Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Jackson from this locality were in attendance at the Linn county fair last week. Mr. Jackson was formerly sheriff of this county but is now engaged in raising horses.

Have you noticed the glorious sunsets in the past two weeks or more? The wonderful colors in the heavens and on the earth? The luxuriant foliage on vine and tree? All so beautiful—reds, browns and yellows everywhere? This presages winter, with perhaps rain and dark days, but we can enjoy the beauty of fall while it lasts and recall its beauty at will later on. The "ahlias, too, are a mass of glory and one cannot help but think an exhibit with premiums would be quite worth while put Halsey on the map as a floral center. Why not!

A train of five road scrapers and grader, hauled by a big tractor, went Friday night on First street. The outfit belonged to Washburn & Hall of Lebanon and had been used in fulfilling their contract to cut a 6-per-cent grade from the east foot of Low Pass mountain to the summit. Another firm has about completed a similar grade on the west side, which, when completed, will give an easy outlet to the railroad at Junction City for the products of the great tract of rich alluvial land around Triangle lake. This road will be a part of the state highway from Florence to eastern Oregon.

The auction sale of A. J. Hibel last Tuesday was a decided success, both financially and otherwise. A large crowd was in attendance and the weather was propitious and he had an excellent auctioneer in Ben Sudtell. Mr. Heibel expects to leave for Walla Walla, Wash., soon.

The district convention of the Rebekahs took place in Lebanon Wednesday and quite a number of Halsey members were in attendance, some of whom were Mesdames Robnett, Clark, Moore, Adda Ringo, Lou Taylor, Gray, Salash and Miss Mary Smith. N. T. Sneed recently received the wrapper of a parcel post package with a note from Portland postoffice saying: "Contents eaten by rats at central station." If we knew what those contents were we might venture a guess as to whether those rats were two-legged.

Mrs. R. A. McKinley of San Diego was in Albany Monday evening and stated that thirty years ago she settled on a 640-acre farm at Crawfordville, where the family resided until about 11 years ago, when they moved to California. The lady has been spending five weeks in this locality seeking out old-time friends. Mrs. McKinley states that she is perfectly delighted with California and would not change for anything. She mentions a great many names of the people of thirty years ago and is a very interesting conversationalist. She left at 10 Monday night for her home in National City, a suburb of San Diego.

The timely observance of little Vivian Frum probably saved J. J. Corcoran home from destruction by fire last Tuesday, when the little girl discovered smoke issuing from an upstairs window. The fire had burned through eight quilts and a mattress and had caught the curtains. It was probably caused by the little grandson, Billy Kirk, throwing a lighted match on the bed.

Professor of Psychology Who Has Been Making Tests Gives Results of His Investigations.

Austin, Tex.—For the last three years Dr. T. R. Garth, professor of psychology of the University of Texas, has been making tests of the mental capacity of the Indian, the negro and the Caucasian. These investigations have brought to light the fact, he says, that the American Indian has as alert a mind as white people. He recently spent some time among the Indians of New Mexico and Oklahoma, carrying on his tests.

In Oklahoma, Doctor Garth visited the Chilocco Indian Training school, which is supported by the government, and which offers instruction to Indian children through the tenth grade. He also visited an Indian school in Albuquerque, N. M., which has Indian students from both New Mexico and Arizona.

"In all I tested about 1,000 Indians, something over half of whom were full-blood, the rest ranging from one-eighth to fifteen-sixteenths Indian," he said. "Some of the Indians are very promising and have great possibilities. Heretofore the average of the Indian for intelligence rating has been below that of the white. But the Indian excels both the white and negro in mental fatigue, that is, ability to continue longer at any given mental process."

In the color preference test which Doctor Garth conducted, out of a group of 100 Indian students, 88 preferred red first, 22 preferred blue first, while green, orange, yellow, purple and white occupied middle or end positions in the scale of preference.

"I have tried this color test among college students," said Doctor Garth, "and blue is the color preferred first. Psychologists consider the selection of blue as a sign of intelligence. When I tried the riddle test, I thought surely the Indians would find a stumbling block, but they answered readily, and after the test was over one of the Indian girls came up to ask me a riddle."

Out of the general mental tests which Doctor Garth has conducted has grown the problem of studying the psychology of Indian personality, according to which certain traits of character found in the Indian are compared with the same traits found in the whites. In the mental tests which he conducted on the recent trip, Doctor Garth used the form issued by the National Research council which is very much interested in this work. The American Association of Science also has assigned to Doctor Garth a research fund and given other aid as evidence of interest in the work.

JAP FARM TENANTS COMBINE
416 Associations Organized in Japan for Protection of Common Interests.

Tokyo.—With the remarkable awakening among Japanese industrial workers, there has recently been noticeable in Japan a growing tendency among tenant farmers to form combinations for the protection of their common interests against the landlords.

This is another evidence of the swift social development in Japan along western ideas.

At the end of March, 1921, such combinations of tenant farmers numbered 416, with an aggregate membership of 48,587. During 1920, 408 cases of dispute involving 5,235 landlords and 34,600 tenant farmers were reported.

The most frequent cause was demand for lower rent.

All-Woman Jury Tries Case.
Sumrall, Miss.—Mississippi's first all-woman jury rendered a verdict in justice of the peace court here in favor of the defendant in litigation between Mrs. Rassy Reed and Mrs. Laura Speed, involving ownership of a cow and calf. The constable refused to summon the women as jurors as directed and the court appointed a substitute to carry out his orders.

