The Brownsville council and free library managers are at loggerheads. The library is housed in the best ground floor room of the city hall. A demand that it be moved to some smaller rooms on Pine street, so that the new fire engine could have the large room, was refused by the council, but that body rented the most prominent corner of the room to a real estate agent for $12.50 a month, partitioned it off, and then cut a door so the warmth from the library would go into the office. The library people then locked the door and built bookshelves across it. Now the council has voted down a proposal to give the library a free lease for three years.

When Mrs. Haynes got home from her stay at Mrs. Wheeler's bedside her young son Kenneth, anxious to do something for his stricken great-auntie, scurried around and found some ripe red raspberries and sent a box of the luscious fruit by parcel post on the 12th of December.

SUGAR BEET CULTURE HAS LARGE GROWTH

Farmers Received $99,000,000 for Crop in 1920.

Any Fertile Soil Capable of Producing Good Yields of Other Crops Will, If Properly Handled, Prove Satisfactory.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The sugar-beet industry of the United States produced more than 1,000,000 tons of sugar and the 106 factories, 97 of which were in operation in 15 states, paid American farmers more than $99,000,000 for their beets in 1920.

In a comprehensive new bulletin, No. 995, "The Sugar Beet Industry in the United States" the United States Department of Agriculture says that almost any fertile soil capable of producing good yields of other crops will, if properly handled, produce good sugar beets. This statement, however, is restricted by considerations of climate, moisture, and topography as related to the question of producing enough beets of the requisite sugar content within reasonable hauling distance to maintain a sugar-beet factory.

The bulletin reviews the history of the sugar-beet industry from the first mill, built in 1870 at Alvarado, Cal.; analyzes soil, climatic and topographic requirements; and deals at length with the necessary equipment, best methods of planting and cultivation; the important relation of the sugar-beet to the live stock industry; the management of parallel and rotating crops; the labor problem; insect and disease enemies of sugar beets; and the business of selling beets to the sugar manufacturers. "The successful production of sugar beets on any farm depends to a great extent upon the temperament of the farmer and upon his attitude toward the production of this crop," says the bulletin, adding that the man who handles cows, especially dairy cows, is more inclined to take up the growing of such an intensive crop as sugar beets and is more apt to succeed in this line than the grain or forage crop man.

A list of more than fifty department publications on different phases of the beet-sugar industry is included in the bulletin, which may be had free upon application to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

CLEAN UP ALL GARDEN TRASH

Insects and Disease Spores Live Over Winter in Stalks, Vines and Other Rubbish.

Much of the success of next year's garden depends on cleaning up the trash left from this year's crop, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Insects and disease spores live over the winter in stalks, vines and stubble. Weeds and vegetable debris should be raked into piles and burned or carried off as soon as it is convenient to do so. Pieces of cabbage, carrots, potatoes, and other vegetables which have been left on the ground in the harvest should be raked up and destroyed to avoid attracting insects and rabbits. The rabbits, tempted by these titbits, may remain to bark the fruit trees and damage bushes. Time given to this work at a period of year when other matters are not pressing will be well repaid in the spring and summer.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Stevenson, Sunday, at their home in Portland, a son.

"Partners of the Tide," Irvin V. Willat's latest production, released by Hodkinson, and scheduled to appear as the feature attraction at the Rialto Theater Friday, is a story of the sea adapted from the novel of the same name written by Joseph C. Lincoln. Shipwrecks, daring rescues, a fight between divers inside a ship on the bottom of the sea, and a tender tale of love, have all been combined by Willat into a picture that has real heart interest.

DETERIORATION OF WOODLOTS
There is "Usually Almost No Young Growth of Tree Species Where Pastured Heavily.

Heavy pasturing of farm woods has been one of the chief causes of their deterioration, it has been found by the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture. The severity of damage depends largely upon the number of stock and the make-up of the woods. In heavily pastured woods there is usually almost no young growth of the valuable tree species.

Cattle, horses, sheep, or goats eat young seedlings, particularly the hardwoods, trample them out, or else break them off. Hogs eat some kinds of seed and thus prevent reproduction from starting or root young seedlings out of the ground and sometimes eat the roots.

In those parts of the southern long-leaf pine region where hogs run wild they are known to do a great deal of damage to the seedlings and often damage trees several feet in height. When driven out of the swamps by high water in the late winter and early spring they root up the long-leaf pine seedlings and devour the heavy roots. Observations carried on in Louisiana have shown stands of several thousand long-leaf pine seedlings per acre where protected against hogs and no seedlings on adjacent areas which were unprotected.

Tapioca Cream.
Cover three tablespoonfuls of tapioca with water overnight. Put it into one quart of milk over the fire. When it boils add the yolks of four eggs well beaten, two-thirds of a cupful of sugar and a little salt. Stir until it begins to thicken; beat the whites of the four eggs to a stiff froth; stir the mixture into this. After taking from the fire, flavor with vanilla, pour into a dish and set away to cool.

Eyellet Embroidery.
It is seen again. It is much in vogue for collar and cuffs. It is cool looking and serviceable, and there is a crispness about it, most attractive. It makes an extremely smart gilet for the serge frock.

The Oregon wool and mohair pool has sold 700,000 pounds of these products at an advance of from 2 to 7 cents a pound over the buying price in the state, and the directors, after an examination of the accounts, declare that the overhead expense has been very light. Members are sending in votes by mail on a proposal to change the name to "Pacific Co-operative Wool Growers."
