

SYNOPSIS

4

84 94

CHAPTER 1.-With his grandfather, small Ramsey Milhoiland is watching the "Decoration Day Parade" in the nome town. The old gentieman, a veteran of the Civil war, endeavors to impress the youngster with the significance of the great conflict, and many years afterward the boy was to remember his words with startling vividness.

CHAPTER II.-In the schoolroom, a few years atterward, Ramsey was not distinguished for remarkable ability, though his two pronounced dislikes were arithmetic and "Recitations." In sharp contrast to Ramsey's backwardness is the precedity of little Dora Yocum, a young lady whom in his bitterness he de-nominates "Teacher's Pet."

CHAPTER III.—In high school, where he and Dora are classmates, Ramsey continues to feel that the girl delights to manifest her superiority, and the vindic-tiveness he generates becomes alarming, zuiminating in the resolution that some day he would "show" her.

CHAPTER IV.—At a class picnic Ram-sey, to his intense surprise, appears to attract the favorable attention of Miss Milla Rust, a young lady of about his own age and the acknowledged belle of the class. Milla has the misfortune to fail into a creek while talking with Ram-sey, and that youth promptly plunges to the rescue. The water is only some three feet deep, but Milla's gratitude for his heroic act is embarrassing. He is in fact taken captive by the fair one, to his great consternation.

CHAPTER V.-The acquaintance ripens, Ramsey and Milia openly "keeping com-pany," while the former's parents won-der. His mother indeed goes so far as to express some disapproval of his choice, even hinting that Dora Yocum would be a more suitable companion, a suggestion which the youth receives with horror.

CHAPTER VI.—At this period our hero gets the thrill of his "first kiss," Milla being a very willing partner in the act. Her flippancy over the matter discon-certs Ramsey immensely, but shortly aft-erward the girl departs for a visit to Chicago. She leaves an endearing missive for Ramsey, which adds to his feeling of melancholy.

melancholy. CHAPTER VII.-Shortly after Milla's departure, her friend, Sadie Clews, in-forms Ramsey that his inamorata has been married to her cousin and is not coming back, so that little romance is ended. Within a few months Ramsey and his closest friend, Fred Mitchell, go to the state university, Ramsey's chief feeling being one of relief that he has got away from the detested Dora. To his hor-ror he finds she is also a student at the university. Induced to join a debating society, Ramsey is chosen as Dora's op-porent in a debate dealing with the mat-ter of Germany's right to invade Bel-gium, Dora being assigned the negative side of the argument. Partly on account of his feelings toward Dora, and his nat-ural nervousness, he makes a miserable to the showing made by Ramsey and be-comes personal in his remarks. The mat-ter ends with Ramsey, in the university punch on the smoot."

was bought by Wall Street." "Poor old Prof. Craig!" Colburn laughed. "He gets fifteen hundred a year."

"Yes; I'd heard that myself, and I told Linski, and he said he had an uncle workin' in a steel mill got twice that much, but it didn't make any difference, ole Craig was bought by Wall Street. He said 'capitalism' better look out; he and the foreign-born workmen were goin' to take this country some day, and that was one of the reasons he was after an education. He talked pretty strong pro-German, too-about the war in Europe-but I sort of thought that was more because he'd be pro-anything that he thought would help upset the United States than because he cared much about Germany."

"Yes," said Colburn, "that's how he sounded tonight. I guess there's plenty more like him in the citles, too. That reminds me : I'd better arrange a debate on immigration for the Lumen. We'll put Brother Milholland for the negative, this time."

Ramsey started violently. "See here_"

But the senior reassured him. "Just wanted to see you jump," he explained "Don't fear; you've done your share." "I should think I have!" Ramsey groaned.

"Yes; you won't be called on again this term. By the way," said Colburn thoughtfully, "that was a clever girl you had against you tonight. I don't belleve in pacifism much, myself, but she used it very niftly for her argument. Isn't she from your town, this Miss Yocum?"

Fred nodded.

"Well, she's a clever young thing," sald the senior, still thoughtful. And he added: "Graceful girl, she is."

At this, the roommates looked at him with startled attention. Ramsey was so roused as to forget his troubles and sit forward in his chair. "Yes," said the musing Colburn.

"she's a mighty pretty girl." "What !"

