Game Commission Warns About Fawns

The Oregon State Game Commission makes its annual request that sympathetic individuals refrain from picking up fawn deer that appear to be deserted. In most instances this is not true and if the fawn is left alone, its mother will eventually return to claim it. Deliberate picking up of fawns in order to obtain a pet is against the law, and a permit is not issued to keep it unless it can be proved that the fawn actually was deserted and would have died.

While young deer may be attractive pets, as they grow older they can become burdensome to care for and often dangerous to human life if adequate facilities are not provided. In the end the deer may have to be killed as most of them cannot satisfactorily be released after being raised in captivity.

Morning Worship11 a. m.

The Sunday school choruses were given a new interest last Sunday with the accordion accompaniment played by Mary England.

The felctogram was given by Mrs. Nellie Dow.

Mrs. Nicholson's father John Hines is reported greatly improved.

Mrs. Mary Seat of Elsinore, Calif., was a visitor.

Rev. Gray gave a splendid Father's Day sermon on "The Worth of a Man," text from Matt. 10:31. Rev. and Mrs. Gray sang a lovely duet, "The Unclouded Day."

The monthly gospel song service was enjoyed by folks from the Bridgeview, Kerby, Selma, Adventist and Cave Junction churches. You are cordially invited to meet with us on July 15th at the church from 2 to 4 p. m.

Pinup Baby Given War Bonds

THE WINNER—Little 15-month-old Harolyn Cheryl Meyer of Trenton, New Jersey, official pinup girl of the USS New Jersey, was made $3,200 richer in War Bonds through donations by the crew of the USS New Jersey for use in obtaining her future education. Governor Walter E. Edge made the presentation. The child's father, an Army Air Corps pilot, is a prisoner of war in Germany. He has never seen his little beauty queen. She is held by her mother, Mrs. Harry C. Meyer.

FIRE TOOLS KEPT HANDY WOULD HALT MOST FARM BLAZES

"If I had had a pail of water or a shovel handy, I could have put it out myself when it first started."

This statement, perhaps the most frequently heard after accidental farm fires, forms an ironic epitaph for many of the farm homes, barns, grain fields and combines destroyed annually by fire, says D. D. Robinson, extension forester at Oregon State college.

Through preparation well in advance of the bad fire season is the most effective defense against accidental fires, according to the experience of the Oregon fire fighting groups. Preparation for fire includes organizing manpower for quick response in case of fire, providing fire tools, equipment and water supply, and making sure that a communications system and transportation plan is ready.

If everyone knows where a shovel, axe, back-pack pump and other fire fighting tools are kept, there will be no time lost in case a fire gets started.

Local party telephone systems usually have one particular ring for fire calls so as to get word to neighbors in the shortest possible time. If the local fire warden's name and phone number are posted near each phone, all members of the farm family will know who to call in case of fire.

THEATER STORY

American showgirls in a Burmese village, and Ted Hecht as a Jap army captain, the two comedians provide continuous mirth.

They are captured when they get too far ahead of their buddies, and the sergeant is captured too, but they manage to turn the tables on dignified Captain Tomura, whose Oxford English isn't good enough to cope with the flood of double-talk the three resourceful Americans give him.

During the confusion the boys knock out the captain appropriating some Jap uniforms and a jeep and depart. The angry Tomura and his men pursue them, with many complications, particularly when the two showgirls appear on the scene. How the boys turn out to be heroes after all, only to return to peeling potatoes like any other soldier in K. P., forms the conclusion of this comedy offering.
