

The safety division listed these safety precautions to avoid Labor Day accidents this year:

1. Keep speed down to the 35 mile wartime speed limit.
2. Never pass on curves or when approaching the brow of a hill.
3. In busy traffic, keep a safe distance between your car and the car ahead.
4. Never drive when sleepy or fatigued.
5. Keep alert when passing recreation areas where pedestrians may be crossing the road.

Farmers probably will continue to get comparatively high prices for meat animals from now throughout the first part of 1945, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics says.

NUMBER OF CARS LESSEN EACH YEAR

There are 130 less private passenger cars in Oregon today than there were a year ago, according to registration figures compiled in the office of Bob Farrell, secretary of state, at Salem.

At the end of the first seven months of the year, there were 323,543 private passenger cars registered in the state, a drop of 130 from the registration figure a year ago.

The reduction in the number of passenger cars operating on Oregon highways and streets is attributable to individuals leaving the state, cars not registered due to gasoline and tire restrictions, and to natural scrapage, Secretary Farrell said.

"Over the nation as a whole, motor vehicles go off the road at the rate of 5,000 a day as a result of normal scrapage," he said. "In Oregon, this figure amounts to 80 vehicles per day."

Bulletin Gets New Managing Editor

The Grants Pass Bulletin last week announced that E. V. Pederson of Wichita, Kansas, has secured a half interest in the newspaper with Don Orput, and will have charge of the paper while Mr. Orput will be out of the city most of the time.

Mr. Pederson is an old time newspaper man as well as an all around printer and linotype operator, the combination that is needed in a country weekly newspaper, and besides he has a wonderful personality and is making many new friends in the county seat city.

Mrs. Harold Bowerman and two children, accompanied by Mrs. Osborn made a hurried trip to Grants Pass the first of the week, where Mrs. Osborn received medical treatment.

ton newspapers have given a big play to this story. It is referred to as the battle of Washington.

To my way of thinking, the nauseating thing about this dismissal of Donald Nelson is that, although he has done a fine patriotic job, and has worked so hard and under such terrific pressure that he has nearly ruined his health—the thanks he gets from a "grateful" administration is that he is summarily kicked out.

The War Production Board under Donald Nelson's direction has handled a production job that has amazed the world and ruined our enemies. It is one war agency that has attended strictly to its business — the task to which it has been assigned. Under Donald Nelson, it has had the confidence and respect of the people.

The War Production Board will now be run by 36-year-old J. A. Krug, who has been in the Navy the last three months. He is reputed to be the only 100 per cent new dealer in WPB and has had practically no business experience in the field of private enterprise. He worked for TVA.