This exclamation was a simultaneous one; the astounded pair stared at him in blank incredulity.

"Why, don't you think so?" Colburn mildly inquired. "She seems to me very unusual looking."

Well, yes," Fred assented, emphat-Ically. "We're with you there !" "Extraordinary eyes," continued Colburn. "Lovely figure, too; altogether a strikingly pretty girl. Handsome, I should say, perhaps. Yes, 'handsome' rather than 'pretty'." He looked up from a brief reverie. "You fellows known her long?"

iwarted Fred. falling back upon this old joke. "Then you can catch it as it bounces off and throw it back at him."

However, Linski proved to be merely an episode, not only so far as Ramsey was concerned but in the Lumen and in the university as well. His suspension from the Lumen was for a year, and so cruel a punishment it oved for this born debater that he noisily declared he would found a debating society himself, and had a poster printed and distributed announcing the first meeting of "The Free Speech and Masses' Rights Coun-Several town loafers attended cil." the meeting, but the only person connected with the university who came was an oriental student, a Chinese youth of almost intrusive amiability. Linski made a flery address, the townsmen loudly applauding his advocacy of an embargo on munitions and the distribution of everybody's "property," but the Chinaman, accustomed to see students so madly in earnest only when they were burlesquing, took the whole affair to be intended humor, and tittered politely without cessationexcept at such times as he thought it proper to appear quite wrung with laughter. Then he would rock himself, clasp his mouth with both hands and splutter through his fingers. Linski accused him of being in the pay of "capital."

Next day the orator was unable to show himself upon the campus without causing demonstrations; whenever he was seen a file of quickly gathering students marched behind him chanting repeatedly and deafeningly in chorus Down with Wall Street! Hoch der Kalser! Who loves Linski? Who, who, who? Hoo Lun! Who loves Linski? Who, who, who? Hoo Lun!" Linski was disgusted, resigned from the university, and disappeared.

"Well, here it isn't midyear Exams yet, and the good ole class of Nineteen-Eighteen's already lost a member," said Fred Mitchell. "I guess we can bear the break-up!"

up;" and another reason may have been a greater shyness than Fred possessed-if. shyness at all. For Fred was a cheery spirit difficult to abash, and by the coming of spring knew all of the bestlooking girl students in the placeknew them well enough, it appeared, to speak of them not merely by their first names but by abbreviations of these. He had become fashion's sprig.

proached his roommate for shunning the ladies. "Well, the truth is, Fred," said Ramsey one day, responding darkly-"well, you see the truth is. Fred. I've had a -a-I've had an experience-a "fusser" and butterfly, and he re-

So, only, did he refer to Milla.

Fred said no more : and it was comprehended between them that the past need never be definitely referred to again, but that it stood between Ramsey and any entertainment to be obtained of the gentler but less trustworthy sex. And when other brethren of the "frat" would have pressed Ramsey to join them in various frivolous enterprises concerning "co-eds," or to be shared by "co-eds," Fred thought it better to explain to them privately (all being sacred among brethren) how Ramsey's life, so far as Girls went, had been toyed with by one now a Married Woman.

This created a great deal of respect for Ramsey. It became understood everywhere that he was a womanhater.

CHAPTER IX.

That early spring of 1915 the two boys and their friends and brethren talked more of the war than they had in the autumn, though the subject was not at all an absorbing one; for the trenches of Flanders and France were still of the immense, remote distance. By no stretch of imagination could these wet trenches be thought greatly to concern the "frat," the Lumen, or the university. Really important matters were the doings of the "Track Team," now training in the "Gym' and on the 'Varsity field, and, more vital still, the prospects of the Nine. But in May there came a shock which hanged things for a time.

The Lusitania brought to every American a revelation of what had ain so deep in his own heart that often he had not realized it was there. When the Germans hid in the sea and sent down the great merchant ship, with American bables and their mothers, and gallantly dying American gentlemen, there came a change even to girls and boys and professors, until then so preoccupied with their own. little aloof world thousands of miles rom the murder.

Eat Our Candy without any injurious effects for it is all made of the purest materials, and is fresh every day. The purity and freshnes of ou confectionery has always been our strong point, and it has always found ready favor with the dy-eating public. Just try a box and be convinced it is the best candy made.

