Mt. Washington 6,293 Feet High. Many persons believe that Mount Washington, in New Hampshire, is the highest mountain in the eastern part of the United States. Mount Washington stands 6,293 feet above sea level, according to the United States geological survey, department of the interior, but many peaks in the southern Appalachians are several hundred feet higher than New Hampshire's famous mountain. The highest mountain in the Appalachian system—the highest point in the United States east of the Rockles is Mount Mitchell, in North Carolina, which stands at an elevation of 6,711 feet. The highest mountain in Tennessee, Mount Guyot, stands 6,636 feet above sea level.

Ivory Does Not Rust.

One cold afternoun several schoolgirls were standing on a corner waiting for a car. A man invited them to come into his office to wait for the car. They accepted. The conversation soon turned to the color of a certain girl's hair. One insisted it was red, another that it was auburn, and another that it was brown.

At the height of the discussion two children entered the office. As soon as they understood the nature of the argument, one of the youngsters exclaimed: "Oh, shucks! Her hair ain't red. Ivory don't rust."-Indianapolis News.

Great California Industry.

Nearly a million acres are planted to the fruit trees that supply the canneries of California, according to Elton R. Shaw in an article in the Old (ony Magazine, the organ of the Old Colony club. Statistics tell us that of the 100,000,000 acres of land in the state of California, about 900,000 are devoted to fruit trees; so it is easily conceivable that the fruit-canning industry is no small part of the general industrial activities of the "Golden State."

Joke 5,000 Years Old. Planned by the ancient Egyptians over 5,000 years ago, a joke just came to fruition, writes Prof. Flinders Petrie, the noted archeologist. "While we were trying to find a way into a queen's pyramid," he says, "we discovered on a rock face a door which was so beautifully and exactly fitted that it was difficult to see the joints. We immediately set to work on this, thinking that we had found at last an entrance to the inner chamber. After a considerable amount of work we removed the door and foundsolid rock! It was a carefully arranged blind to balk anyone who wanted to find the entrance into the royal tombs, and had been made about 3,000 B. C. by someone with a sense

Prophet's Gourd.

The "prophet's gourd is a name given to the ricinus communis, or castor oil plant, referred to in Jonah 4:6-10, which afforded shade to the prophet before Nineveh, and which was supposed to have come up in a night and perished in a night. This plant was formerly a native of Asla. but is how naturalized in America, Africa and the south of Europe. It is allied to the cucumber, but in some species the fruit attains enormous sizes, specimens having been found to weigh as much as two and three hundred pounds. In India the plant is a tree, but in England it seldom attains a greater height than three or four feet. The seeds contain the oil so well known as castor oil.

This Boy One of Thousands

THE SAME BOY as he arrived at the Near East Relief six months later dressed in clothes from America

This boy is one of the thousands of children whose parents were massacred by Türks near the Persian border. He was elever enough to hide out and escape to Develon, but was nearly dead from starvation and exposure when picked up by a larger boy, who carried him 52 miles to Erivan. It was though useless to attempt to save the life of the emaciated little Arshag, but Edith B Hofmann, of the, Near East Relief, undertook the task, nursed him for six months, dressed him up in the little sailor suit sent by some American lad and the result is shown in the second picture.

Think of Arshag and his brave battle against great odds and make up a Think of Arshag and toys for the relief ship to leave the Pacific coast directly bundle of clothing and toys for the relief ship to leave the Pacific coast directly for the Near East sometime early in June. Send all you can spare in order that as many as possible of the ragged little human skeletons like you see in the first picture, may be transformed into healthy and happy children like the lad shown in the second picture.

A Rainy Day.

A rainy day in Switzerland puts a sudden stop to many diversions. The coachman may drive to the tavern, and then back to the stable; but no farther. The sunburnt guide may sit at the . . . door, and welcome; and the boatman whistle . . . at his own sweet will-but no foot stirs abroad for all that; no traveler moves if he has time to stay. The rainy day gives him time for reflection. He has lels ure now to take cognizance of his impressions, and make up his account with the mountains. He remembers. too, that he has friends at home; and writes up the journal, neglected for a week or more, and letters neglected longer; or finishes the rough pencilsketch begun yesterday in the open air. On the whole, he is not sorry it rains though disappointed.-Henry
