REMEMBER WAR DEAD LEGION COMMANDER URGES

Members of the American Legion were urged to be among the first to put on memorial poppies on Poppy Day Saturday, May 24, in a message issued today by Kenneth Deaton, Commander of the Glenn Morrison No. 70 Legion Post.

Reminding the veterans that the poppy is a symbol of remembrance for their fallen comrades, Commander Deaton said: "We all remember those comrades of ours who gave their lives for America so on Poppy Day let us be among the first to put on their memorial flower. Wearing a poppy is an attie thing to do but it has big meaning. It means that we honor and are grateful to those who gave their all that America might remain a free land. We who returned safely from war service most certainly owe this symbolic gesture to those who did not come back.

"The women of the Auxiliary will be on the streets throughout the day to bring the memorial flowers to the public. I am sure every American Legion member will give them his encouragement and any help they may need in carrying out this mission of patriotic service."
