Fewer Children in Austria. Vienna.-Curious freaks of population are shown by the details of the latest Austrian census. For instance, there are 300,000 fewer children under 10 years of age in the country than in 1910, while the number of men hetween 40 and 60 has increased by 120,000. It is explained by the fact that adult men survived the privations of the last three or four years while children perished.

Buyers Are Cleaving to Trail of Present Fashions for Winter Wear.

WOOL SHAWLS TO BE WORN

Spanish Wrap to Hold Favor Coming Season Are Embroidered, Graceful and Charming-Radium Silk for Lingerie.

The styles of today are on their way to make room for the styles of orrow. At this season of the year we are in the painful process of transition, but the wise ones will watch the signs of the times to see how some fashions will survive and others be cast into the discard. Just now, says a New York fashion writer, we hear some hardened skeptics saying that women will never depart from adopting extreme fashions to make themselves conspicuous, or some such antique theory as that. But there are others who assert that the shorthaired girl has come to stay, because that way of dressing her locks is more practical and that the corsetless figire, with its straightline clothes, is with us for life, for the same reason. Who knows? If we are women, we must needs conform to the changes in fashion, whatever our inclination. And most of us incline to conform. We get that peculiar feminine thrill out of a new frock which no other proceeding on earth can bring with it. Buying for Winter.

Western buyers are putting in their first stocks for winter. are cleaving to short skirts and to straight fines. But this is always the way of this period of the season. They follow closely in the trail of present fashions, as any wild flights of fancy might lead them into untold paths of loss and unappreciation. The duty, and, yes, the desire, of the New York public is to go on beyond, creating new types of fashion which, in their turn, will be followed just as assiduously by others next season.

The success of the spring coat and the adaptability of the one-piece dress have joined hands, the two making their autumn bow as a coat dress. Of course, we have had coat dresses before this, but the predictions are that they will be more brilliant achievements this coming season. News from Paris indicates that we are following the lead right here, for many of the wholesalers have reported that sales in this particular direction are going

A new slogan might be: "It is the belt that makes the gown," for in many instances all else is plain, and the winding around the waist becomes the center of the design of the whole frock. SISTER NATION WANTS OWN FLAG

Canada With Unrepresentative Ensign Seeks Ideas for Proper Heraldic Device.

MAPLE LEAF IN HIGH FAVOR

Emblem Now in Use Unauthorized and No Longer Represents Canada as Five of Its Provinces Are Not Included.

Toronto.-Canada is a "nation" but it has no flag. Herein it is unique among all nations

A so-called Canadian flag is in use but its use is unauthorized and it no longer represents Canada. It is the red ensign of the British mercantile marine with the coat of arms of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick in a quartered shield on he field of the flage

This flag, by warrant dated Febuary 2, 1892, was authorized by the British admiralty, "to be used on board vessels registered in the Do This limits its domain to Canadian merchant ships, as no authorization was given to fly it on shore. When it is flown on land, it is out of its jurisdiction. In any case, it has not been formally adopted by the Canadian people and it now has decided limitations.

Its shield contains the devices of only four of the nine provinces which now form the Dominion of Canada. The four coats of arms make an almost indecipherable emblem owing to the crowding of their devices into so small a space. If the emblem was brought up to date by adding the arms of the other five provinces, the result would be a hopeless confusion of armorial bearings; the significance would be destroyed and the flag be lacking in distinction and beauty. Australia's Flag.

Australia, when it organized its commonwealth, chose a flag from 30,-000 competing designs. It has the Union Jack in the upper left-hand corner, with the constellation of the southern cross, white on a blue field. New Zealand also has a flag. It is also based on the southern cross constellation, red stars on a blue field. There are only four stars compared with Australia's six.

As for South Africa, Premier Smuts has declared that she, too, will have her own national flag. The Manitoba Free Press, speaking for a province not represented in the present unofficial Canadian ensign, is agitating for a new Canadian flag and has received hundreds of proposed designs. The Free Press itself puts forward an adaption of the most prominent feature of northern skies as an appropriate design. Certainly "dipper" and the pole star are not without some symbolism to most Canadians. The dipper, the Free Press says, "is the conspicuous constellation of our Canadian heavens, circling slowly around the steadfast polar star; it lights up the night sky over the Atlantic provinces and over the Pacific slopes of British Columbia; it circles above the night silences of the Western prairies; it can be seen by the trapper in the woods of the Northwest territories, by the settler on his homestead, by the city dweller high above the glitter of his lamp-lit streets, the most distinctive constellation of the northern hemisphere." The dipper and the pole star, it thinks, look as though they were a great heraldic emblem on the dark field of the Canato take them down and emblazon them on the white field of a flag for the young Canadian nation. The only objection would come from those who objected to Kipling's "Our Lady of the Snows."