ARISTOCRATS OF RUSSIA PEDDLERS

Once Haughty Officers of Old Regime Are Now Penniless in Turkish Capital.

ONE TRAGEDY OF GREAT WAR

Every Street in Constantinople is Crowded With Refugees From Russia—Wives and Daughters in Menial Occupations.

Constantinople.—When Russia was a mighty nation under her czars it was the Slav dream to march into Constantinople.

Well, the Russians in their thousands have reached this city, but their presence means not a triumph, but one of the great tragedies of the aftermath of the war.

The allies, and especially France, backed and financed a number of attempts on the part of Russia to break down the Bolshevik government and substitute one that would do business with western Europe.

The last of these mercenary armies was the one led by General Wrangel, who at one time was master of the Crimea.

But just as soon as the Bolsheviks secured peace with Poland, they smashed Wrangel to smithereens. The Crimea witnessed one of the greatest scrambles in history.

Soldiers and their leaders, civilians and their wives and families, clamored for ships to take them away before the avenging Bolsheviks came in.

The vessels which were finally supplied for the refugees were jammed beyond human endurance.

Filled With Refugees.
Thousands of the survivors of this page of recent history were brought to Constantinople.

Every street in Constantinople is crowded with them. Near this city you may see broad-faced Mongolians and Kalmuck Tartars, who were once in Wrangel's army, working on the railway tracks.

In the city itself the Russians have largely turned to peddling.

Their wives and sisters and daughters have taken to waiting in little restaurants or washing dishes or scrubbing floors or doing family washing.

Many have been forced by sheer want into immorality.

And there are thousands who have no visible means of support. They sell nothing. They do not work. They simply walk the streets aimlessly.

Many of them have shirts, but no coats. If you see them with coats buttoned up to the neck, you may know that they have neither shirt nor undershirt underneath. In this blazing hot oriental weather many of them go about with great long, heavy cossack coats whose collars and sleeves are trimmed with thick astrachan.

Shift for Themselves.
Men who were once officers in the czar's army and later in Wrangel's forces still go about with their epaulettes on shoulders. Often one has a wicked-looking Russian officer's dagger at his side.

It would seem that with this great influx of one-time soldiers of adventure, made desperate by want, there would be a great increase of petty crimes. But the 2,500 Turkish police have held crime in check.

For a considerable period the French authorities undertook to feed the 100,000 Russian refugees, the only stipulation being that they should seek work to make themselves self-supporting. But work was the very thing that the great majority of them did not want.

They seemed to think the allies were under some sort of obligation to maintain them in idleness. The result was that the French felt compelled to withdraw all assistance and allow them to shift for themselves.—Milton Bronner, in Chicago Post.

Final Choice.
Wife (showing new bonnet to hubby)—The milliner thought that flowers were the most becoming to me and I have always adored feathers, so we finally compromised by putting on some fruit.

Wilbur had seen the various peddlers come through the alley with horses and wagons pulling their wares. So when the scissors grinder appeared one day carrying the bulky machine on his back there seemed to be but one explanation possible to the lad. When the man came near enough Wilbur asked sympathetically: "Mister, is your horse dead?"

EVERYONE INVITED

An unusual thunder and lightning storm, accompanied by a copious rainfall, visited here last night, a rare occurrence at this time of the year.

Mrs. C. P. Stafford, one of the Enterprise force, returned from a week's vacation trip to Portland Friday of last week, where she visited the Porters and Mrs. Dove, and the Drydens and Mrs. Hod in Oregon City. Mr. Stafford joined her in Albany and took in the county fair, and they came home together. Mrs. Stafford looks as if she had had a fine time, took in the theaters and listened to some rare music and did a tiny bit of shopping.

School was closed Friday in order that the students might attend the Linn county fair. Among those winning prizes at the fair was Irene Quimby, who won first in the calf club, second prize in the open class, and third prize in counting club, and was also a member of the judging class which won first prize.

Cecil Mayberry of the seventh grade won first prize for her fair book.

The Girls' Glee club was organized for the year Monday, after the testing of the girls' voices. Some new music has been purchased and practicing will replace each Monday. J. B.

No More Walks.
Captain Kidd strode from the modern lumberyard with a volley of angry oaths and a tight grip on his cutlass. "Zounds!" he exclaimed to his lieutenant. "It's impossible for a man to be a pirate in these extortionary times. One can't even afford a plank!"

MANURE SHOWS GREAT VALUE
Where Applied to Clover Fields It Increased Yield Threefold—Phosphorus Helps.

Due to the cool weather of the spring and the freeze which occurred early in the season, the Iowa agricultural experiment station has had an opportunity to show the value of common barnyard manure on clover. It has been found that where manure was added to the fields only once in the rotation the stand has been increased three times over the plots where no manure was used.

Eight tons per acre were added to the manured plots and here the leaf surface and root development are heavier and better. Where phosphorus was added at the same time as manure, plants are even more vigorous and have a greater height.

CARE FOR LATE VEGETABLES
To Store Late Products Nothing More is Required Than Use of Existing Facilities.

The storing of late vegetables is often profitable for those who grow them in sufficient quantities for marketing, giving the grower the direct benefit of the winter price. To care for the surplus vegetables in many cases requires nothing more than the use of existing facilities in the form of a storage room in the basement of a dwelling or under an outbuilding or to build an outdoor cellar of wood or masonry. If permanent facilities are not available, late root crops can be kept in outdoor pits or banks, requiring no cash outfit except for labor.

Help From the Neighbors.
