The Editor's Trip to Eugene.

The editor and his wife made arrangements to go to Eugene last Sunday night with Elder Phillips and his wife, and we left the church after the evening service with joyous hopes of being in Eugene that night.

But we hadn't gone very far until the automobile balked, and we found that a balky horse has nothing on a balky auto. After the engine had gone dead a half a dozen times, Glenn Frum came along with his auto and towed us into the garage, where we buried our hopes until the next day.

After the garage men had gone over it the next morning it was thought "Lizzie" had been mollified (no pun intended) and we left Halsey about 10 o'clock Monday morning. But we had not gone very far until we found that Lizzie still had the sulks and at least had to be coaxed before she would work. But by dint of much persuasion and eight or ten separate coaxings we finally arrived at Harrisburg and there we parted company with Lizzie and went the rest of the way on the S P.

Brother Phillips, being anxious to get his Lizzie to Eugene, continued in the auto and by mysterious ways unknown to us he succeeded in keeping Lizzie functioning until he got to Eugene where he took her to a doctor and told him to treat her until she was entirely healed of her infirmities.

In the meantime we arrived safely in Eugene after waiting three quarters of an hour over time we proceeded to nourish the inner man and then attempted the almost impossible mythical job of hunting for the proverbial needle in a haystack, but by virtue of much stick-to-it-iveness we finally found the needle and also haystack.

We failed in the object of our journey but we may make another one some time and it is to be hoped with better results. If so, we will tell you about it.
