ceived or written. I thought that you were gone away visiting, so just never had written. Well I have been sawmilling and logging pretty steady in the day time and keep well occupied.

Tell Buck that I hope I never see another sawmill when I get away from them again, but I'll probably be right where I was when I get home. I imagine Bob Steffens does have some difficulty with the money and dialect. I know I did, but now the money situation is well in hand but the dialect is still far from being mastered. We have a pretty good time, can't expect too much, but it helps the GI monotony.

I imagine George Yarbrough must be home by now. Hope he is feeling better. Give him my regards. I have seen about enough of this war in all forms now to satisfy me, it's all wrong. I have seen several of my buddies that never will return to their homes, some that won't be the same, so you see it hasn't all been a pleasure trip. Well that's enough of that, but don't think that it's all that bad.

Well I went hunting monkeys a few times, never seen a one. The natives eat them, so far I have never tried any. If I can drink enough of this intoxicating beverage I may try a piece then. This wine here will make you do everything but climb a tree.

We have a nice camp, it's pretty well fixed up now, so it is about time for us to move. It usually turns out that way. Well I guess I shall have to call a halt for now. Hope this finds you all well and happy. I'm fit as a fiddle. Make the next letter sooner. As Ever,
Your Friend,
LONNIE DIXON.

LETTERS

Cave Junction, Oregon
April 4, 1945

Dear Editor: Yesterday, Tuesday, April 3, will be recorded in the history of Cave City and Cave Junction as a day of BEGINNING. By that I mean that the County Court has begun to recognize the people of this community as taxpayers and are giving us back in the way of improvement a portion of that tax money that every community is entitled to.

It was very gratifying to the residents to see the county equipment and men start work on a couple of our streets that will not only help take care of traffic but will provide drainage and a fire guard, both of which were badly needed.

The comments of our citizens run from "I can't believe it" to "will they really finish the job?" and of course there was the usual comment of "politics" to which I want to say just this one thing: It seems we have business men on our County Court who are able to take a longer range view of county affairs to the extent that by helping isolated communities to help themselves they will be helping the county in general.

I say to the County Court: WE DO APPRECIATE.

Yours Very Truly,
ELWOOD HUSSEY.
