WFA WANTS MORE COVER CROP SEED FROM THIS STATE

The War Food Administration will seek a larger acreage of winter cover crop seeds from Oregon and other producing states in 1945 than has been produced this year, according to preliminary national goals received by the state AAA office at Corvallis.

These goals are still in a tentative stage and reflect merely the desired production as now foreseen.

To encourage such a production the WFA announces a purchase and loan program for next year which emphasizes the need of more haired vetch and return to favor for certified Willamette vetch as compared with common vetch.

As now proposed the CCC purchase price for hairy vetch would advance one cent to 12 cents, and common rye grass would be increased a half cent to 7.5 cents. Certified Willamette vetch is listed at 6 cents, the same as is paid for common vetch this year. Further consideration is expected to be given this, as common vetch is not listed at all.

"The recommended acreage for each winter cover crop seed represents the acreage necessary to meet the desired production and constitutes a proper balance between these crops and other crops competing for land and labor in the seed producing areas," the national announcement states.

Most of this year's crop in Oregon is being handled by dealers either on their own accounts or under the carlot purchase plan, rather than being sold by producers direct to the CCC, Donaldson reports.
