SHOW REVUE

Saturday—
Five thousand dollars would just about cover the cost of a church in the hell-bent west—an amount that happens to be the price on the head of lady bandit Doll Brown, played by Marie Windsor.

As the story opens, an itinerant minister of the gospel, Brother Joseph, saves the life of a card sharp, Zeb Smith, played by William Elliott, in a barroom brawl, and loses his own in so doing. Zeb makes a death-bed agreement with the preacher to carry out his desire to have a church built—not in the way of violence and cheating but according to the precepts laid down in the bible.

The way Zeb figures it, he could turn her in, collect the reward, and build the church. But that isn't the way he's supposed to do it, according to his new set of rules. This touches off a conflict which is strikingly unique, and full of heart appeal.

Sunday and Monday

See "Sands of Iwo Jima." It is a wonderful picture and one you won't forget soon. John Wayne turns in the most powerful, dynamic performance of his career. Fans who know him for his easy western will thrill to the dignity of this portrayal.

In addition to Wayne, John Agar and Adele Mara, the cast includes Forrest Tucker, Wally Cassell, James Brown, Julie Bishop, several other talented actors and more than 1200 Marines.

The re-enactment of the landings on Tarawa and Iwo Jima will go down in motion picture history as the most realistic, finest war photography ever made.

The three survivors of the original flag raising on Mt. Suribachi, John H. Bradley, Ira H. Hayes and Rene Gagnon, portray themselves.

Tuesday and Wednesday—
The millions of Bing Crosby fans are due for a special treat when they see "Down Memory Lane." It presents their idol in two of his earliest motion pictures, both made by laugh-master Mack Sennett.

The famous Keystone Cops and other products of Sennett's gift for buffoonery will be featured. Sharing the spot-light with the two Crosby films are W. C. Fields in "The Dentist" and Donald Novis, radio singing star of the 20's in "The Singing Boxer."

ANGLING ANGLES by old Hi

From Ohio comes a letter saying: "Two of us boys are planning a trip into Northern Wisconsin this summer, near a lake where muskies are caught. We don't know much about fishing for muskies aside from the fact that most people troll. We have trolled for northern so know how that is done. What we don't know is what baits should be used for muskellunge."

One of the best bets for trolling is the fluted spoon with feathers; the blade of size number five or six, and the hooks of size 2/0. A great many large muskies have been taken on this type of lure. When these fish are in very deep water, though, you'll find that the chrome-plated wobbler with single hook and the tail of a sucker or chub makes an excellent attractor.

If the wobbler doesn't do the trick, then troll with a deep-running jointed plug with red head and white body. This is an effective musky lure in most lakes and rivers of the north country, especially in late afternoon fishing. You'll have to coax the muskies harder in the warm logy days of summer than you would in the prime days of autumn.

As pointed out in Old Hi's booklet, "Fishing For The Millions," muskies often follow a lure some distance without striking. This occurs while you are trolling, to a certain extent, but more often while bait casting in the coves and bays and past rocky points. You may gain their cooperation by varying the action of your retrieve, but usually the best plan is to "rest" the water for a few hours, then return with a different spoon or plug.

You may have a free copy of "Fishing For The Millions" by sending your request to me, Old Hi, in care of this newspaper. At the same time ask for your free copies of "Salt Water Sports Fishing" and "Pacific Coastal Fishing." These illustrated books will answer many of your questions on the tackle and methods to use in taking the principal pan and game fish in both fresh and salt waters.

If you live along the East or West coastline, you'll find that croakers (like the corvina, white sea bass and yellowfin croaker) will give you plenty of sport on light tackle at this time of the season, day or night. Soft shelled crabs, seaworms, clams and mussels make fine baits. The proper tackle to use is described in the booklets mentioned above.

Old Hi was asked to recommend a fly which would appeal to both fresh and salt water small game fish. Just tuck a few streamer flies into your plastic fly box or leather book, and you'll have a real winner.

Among other world-famed Sennett-created personalities who appear in episodes of "Down Memory Lane" are Gloria Swanson, Mabel Normand, Mack Sennett himself, Ben Turpin, Franklin Pangborn, Phyllis Haver, Dorothy Granger, Abdul the Turk, and the Sennett Bathing Beauties.

Also

Framed against the mountain warfare that raged between the Hatfields and the McCoys, comes the Samuel Goldwyn production of "Roseanna McCoy," the love episode that sparked America's most famous and violent feud. The stars are Farley Granger, Raymond Massey, Charles Bickford, Richard Basehart, Gigi Perreau and introduces Joan Evans.

Thursday and Friday

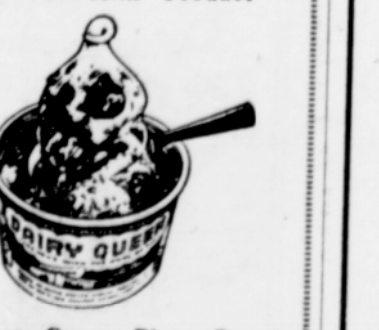

Here is a chance for most movie goers to see, realistically and convincingly, how the men who catch tuna work at their trade. Used as a background for a story in which Roddy McDowall plays the white collar son of a "tuna" skipper, this offering has considerable appeal and interest for audiences everywhere. To give the film authenticity, Producer Lindsley Parsons had most of it photographed at San Pedro harbor, where actual scenes of tuna fishing were shot. The cast members are all splendid, with particularly good characterizations turned by Rick Vallin, Peter Mamkos and Michael Vallon.
