Washington Letter

committees, including the rules committee, makes sweeping changes in the rules themselves, authorizes appropriations, and otherwise covers matters which are under the jurisdiction of several committees, the speaker was unable to refer the bill to any on legislative committee. He, therefore, has been holding it and has now agreed to let it come on the floor directly from his desk. In view of the fact that the LaFollette-Monroney committee actually did the work that is ordinarily done by a legislative committee, nothing is lost in the regular process by having the bill come directly to the floor without first being referred to a legislative committee. The bill will be subject to amendment on the floor, of course, but it is hoped that it will be passed substantially in the form approved by the senate.

Meat Becoming Plentiful

Unhampered by controls, meat is moving into the market at an ever increasing rate. I have just received a Department of Agriculture meat production report for the week ending July 13. Here