Favor Maple Leaf.

Most suggestions involve some use of the maple leaf. Nationhood flowers in a flag, thinks the Free Press, which argues the case this way: "Canada has one of the great geographical surfaces of the world. Canada has a vigorous, thriving and enterprising people. Canada sent 600,000 men to the war, good soldiers who fought with distinction and put luster on the Canadian name: Canada has a rich tradition behind her; her laws and system of government are rooted in the principles of liberty and justice: the great highway of national expansion is opening before Canada, and as a nation she is preparing to walk in it; Canadian status and nationality have never been so universally admitted as they are to-'ay, and despite all this, Canada lacks distinctive badge of nationality ossessed by even the smallest and humblest nation-a national flag. national flag stands for something ital in the nation. National flags are blems around which nations rally. The crosses on the Union Jack the ion of Scotland, the lion of England he Irish harp, the stars and bars of Old Glory' are of a piece with the national life out of which they merge."

FINDS PERUVIAN GOLD ON ISLAND

Man Who Befriended Beggar is Rewarded With Key to Buried Treasuro.

ROMANCE IS NOT YET DEAD

Locates After Search of More Than Seven Years Gold Hidden Half Century Ago-Church Despoiled by Four Sailors.

Papeete, T. hiti.-Romance is not yet dead. Tales of buccaneering, murder on the high seas, buried gold on lonely, uninhabited islands and charts and cryptograms of hidden treasuretrove are not all inventions of imaginative minds or legends of a day which is long past.

Such a tale is that of the treasure of the island of Pinaki, whose hiding place, after a patient search of more than seven years, has at last been discovered. And now a schooner from Tahiti has been dispatched to bring away the gold.

Sailors Despoil the Peruvian Church. A half century ago four sallors, deserters from a coastwise vessel. revolutionists in Peru and learned of a vast treasure of jewels. plate and ingots, the property of the church, which had been hidden in Peru to prevent it from falling into the hands of one of the warring factions. Secretly, the sailors searched for the treasure, found it concealed in a church and moved it to another hiding place on the coast.

Going to Panama, the seafarers, at night, boarded a small schooner, murdered the crew and, after putting the treasure aboard, set sall across the Pacific, intending to make some European port later to dispose of their wealth. Recalling that they had no clearance papers and probably could not enter a European port safely, they decided to hide the gold on some un inhabited island and then get it later in a vessel they would charter at Sydney, N. S. W., for trading purposes.

Across their path lay the island of Pinaki, in the Paumotu archipelago of the south seas, and at this uninhabited spot they stopped and hid their loot. One native, who observed them from a neighboring island and rowed across to see what the men from the strange schooners were doing, was killed and his tribal brothers, who crossed later. found only his empty canoe and strange markings on the trees. Sailing on to Australia, the four scuttled their vessel a few miles from shore and, rowing to land, told of a storm at sea which opened the seams of their ship. Not all believed them. for some residents had seen the shir approaching and had witnessed its mysterious sinking. There were no police, however, in that section, and as the four looked desperate, they were permitted to strike out overland for Sydney unmolested.

Beggar Divulges Hiding Place. In 1914, years later, a Mr. Howe was accosted on a Sydney street by an aged beggar. Howe gave the man a few shillings and was surprised to hear the man ask his name and address. Some time later Howe received an urgent summons to a Sydney hospital. There he found the beggar, who told of how he and three others had buried their treasure, had sailed on to Australia and had set out overland for Sydney. Blacks had attacked them and killed two of the sailors. The beggar and his surviving companion, Brown, tried for years to get a ship to go for the treasure, but never obtained money enough. Brown finally disappeared, and he, Killrain, had fallen into misfortune and knew his end was near. He gave Howe a map of the island, begged him to be-Heve the story and to search for the dian night sky, and it seems natural treasure. The following day the beggar died.

Since then Howe has been searching for the treasure, and lately announced that he had found it in a shallow lagoon on Pinaki. Lately he chartered a schooner at Papeete to go to lift the gold after making a contract with the colonial government as to his rights in the matter. It is said the treasure is worth several milnon dollars.
