Love and Youth

"Number, Please?" the newest Harold Lloyd comedy, is the old. old story of youth and love. When you are extremely young and very much in love, and your girl frowns upon you and smiles upon your rival, what is life worth?

Harold Lloyd, aided and abetted by Mildred Davis, Roy Brooks, Sunshine Sammy and several dogs, a goat and an amusement park, will relate the amusing story at the Rialto theater Friday night.

GROWING SEASON FOR MANY CROPS

Hotbeds and Cold Frames Enable Gardener to Protect Plants From Weather.

OPERATIONS STARTED EARLIER

Beds May Be Utilized Throughout Spring and Summer-They Are Inexpensive and Easily Operated-Ventilation Essential.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Hotbeds and cold frames enable the home gardener to lengthen the growing season for his crops. With them he can start his operations a few weeks in advance of the last chilly days of spring, before which it is not possible to plant out of doors. Throughout the spring and summer these beds may be utilized, and after the first fall frost they furnish protection for late vegetables. They are inexpensive and easily operated, say garden specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Making a Hotbed Sash. Standard hotbed sash are 3 by 6 feet, and it is customary to make a home garden hotbed with one, two, or more sash, according to the size of bed desired. Select a well-protected and thoroughly-drained spot, dig a pit 12 to 18 inches deep and a little larger than the bed is to be made. Throw the good top soil to one side. For a two-sash bed about one good wagonload of fresh horse-stable manure will be required. The manure should be thrown in a flat pile a few feet away from where the bed is to constructed and the pile turned about twice at intervals of three or four days. As it is turned the outer portion of the pile is thrown to the middle and the inner portion to the outside, in order to get uniform heating throughout. Then put the manure into the pit, each forkful being shaken to break it apart and spread it evenly. It should be well tramped. Put a layer about 3 inches deep, then another layer, treading each until the pit has been filled level with the ground. It should be just moist enough to pack reasonably solid, but springy under the feet. The frame of the bed, made of wood, is then set on top of the manure and the earth from the bottom of the pit banked up outside of the frame to keep out the cold. The north side of the frame should be 6 inches higher than the south side. The good soil from the surface of the pit is spread op to mix a little well-rotted manure with Put the sash on and leave the bed to heat for several days. First the manure will become very hot, then after two or three days it will gradually cool. The temperature will then remain more moderate. No seeds

the packed manure. It is a good plan should be planted until the temperature of the soil has fallen below 85 degrees. Use a thermometer, the bulb of which is buried about 3 inches deep in the soil. Feeling the bed with the hand is not a reliable method of taking the temperature. Have a piece of old carpet or a burlap mat to throw over the sash for protection on extremely cold nights.

Hotbeds must be watched during bright weather to prevent them becoming too warm, as the sun shining directly on the glass soon brings the temperature above that suitable for the growing of plants.

Ventilation is provided by propping the sash up at one side or the other according to the direction of the wind. Have the wind blow over the opening and not directly into the bed. Cold frames are hotheds minus artificial heat—simply sash-covered frames with no pit under them but banked up on the outside to keep out the cold. They are useful for growing plants that have been started in hotbeds, and for hardening plants to get them in condition to plant in the garden. Sometimes a bed about 121/2 feet in length covered by four regular hotbed sash is divided into two parts, one part being made into a hotbed and the other a cold frame. This is an excellent arrangement and one that is not expensive.

Moth-Eaten Fire Department of Essex, Eng., Rebels at Efforts Made to Modernize It-Firemen Are All Volunteers.

Harlow, Eng.-This little Essex village has been for weeks the scene of a political upheaval sufficiently comic serve as the plot for a Gilbert and Sullivan opera. The villain is the chairman of the Parish council, who has been investigating the village "fire department" for the purpose of reorganization, and the hero. Sam Deards, octogenarian, captain of the fire brigade.

Until recently the village fire fighting apparatus was scattered around in various parts of the parish, a hose and ladder in one place, another set somewhere else, while each member of the volunteer brigade kept his helmet on his hall hatrack,

This arrangement is bejor disturbed by the chairman of the council, who is out for the latest thing in municipal administration and wants "centralization." He decided to round up all the apparatus and put it under one roof in the Central Fire station. the dignified name given a small shed. But Captain Deards very strongly objected. Under the old regime he kept a ladder and length of hose in his back garden, thus insuring his prompt attendance at any fire in his end of the village. The Central Fire station is a good half-mile from his house, and with the burden of eighty feel like running that distance every time there is an alarm. Judging from the evidence of Colenan, chairman of the council, Harlow must be an exciting place when there is a fire. Not long ago, he says, there was a fire in the vicarage when "the hose was leaking all over the place and there were serious misgivings as to whether it would not burst." Again, at one storehouse where some of the fire brigade's appliances were kept, the council's investigating committee
