Herman Mitzner Robbed.

While Herman Mitzner and family were at church Sunday morning a man went into his house and committed a robbery. It appears that there were two men together but only one man did the robbing. According to his story he went up to the house to inquire about work. No one being at home he found one of the windows loose and he went in. He found some bacon and cake that looked good to him and he concluded he would take them.

Then he thought he might as well help himself so he took a suit of clothes, raincoat, logger boots, cap, gloves, razor, strop, hand mirror and 24 cents in money.

He gave his name as Dan Allen and his companion, who was a young man of nineteen, gave his name as Eggleston and said he was on his way to California, where he claimed he had a brother.

When Mitzner came home from church he missed the things and came at once to Halsey and acquainted Deputy Sheriff Walton of the robbery, and as Mr Walton had noticed the two men pass through town, he got on track of them and found them.

The goods were found in their possession and the old man took the entire blame upon himself, thus exonerating the young man.

Sheriff Kendall was sent for and came and got the old man and took him to Albany and the young man was discharged.

This ends the first chapter. Whether there will be more or not remains to be seen.
