BATTING THE BREEZE

By BARNEY

An old friend of ours dropped in the other day and we chatted of this and that for several hours. In the Army we used to say that no matter what subject started the conversation, it always ended on women. Being civilians ours ended with the labor situation in general and John L. Lewis in particular. (Of course we are older now, too!)

My friend pointed out the odd sort of justice we have here that sends a boy to jail for some petty crime and yet allows Mr. Lewis to flout the government and stall the wheels of reconversion with impunity. He has been called "Big" John, but it was not until now that we were aware that he is bigger than the United States Government. We have known all along, though, that he is interested only in the welfare of one person—John L. Lewis. When he called the strike which slowed down the supply of badly needed materials to our boys "over there," and one of our Army publications exclaimed editorially, "Damn your coal black soul, John L. Lewis!" did that bother "Big" John? Not in the least!

And now we read that the Government does not intend to "martyr" Mr. Lewis! We are willing to bet that there are a lot of people in this country, especially those who have had their families in the east deprived of heat on wintry days because of Mr. Lewis' whims, who could suggest several choice ways of martyring Mr. Big. As my friend remarked sadly on leaving, "And they've shot men like Lincoln!"
