TREASURES OF BUDDHIST ART

Marvelous Collection Preserved for Centuries in the Temple of Daigoji in Japan.

Daigoji, the head temple of the Ono school of the Shingon sect of Buddhism in Japan, situated not far from Kyoto, in the Uji district, suggests by its name its relation to Emperor Daigo, who reigned from 898 to 930. Its name originated from the fact that its founder, Abbot Shoho, came to this village and exclaimed after he drank from an old farmer's spring: "The water was as good as daigo." It is a Buddhist word meaning an unctuous rich liquor. The posthumous title of the emperor must have originated from his devotion to the temple and its founder, as well as from his burial in the temple grounds.

Rare specimens of Buddhist art and literature, carefully preserved as the temple treasures of Daigoji, and exhibited recently at Tokio, through the efforts of Dr. Katsumi Koroita of the editorial staff of historiographical materials in Tokio Imperial university, bring the story of the temple down to 300 years ago. Among the peculiar paintings in the temple are the "flower viewing screens," pictures of horse training and a collection of fan paintings said to be rare treasures.

In the literary collection there is an illustrated copy of the third roll of "Scripture of Cause and Effect of the Past and the Present." It was made nearly 1,200 years ago, but the colors in the picture are as fresh as the present day pigments. This scroll is considered the oldest thing extant in Japan of colored art on paper.

TREES GIVE MILKLIKE JUICE

Tropics Provide Pretty Fair Substitute for the Animal Product in Use in Northern Climes.

In British Guiana and the West Indies, particularly on the banks of the River Demerara, there grows a tree known to the natives as the hynya, which yields from its bark and pith a juice slightly richer and thicker than cow's milk. The tree is about forty feet high and eighteen inches in circumference when full grown, and the natives use its juice as we use milk, it being perfectly harmless and mixing well with water.

The Cingalese have a tree—they call it kirialghuma—which yields a fluid in all respects like milk; while in the forests of Para grows a tree called the massenodendron, which gives a milklike juice. It can be kept for an indefinite time and shows no tendency to become sour.

On the other hand, certain trees in the valleys of Aruana and in Cauagua yield a similar fluid, which, when exposed to the air, begins to form into a kind of cheese, which very soon becomes sour.

In the Canary Islands there is a tree called tabaya dulce, of which the milk, thickened into a jelly, is considered a delicacy.

Unpleasant Dreams.

A London chemist, dreaming that he had swallowed poison by mistake, rose from the chair in which he had fallen asleep, and so vivid had the dream been, he went to the shop and took an antidote. But this, in the absence of real poison, began to poison him, and before he realized the mistake the error was beyond repair.

In another case a man, after a heated argument with a visiting friend, dreamed that his guest was in his room molesting him. He actually "felt" rough hands on his body, jumped out of bed, and ran to his friend's room. There he attacked his innocent "assailant" so violently that the latter was confined to bed for several weeks.

Bachelor to the Rescue.

In a street car the other day I sat directly behind a woman who was trying desperately to untie a face veil. I was fascinated by her persistent but fruitless attempts to untie the veil with one hand while with the other she clutched her nose glasses, which were helplessly entangled in it. I was just wondering why some woman passenger did not offer assistance, when she turned to me and said: "Pardon me, but would you be kind enough to see if you can unfasten this veil." After frantic efforts, amid the suppressed merriment of the passengers I came out victor. But I was a much embarrassed bachelor.—Exchange.

Ostrich Plumes.

Ostrich plumes are not actually plucked, by the way. They are cut—pruned with no damage or pain to the bird. When the feathers are "ripe" the ostriches are driven into a V-shaped enclosure. Their heads are covered with a hood like a stocking, which renders them tractable. The wings are spread by the man doing the "plucking" and the feathers are clipped off fairly close to the flesh. This does not hurt the bird in the least and within sixty days the dead quill ends drop out of their own accord. The tail feathers are also clipped.

EXPRESSED WILL OF PEOPLE

"First American Constitution" Grew Out of Feeling of Dissatisfaction With Conditions.

The term "First American Constitution" is frequently applied by writers to what is better known historically as the "Fundamental Orders of Connecticut." Many people in Massachusetts having become dissatisfied with a law that none but church members should vote or hold office, at length determined to form other settlements. Other town organizations migrated almost bodily from Massachusetts to what was then the wilderness. These were Newton, Watertown and Dorchester, which had their names changed, respectively, to Hartford, Wethersfield and Windsor. Along with them went their governing organizations and a general court for the three towns was afterward formed.

Jan. 14, 1639, this little community formed the first written American Constitution at Hartford. This Constitution springs directly from the will of the people, and neither English king nor parliament, nor Colonial council, nor governor had anything to do with it. The orders provided for two general representative assemblies each year, composed of delegates from each town, one for the election of governor and magistrates, the other for making the laws. These fundamental orders, as they were called, were the beginnings of democratic government in America.

KEY TO ANCIENT HISTORY

Greek Papyri Have Revealed Practically All That Is Known of Greco-Roman World.

Greek papyri were documents for ancient history which supplied a personal view of things. They described classes not represented in history as usually written and helped in the study of popular psychology of the Greco-Roman Egypt, and by analogy, also, to some extent, the Greco-Roman world.

