Brownsville Briefs

The football game Thanksgiving day between Brownsville and Scio teams resulted in an easy victory for the local team, the score standing 30 to 0. The casualties were a cut lip, requiring the surgeon's attention, and four teeth knocked out, for Ray Miller, and a broken or severely injured shoulder for Teck Welch, besides some minor injuries to others.

Our nimrods are bagging quite a number of geese and ducks. One family had three geese for Thanksgiving.

Rev. A. M. McClain is at Waldport this week, assisting the pastor there, Rev. J. Edward Blair, in a series of evangelistic meetings. Mr. McClain will be absent two Sundays. Next Sunday morning our good Methodist brother, Rev. J. W. Craig, will occupy the Presbyterian pulpit, there being no services in the evening. The second Sunday some of the laymen will have charge of the morning service, discussing different phases of church activity. In the evening the county Christian Endeavor workers will conduct the service.

Appropriate Thanksgiving services were held in the Baptist church, participated in by all the resident pastors, with a congregation numbering 80. Rev. A. M. McClain preached the sermon, upon which he received many spoken approvals, and it must have been indorsed by every hearer. The small number present, even though the day was inclement, does not speak very eloquently of a general spirit of Thanksgiving.

A number of new books have recently been added to the public library which will increase the popularity of that institution.

After a long period of illness Mrs. Laura Ambrose passed away early Monday morning from a complication of ailments. For thirty or more years Mrs. Ambrose was a resident of Brownsville and vicinity and enjoyed a very large circle of close personal friends and acquaintances who mourn her going. For many years she was one of the most faithful and efficient members of the Brownsville Presbyterian church. By a supreme effort of the will she was able to attend the church's recent anniversary celebration, much to the enjoyment of herself and friends. Many were her ministries of love and helpfulness whenever there was need and all knew that in Mrs. Ambrose they had a sympathizing friend. Interment was in the Brownsville Masonic cemetery beside the remains of her husband, who preceded her to the other shore several years ago.

Japan Balks

Japan refuses to accept the ratio of naval disarmament proposed by Hughes, and if she sticks to her refusal that will probably "scrap" Harding's association of nations. Without something like article 10 of the other league the association would be held together with nothing more than a rope of sand.

Film Rips Wall From The Average Home

Just what the public would see if a wall could be ripped from the average home is revealed in Goldwyn's production of Rupert Hughes' first story written directly for the screen, "Dangerous Curve Ahead!" which opens at the Rialto theater Friday night. The photoplay is a truthful depiction of the trials, struggles, triumphs and defeats of early married life. And they are presented so truthfully, sympathetically, humanly and humorously that one feels he is really looking on at the household of the Harley Joneses with that obstructing fourth wall knocked out.

Following such a master-picture as "The Old Nest," the new Rupert Hughes photoplay, "Dangerous Curve Ahead!" places its author at the head of the front rank of screen writers.