HALSEY ENTERPRISE

ferment.

PAGE 5

Jabbergasted, the "German-Ameriuns" retired; they were confused and disgusted by this higher-up outbreak of unneutrality-it overwhelmed them that citizens of the United States should not remain neutral in the dispute between the United States and Germany. All day the campus was in

At twilight, Ramsey was walking meditatively on his way to dinner at the "frat house," across the campus from his apartment at Mrs. Meigs'.

Everything was quiet now, both town and gown; the students were at their dinners and so were the burghers.

Ramsey was late, but did not quicken his thoughtful steps, which were those of one lost in reverte. He had forgotten that springtime was all about him and, with his head down, walked unregardful of the new gayeties flung forth upon the air by great clusters of flowering shrubs, just come into white

He was unconscious that somebody behind him, going the same way, came hastening to overtake him and called his name, "Ramsey! Ramsey Milholland!" Not until he had been called three times did he realize that he was being hailed-and in a girl's voice!

By that time the girl herself was beside him, and Ramsey halted, quite taken aback. The girl was Dora Yo-

She was pale, a little breathless and her eyes were bright and severe.

"I want to speak to you," she said, quickly. "I want to ask you about

Mitchell are the only people I know in your 'frat' except you, and I haven't seen either of them today, or I'd have omething. Mr. Colburn and Fred blossom and lavender.

Fred Mitchell, ever volatile and generous, was one of those who went quite wild. No orator, he nevertheless made a frantic speech at the week's "frat meetings," cursing the Germans in the simple old English words that their performance had demonstrated to be applicable, and going on to demand that the fraternity prepare for its share in the action of the country. don't care how insignificant we few fellows here tonight may seem," he cried; "we can do our little, and if everybody in this country's ready to do their own little, why, that'll be plenty Brothers, don't you realize that all over the United States tonight the people are feeling just the way we are here? Millions and millions and millions of them! Wherever there's an American he's with us-and you bet your bottom dollar there are just a few more Americans in this country of ours than there are big-mouthed lobsters like that fellow Linski! I tell you, if congress only gives the word, there could be an army of five million men in this country tomorrow, and those dirty baby-killin' dachshunds would hear a word or two from your Uncle Samuel ! Brothers, I demand that some thing be done right here and now, and by us! I move we telegraph the secretary of war tonight and offer him a regiment from this university to go over and help hang their d-n kaiser." The motion was hotly seconded and instantly carried. Then followed a much flustered discussion of the form and phrasing of the proposed tele gram, but, after everything seemed to have been settled, some one ascertained by telephone that the telegraph ompany would not accept messages containing words customarily defined as profane; so the telegram had to be ewritten. This led to further amendment, and it was finally decided to adiress the senators from that state, in stead of the secretary of war, and thus in a somewhat modified form the message was finally dispatched.

FCB. 23 1922

Next day, news of what the "frat" had done made a great stir in the university. Other "frats" sent telegrams so did the "Barbarians," haters of the "frats" but joining them in this; while a small band of "German-American" students found it their duty to go before the faculty and report these "breaches of neutrality." They protested heavily, demanding the expulsion of the "breachers" as disloyal citizens, therefore unfit students, but suffered a disappointment, for the faculty itself had been sending telegrams of similar spirit, addressing not only the senators and congressmen of the state, but the President of the United States.

Most uncomfortably astonished, Ramsey took his hands out of his pock. ets, picked a leaf from a lilac bush beside the path, and put the stem of the leaf seriously into a corner of his mouth, before finding anything to say. 'Well-well, all right," he finally responded. "I'll tell you-if it's any thing I know about."

asked one of them."

cum.

"You know about it," said Dora. "That is, you certainly do if you were at your 'frat' meeting last night. Were you?"

"Yes, I was there," Ramsey answered, wondering what in the world she wanted to know, though he supposed vaguely that it must be some thing about Colburn, whom he had several times seen walking with her. "Of course I couldn't tell you much," he added, with an afterthought. "You see, a good deal that goes on at a 'frat' meeting isn't supposed to be talked about."