The papyri illustrated the history of administration, showing it in actual working, and not in theory. There was not much in the papyri on mystery cults, but there were interesting religious documents, such as the hymn to Isis. The papyri mostly illustrated the popular attitude to religion, popular piety and impiety. They were also useful for early Christianity, Egypt being the native country of monasticism.

The economic decay of the Roman empire, popular education, and the history of the Greek language, were also illustrated by papyri. The borrowings of Christianity could be traced from older paganism from the papyri, and the Christian and pagan attitudes could thus be contrasted.

WM. J. BRYAN SAYS FILIPINO WON THE HONORS

(In a signed, copyrighted article written from the Democratic convention hall at San Francisco for the International News Service, William J. Bryan paid the following remarkable tribute to Jose P. Melencio, the young Filipino who is in charge of the Philippine Independence Publicity campaign in the United States.)

By WILLIAM J. BRYAN.

The greatest personal victory yet won in this Democratic convention was scored by a young Filipino by the name of Jose P. Melencio. He has charge of the Philippine Publicity Bureau at Washington.

He is only twenty-six years old and received his education in the public schools of the Philippines—under American teachers, as he proudly boasted—and at Georgetown, D. C. He is a remarkably promising young man.

Speaking with grace, using the best language and without a trace of embarrassment, he presented the claim of the Filipinos to independence. The audience was astonished at the strength of his argument, the skill with which he marshaled his facts and the high tone of his speech. He captivated everyone and committeemen and visitors paid him the compliment of rising and cheering when he concluded his plea.

When one of the committee asked him some questions he returned to the platform and answered them with as much logic and precision as if he had taken weeks to prepare his answer. It was a remarkable triumph.

As one who began twenty-two years ago to fight for the promise of independence I was proud of this illustration of what the Filipino is capable.

The city got in a load of gravel last week which they have been dumping on the low places in our burg.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC LINES

JOHN M. SCOTT, General Passenger Agent.

All Cities Now In Separate Highway Districts in Linn.

Hereafter Halsey, Brownsville, Scio and Sodaville will be road districts within themselves County Assessor Van Winkle has announced. This condition has been brought about by an order from the county court in accordance with a new state law withdrawing all corporate towns from county road districts. All other towns in Linn county had previously been altered to accord to this provision.

The effect of this provision will be to allow county money to be expended upon roads outside of city limits, throwing the responsibility for roads within towns upon the towns entirely.

Methodist Church Notes

SUNDAY SCHOOL

The power and authority of Jesus.

And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom and healing all manner of disease and sickness. Matt 9: 35.

In this lesson Jesus healed the leper, another sick with a fever, and still another sick of the palsy.

We are led to inquire as to the motive of Jesus in his manifestation of his great power.

His resistance of the temptations in the wilderness show that it was not for worldly gain, but he came to establish a spiritual kingdom whose governing principal is love. Jesus came to serve, heal, and save poor suffering, sinful men. His great love and sympathy was constantly going out to them in the healing of disease and suffering in their mortal bodies. It was Jesus' mission to heal men, body and soul, to straighten crooked limbs and crooked ideas, to banish blindness and superstition and heal hearts of hatred and selfishness. Faith in God comes not by inheritance from our ancestors but through personal trust in God expressed in our own efforts. Do you think the sinful world in its chaotic state needs such a Christ today? Why not take Him as our pilot?

We believe in training and bringing our young people to the front. Two weeks ago one of our young ladies kindly taught a S S class and last Sunday one of our young men did the same.

Our rally day committee: Mrs B M Bond, Mrs C E Gulliford and Mrs D Taylor have assigned the parts to the pageant and will begin the practice this week. We are planning for a great day on November 28th.

Four members of our school attended the S S institute at Albany last Saturday and came home much benefited.

The solos and the two Spirit filled sermons on last Sunday were much appreciated.

The missionary meeting at the Standish home last Friday was attended by 12 members. Mrs Koontz and Mrs Taylor led the lesson and Mrs Wesley and Mrs McWilliams sang a duet.

On Monday night the pastor called a League committee meeting at the parsonage in the interest of "Win My Chum Week," which begins next Sunday. The young people showed their interest by their good attendance and pledged their earnest co-operation with their pastor in the launching of this great work. Refreshments were served.

Our girls' Booster class at their meeting this week, elected the following officers: Beulah Mc Kern, president; Willamina Corcoran, secretary; Agnes Hayes, treasurer. They surprised their teacher by bringing in five new members and the putting on of a merry time. Would you like to be a Booster?

School Notes

The minstrel show proved quite a success. We thank all those who patronized our efforts. Didn't you enjoy one good laugh? Of course. We all did.

Basket ball teams are being organized in the girls' teams. The games of the season are to be between the Seniors and Juniors, and the Sophomores and Freshmen. They are electing their captains this week, but we have not heard the report yet.

Tuesday the school was very much delighted with a talk from Mr Painter. He presented the educational question in a very pleasing manner. After he addressed the High School he talked to the grades.

Prof English was absent from school Tuesday afternoon on account of the death of his small nephew.

The science classes are working on their various experiments with much enthusiasm.
