THE WAR'S END

Grateful thanksgiving and rejoicing was the nation's theme when the news was announced that the war was over. Grateful that the world's greatest war was over, and rejoicing that the killing of our boys will stop.

We cannot help but feel somewhat depressed when we think of those who will be missing when the boys come home. Yet we are proud to have had such boys who gave their all that their homeland might be spared for their loved ones. God bless every one of them.

Really, we must be God's chosen people. We have never lost a war; have never started one; we have always been on the peaceful side trying to prevent trouble than start it. The Great Ruler of the Universe knows that and he has seen fit to help us in every combat. It has been through His wise counsel and helpfulness that we have emerged from this, the greatest massacre of human beings ever devised, and we have suffered less than any other nation on earth during this great holocaust. Truly, we MUST be God's chosen people.

Now that it is all over, we pray to the Great One, that He lead us through the trying time of reconversion. This is going to be one of the toughest jobs the administration has ever tackled, and it will take all the patience and straight matter-of-fact thinking we are capable of to get us through and back to normalcy.

Going back to normal times will be almost like the start of the war when we were not prepared and had to start from scratch to build the greatest army and navy in existence, but we did it in less than three and a half years. It may take that long to get back on the straight and narrow path, and we hope we will have the patience to stand pat and let those in the driver's seat take us back to where we started. It is going to call for all the forbearance and skill we can muster, but we must do it and we must try to help in every way possible.

If, as we believe, we are God's chosen people, we certainly can do the job that confronts us now without internal troubles. The streets are paved with possibilities for trouble—we must be smart enough to take the detours.

We're on our own—we're on our way. Get out of the way "trouble", we're headed straight for peace and plenty and success.

W. F. DARGER SELLS ASSOCIATED STATION

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. McParlin of Long Beach, Calif., have purchased the Associated Service Station from Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Darger. The transaction includes the business and property in Cave Junction. The consideration was not made public. The McParlins take over the business Monday, August 20th.

Mr. and Mrs. Darger have been with us for the last seven years and the community would almost be lost without them. However, they have announced that they will not leave the valley but will make their home here.

Attending Sunday school was 72 with 17 in the Beginner's class. Miss Reitz gave an interesting talk on African names.

The 84th birthday of Mrs. Peters and the sixth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Oris Seat was honored by Mrs. Mills presenting each with one of her lovely moss log baskets with an arrangement of zinnias and baby breath.

Miss Beulah Reitz, missionary for 22 years in South Africa, will bring the message next Sunday morning, August 19th. She is a splendid speaker and has a store of rich experience in this work. The public is cordially invited.

It was good to have Mrs. Elmer Davis back after a long illness from which she has not fully recovered. The Etherton family were also back after a long absence.

Mrs. William A. Brown presided at the piano in the absence of Miss England and Miss Iversen. Mrs. J. Dow sang "Guide Me Oh Thou Great Jehovah."

A large crowd attended the community sing and extra benches and chairs were brought in. Bridgeview, Selma, Kerby, Cave Junction, Adventist and Grants Pass Adventist churches were represented. Rev. Anderson of Selma was leader. A choir number from Selma, male quartet by Wantland brothers, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Stunnenburg. A mixed quartet by Mr. Kennedy and Betty and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown were greatly enjoyed.

Bridgeview will have charge of the next meet which will be Friday, Sept. 23.
