Amateur Wireless Genius

Draw a line around a portion of the county map that will include Plainview, Ash Swale and Shedd and it will surround a bunch of precocious youngsters that are not often equaled.

Last winter pupils at the Ash Swale school cut a hole in the roof and improvised a pretty good picture show. The Shedd school clubs are famous the country over, and here is a report from the Portland Journal:

"Wilbur Bonar, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Bonar of Plainview, has been picking up messages from all over the globe with a wireless apparatus constructed by himself and installed in a corner of his father's store."

"Young Bonar the other day caught a wireless message from Baiden, Germany. He also gets them from France and other parts of Europe. He listens to the evening concerts at Catalina island, California."

"He is at work on an amplifier that visitors to the store may hear the concerts. The building of the amplifier is remarkable because the boy has never seen one. He is country born and raised and has never been as far as Portland."

"He had no advice as to how to make the wireless and his few tools and materials are all homemade. Batteries were taken from an automobile. This pole is set up on a corner of his father's store with the wires running to a tower, the corner of a barn and another building."

For Files.

For the woman who lives in the country and is unable to get fly paper when her supply runs out, this hint will be useful. Mix half teaspoonful of black pepper, one teaspoonful brown sugar, one teaspoonful of milk, place on plate, and the flies will soon disappear.

Our Own Wireless.

A wave of thought takes a minute to travel a mile of nerve. A touch on the face is registered on the brain and responded to in the seventh of a second. It takes a sixth of a second for the brain to respond to the sense of sight.

LIVING AS IN STONE AGE

Natives of Isolated South Sea Isles Found by Missionary Number Only 500.

London, England.—People who still live in the manner of the stone age are found on Rennel island in the Solomon group, Melanesia, according to Dr. Northcote Deck, a missionary who says there are only about 500 inhabitants, and because of their isolation even their dialect there has never been studied.

The natives had implements and weapons of stone and wood only when Dr. Deck first visited the island. They showed great eagerness to barter homemade articles for anything made of iron.

"They seem to feel keenly the monotony of their isolation, and showed a settled melancholy, both in their faces and the cadence of their voices," says Dr. Deck.

The teeth of flying foxes which swarm in caves on the island seem to be the only form of currency known there.

Brownsville Briefs

Kenneth Damon and Miss Vivian King of Brownsville were married Thursday.

R. H. Robertson & Son picked from their berry ranch this season 22,000 pounds of Loganberries, 2000 pounds of raspberries and thus far about 1500 pounds of Lawton blackberries. There will be two or three more pickings of the latter. In about two weeks their evergreens will be ready and these promise to be a fine crop of these. Mr. Robertson estimates his berries this season at about two-thirds of a full crop. Another year, when the vines are in full bearing, a normal crop would be several thousand pounds greater than the figures here given, which, with good markets, would mean a handsome profit from the ranch.

Attorney Tussing and Oren Stratton were business visitors to Redmond, eastern Oregon, Friday.

Rainsell vice-commander, Leonard Lerwill historian and John C. Miller, Aubrey Tussing, Leo Tetra, C. N. Tysar and W. W. Cook executive committee.

Superstition Concerning Cawl.

The cawl is a thin membrane found encompassing the head of some children when born, and it is considered a good omen for the children themselves. This superstition probably became widespread about the time of the Emperor Antoninus Pius. When he was born he had a band of membrane around his forehead in the shape of a shield, and he attributed all his good fortune to this cawl, and this started the sale of them. A few sailors carrying them who then happened to be saved from shipwreck diverted the superstition toward mariners.

A Kick as Visitor Enters.

That a sense of humor is not altogether quenched by the humdrum of work in a government office is evidenced by a placard which appears on the door of a department of the pension ministry in London. It reads: "Everyone closes our door—except you."
