"SEE THE WORLD"—IN TWO WEEKS

"Seeing the world" used to be a matter of considerable time and money. But the postwar version which is expected to be introduced next summer promises to be quite different, especially as to time.

One big tourist agency is planning a tour of the globe by air that will be completed in a regular vacation period—two weeks.

Of course, the schedule will not allow much time to putter around Paris, or to go big game hunting in India, or to loll on the beaches of Hawaii, but to those who will never travel unless they can do it during their few days off each year, this presents a wonderful opportunity.

In the years ahead even greater opportunities for world travel will undoubtedly be provided by the air transportation industry if its expansion and development are not restricted by unnecessary and artificial regulations either by our own or foreign governments.

Within the United States it behooves the state and local governments also to do all they can to foster the growth of air transport by avoiding legislation or taxation that would tend to hamper this industry.

In the age of flight which is now dawning, sky travel will not only bring the peoples of the earth closer together physically, but it should bring them into closer understanding of one another.

Says an inspired writer: "All men or nations living without God are adventurers out upon God's world, in neglect of Him, to choose their own course. Hence the sorrowful, sad-looking host they make. Oh, that I could show them whence their bitterness, their dryness, their unutterable sorrows come. Oh, that I could silence, for one hour, the noisy tumult of their works, and get them to look in upon that better, higher life of fruitfulness and blessing to which their God has appointed them."