"Yes," she said, smiling faintly. though with a satire that missed him. "I've been a member of a sorority since September, and I think I have an idea of what could be told or not told. Suppose we walk on, if you don't mind. My question needn't embarrass you." Nevertheless, as they slowly went on together, Ramsey was embarrassed. He felt "queer." They had known each other so long; in a way had shared so much, sitting daily for years near each other and undergoing the same outward experiences; they had almost "grown up together." yet this was the first time they had ever talked together or walked together. "Well-" he said. "If you want to ask anything it's all right for me to tell you-well, I just as soon, I guess." "It has nothing to do with the secret proceedings of your 'frat,' " said Dora, primly. "What I want to ask about has been talked of all over the place today. Everyone has been saying it was your 'frat' that sent the first telegram to members of the government offering support in case of war with Germany. They say you didn't even wait until today, but sent off a message last night. What I wanted to ask you was whether this story is true or not?" "Why, yes," said Ramsey, mildly. "That's what we did."

CHAPTER VIII.—Dora appears to have made a decided hit with her fellow stu-dents, to Ramsey's supreme wonderment A rumor of his "affair" with the fickle Milla spreads and he gets the reputation of a man of experience and a "woman hater."

CHAPTER VIII.

"The way I look at it, Ramsey," Fred Mitchell said, when they reached their apartment, whither a benevoient senior, Colburn, accompanied them, "the way I look at it, this Linski kind of paid you a compliment, after all, when he called you a fake. He must have thought you anyway looked as if you could make a better speech than you did. Oh. golly !"

And as Ramsey groaned, the jovial Mitchell gave himself up to the divan and the mirth. "Oh, oh, oh, golly !" he sputtered.

Never you mind, Brother Milholland," Colburn said gently. "The Lumen is used to nervous beginners. I've seen dozens in my time, just like you; and some of 'em got to be first rate before they quit. Besides this crazy Linski is all that anybody'll ever remember about tonight's meeting anyhow. There never was any such outbreak as that in my time, and I guess there never was in the whole history of the society. We'll probably suspend him until he apologizes to the society -I'm on the board, and I'm in favor of it. Who is the bird, anyhow? He's in your class,"

"I never saw him before," Ramsey responded from the deep chair, where he had moodily thrown himself; and, returning to his brooding upon his oratory, "Oh, murder!" he moaned.

'Well," said the senior, "you'll know him when you see him again. You put your mark on him where you can see it, all right!" He chuckled. "I suppose I really ought to have interfered in that, but I decided to do a little astronomical observation, about fifty feet away, for a few minutes. I'm 'way behind in my astronomy, anyhow. Do you know this Linski, Brother Mitchell?"

"I've talked to him a couple o' times on the campus," said Fred. "He's in one of my classes. He's about the oldest in our class, I guess-a lot older than us, anyhow. He's kind of an anarchist or something ; can't talk more'n five minutes any time without gettin' off some bug stuff about 'capitalism.' He said the course in political economy was all 'capitalism' and the prof

"You bet !" sald Ramsey.

"She made a splendid impression on the Lumen," Colburn went on. •1 don't remember that I ever saw a first appearance there that quite equaled it. She'll probably have a brilliant career in the society, and in the university. too. She must be a very fine sort of a person." He deliberated within him self a few moments longer, then: realizing that his hosts and brethren did not respond with any heartinessor with anything at all-to the theme he changed it, and asked them what they thought about the war in Europe, They talked of the war drowsily for a while: it was an interesting but not an exciting topic: the thing they spoke of was so far away. After a few moments of fervor, the conversation languished, and Brother Colburn rose to go.

"Well, I'm glad you gave that Linski a fine little punch, Brother Milholland." he said at the door. "It won't do you any harm in the 'frat,' or with the Lumen, either. And don't be discouraged about your debating. You'll learn. Anybody might have got rattled by having to argue against as clever and good-looking a girl as that !" The roommates gave each other a look of serious puzzlement as the door closed. "Well, Brother Colburn is a mighty nice fellow," Fred said. "He's kind of funny, though."

Ramsey assented, and then, as the two prepared for bed, they entered into a further discussion of their senior friend. They liked him "all right," they said, but he certainly must be kind of queer, and they couldn't just see how he had "ever managed to get where he was" in the "frat" and the Lumen and the university.

