Banker's Master Lock Installed.

Last Friday R H Martin of Tacoma, Wash, Inventor of the Bankers' Master Lock, was here and installed one of his locks in the vault of the Halsey Bank.

This lock is an automatic, auxiliary locking device which holds all bars and bolts of safes and vault doors in locked position when combination box, or lock case, has been forcibly destroyed by those seeking unauthorized access.

This lock works automatically when the combination box is tampered with, but on an entirely new principle from any others now in vogue, in that it controls the complete bolt mechanism, holds all bolts and bars locked in position until released by the one who knows the combination.

It is the latest and most perfect invention out, and we congratulate the directors of the Halsey Bank in taking steps to secure the maximum protection for its many depositors.
