Timberib

... THE BUSINESS-LIKE BUILDING FOR BUSINESS-LIKE FARMERS

Low cost; permanent construction; easy, fast erection; unobstructed floor and storage space—these are some of the big reasons why the arch top Timberib buildings are seen so often on America's finest farms.

The Timberib is a one-piece curved rafter that extends continuously from floor to ridge. It is formed of durable Douglas fir lumber, kiln dried and joined together under pressure with glues of permanent bonding strength. They are

Pre-cut, need no further cutting or fitting.

4 times as strong as nailed rafters.

Quickly erected with regular farm help.

Available in widths from 12 to 75 feet, lengths as desired.

If you are contemplating a cattle barn, granary, loafing barn, milking parlor, implement shed or utility building, ask us for complete information on Timberib buildings. No obligation.

.. your wiring may not be adequate for 1952

The single drop-cord from the ceiling . . an outlet in the kitchen . . we all remember how little electricity was used for lighting or labor-saving in 1929. And the wiring was planned for this limited use. Today, in 1952, the picture has changed. Better lighting, labor-saving appliances, new conveniences, and comforts . . even your entertainment is now electrical. More are being added every day. These additions demand more outlets, more circuits, and heavier wire to bring all this extra electricity into your home. When you build or remodel . . be sure the plans include wiring that is adequate . . for 1952.