Ramsey passed the slightly disfigured Linski on the campus next day without betraying any embarrassment or making a sign of recognition. Fred Mitchell told his roommate, chuckling, that Linski had sworn to "get" him. and, not knowing Fred's affiliations, had made him the confidant of his oath. Fred had given his blessing, he said, upon the enterprise, and advised "I guess so," Ramsey assented. "That Linski might just as well stayed here, though."

"Why ?!!

'He couldn't do any harm here. He'll probily get more people to listen to him in cities where there's so many immigrants and all such that new ion't know anything, comin' in all the time

"Oh, well," said Fred. "What do we care what happens to Chicago! Come on, let's behave real wild, and go on over to the 'Teria and get us a couple of egg sandwiches and sassprilly."

Ramsey was willing.

After the strain of the "mid-year Exams" in February, the chums lived free-hearted life. They had settled nto the ways of their world; they had grown used to it, and it had grown used to them; there was no longer any ignominy in being a freshman. They comped upon the campus and sometimes rioted harmlessly about the streets of the town. In the evenings they visited their fellows and brethren and were visited in turn; horseplay prevailed, but collegiate gossip had its turn, and sometimes they looked so far ahead as to talk vaguely of their plans for professions or businessthough to a freshman this concerned an almost unthinkably distant pros pect. "I guess I'll go in with my father, in the wholesale drug business," said Fred. "My married brother already is in the firm, and I suppose they'll give me a show-send me out on the road a year or two first, maybe, to try me. Then I'm going to marry some little cutle and settle down. What you goin' to do, Ramsey? Go to law school, and then come back and go in your father's office?"

"I don't know. Guess so."

It was always Fred who did most of the talking; Ramsey was quiet. Fred told the "frat seniors" that Ramsey was "developing a whole lot these days;" and he told Ramsey himself that he could see a "big change" in him, adding that the improvement was probably due to Ramsey's having passed through "terrible trials like that debate."

Ramsey kept to their rooms more than his comrade did, one reason for Linski to use a brick. "He'll hit you this domesticity being that he "had on the head with it," said the light- to study longer than Fred did, to keep

Stewart & Price Confectionery

New Wash Goods for Spring

WE HAVE OBTAINED a bountiful stock of Spring Wash Goods. These materials are suitable for making dresses, waists, skirts and other wash garments.

Prices are lower than usual, and we welcome a quality comparison of our wash materials with any similar goods, regardless of price.

A Few of the New Season's Favored Weaves

Beaded Voile. similar to finer grades of Silk Tissue Ginghams in a variety of imported swisses, dots, checks and figures. Yard, 15c.

vard.

cloors in 36-inch, at, the yard, 50c. -

M. V. KOONTZ @

"Humming Bird" silk Hosiery, all colors. "It wears."

She uttered an exclamation, a sound of grief and of suspicion confirmed. "Ah! I was afraid so!"

"'Afraid so?' What's the matter?" he asked, and because she seemed excited and troubled, he found himself not quite so embarrassed as he had been at first; for some reason her agitation made him feel easier. "What was wrong about that?"

"Oh, it's all so shocking and wicked and mistaken !" she cried. "Even the faculty has been doing it, and half the other 'frats' and sororities! And it was yours that started it."

"Yes, we did," he said, thoroughly puzzled. "We're the oldest 'frat' here, and of course"-he chuckled modestly -"of course we think we're the best. Do you mean you believe we ought to've sat back and let somebody else start it?"

"Oh, no !" she answered, vehemently. "Nobody ought to have started It! That's the trouble; don't you see? If nobody had started it none of it might have happened. The rest mightn't have caught it. It mightn't have got into their heads. A war thought is the most contagious thought in the world; but if it can be kept from starting, it can be kept from being conta ous. It's just when people have got 11 emotional state, or a state ... dering rage, that everylody ought be so terribly careful not to think war thoughts or make war speeches-or send war telegrams! I thought-oh,

I was so sure I'd convinced Mr. Colburn of all this, the last time we talked of it! He seemed to under stand, and I was sure be age as vil

Dress Ginghams in a large assortment of new patterns, 27- to 32-inch, at 20. 25, 30c Japanese Crepe, the real imported ar-ticle, in eleven colors, yard, 40c.

Drapery in many new colors and bean-tiful designs, priced 25 to 40e the Indian Head, in 36-, 44- and 54-inch, and