AN "ECONOMIST"

Charles Childs is one of the republican candidates for the legislative assembly from Linn County. With three candidates he came out second in the primaries, running behind Mr. Ach-son. They too will probably be elected, for such is party govern-ment. Previously to the primaries the Oregon Voter, indorsing him, gave a sketch of his record in the house of which he has been a member longer than anybody else—long enough to know better than to do some of the things he does.

He and his wife get $8 a day during the sessions, and no doubt she is worth it, for she is a woman of ability.

The Voter says that Childs built up a reputation as a fighter of extravagance, so much so that he has been kept on the ways and means committee since 1917. Does anybody notice that extravagance has been pre-vented and taxes lessened since 1917 by this fighter of extrava-gance on the ways and means committee?

When his legislative career began Oregon was attractive to im-migrants because taxes were low and the state was out of debt. Now they are repelled by the facts that taxes on farms are equal to their rental value, or more, and the state groans under a bonded debt that coming gen-erations will have to carry.

As a member of the ways and means committee the Voter says "he must bear his share of the blame in 1921 session for bring-ing in appropriation bills provid-ing $2,200,000 for purposes new and different from those covered in 1919 session; also for bring-ing in bills so late that no mem-bar could accomplish any thing in attempting to reduce this total.

In 1917, when he was a re-puted fighter of extravagance, he opposed the original $6,000,000 road bonding bill; since then he came around to the support of road bonds amounting to many more millions and got a salaried position under the highway com-mission, thus diverting some of the proceeds of those bonds into his own pocket. What brought about this conversion? Did he, like Saul of Tarsus, see a bright light, and did it emanate from the great American dollar?

He voted for the straight ticket bill, which would have en-abled the boss of a gang of igno-rant men to vote them for the party without their knowing what were the men or measures they voted for. And he became the boss of a gang of men.

He voted for the anti-injunction bill, which would have prevented courts from restraining the picketing strikers who were assaulting, maiming and murdering workers during the longshoremen's strike in Portland recently.

He voted for more salary in-crease bills than he opposed. He introduced but failed to pass the moving picture censor-ship graft.

He is evidently an extrava-gance fighter, but on which side does he fight?

The foregoing is not written with any idea of prejudicing Mr. Childs' prospect of re-election, for he has the republican nomination and that in this case is equivalent to election. We merely state the facts so that our readers may see what to expect.

It was not ability, but length of supposed service, that put the man on the ways and means committee, where a person with force of char-acter might have influenced finan-cial legislation in the interest of taxpayers. The apathy of the voters is responsible for the burden of taxation they carry.

President Harding's demand that congress pass the tariff and ship subsidy bills before it adjourns and that it give those measures precedence over the bonus bill constitutes fair notice that he has begun to exercise his functions as leader of the republican party. It is high time.—Oregonian.

Since he was one of the republic-an members of the senate who as-sailed Wilson for "dictation" of legislation he has learned several things from his new standpoint as president. And the newly-acquired knowledge leads him to follow the example which he once con-temned, "A wise man sometimes changes his mind; a fool never."

More and more it becomes evi-dent that the public attitude to moving pictures has changed, with good effect. Instead of a train of divorces, remarriages and scandalous escapades making an actor more desirable as an attrac-tion, as once was the case, the loudly immoral are being driven from the stage by loss of patron-age.

Last week two proprietors of a hotel at Seattle were sentenced to one and two years respectively in prison for selling liquor, and on the same day a Portland bootlegger chose a jail sentence in lieu of a $250 fine. It looks as though pro-hibition would prohibit those fellows from liquor selling for a while.

Some people say that the $150,000 that Pinchot's victory in the Pennsylvania primaries cost him was too much. Well, now, was'nt it just as legitimate and as "necessary" as Newberry's $190,000 which the United States senate approved without batting an eye?

The shriners had their parade in a rainstorm in San Francisco last week. They might better have had their gathering in western Oregon, where the weather was fine—likewise the water.

The way the bonus to ships that run saloons is being steam-rolled through congress ought to dry the tears of sympathetic democrats who fear the G. O. P. machine is disin-tegrating.

The latest flapper to startle an already gasping world wears a thimble on her finger in public.—Junction City Times.

Funeral services for Barbara Church, 7-year-old daughter of E. L. Church and wife, were held Tuesday morning at the Methodist church. Rev. Mr. Morris officiated.

Miss Elaine Woodworth returned Monday evening from Lacombe, where she had been for a week.

Among Brownsville people who attended the B. Y. P. U. confer-ence were Cecil Harrison and daughter Edna, Mrs. Florence Harrison, Mrs. Lawrence, Mrs. Hazel Moyer and Rev. M. S. Woodworth and children, Valorus and Carmelita.

Mrs. Lilah Hannah spent picnic week in this city as the guest of her parents, W. A. Harrison and wife.

Misses Peggy Irene Harrison and Edna Haverland have returned from Scio, where they had been visiting for several days.

Mrs. Sam Wilson of Oregon City is here as the guest of her sister, Mrs. S. B. Sawyer.

Miss Claudia Householder of Roseburg is being entertained at the home of her sister, Mrs. Louis Howe.

Brownsville's pioneer picnic was again a success. There were at large number of out-of-town visitors and the attendance was good. An excellent program was presented each day of the celebration. One of the best features of the affair was the speech by Senator Sam Garland on the first day.

The American Legion success-fully staged the "Battle of Big Meadows." The performance was very realistic and the fireworks attracted a great deal of attention.

Robert McFarland fell from a cherry tree and was seriously in-jured. He was attempting to catch hold of a swing rope, but miscalculated the distance incorrectly and fell. Physicians say he will recover.

The following items went astray in the mails last week and reached this office, with the envelope stamped "Missent," after the Enterprise had gone to press:

A number of Brownsville people attended the strawberry fair at Lebanon, June 9 and 10, and pro-nounced it better than usual.

Mrs. K. G. Turner attended commencement at O. A. C. She was accompanied home by her daughter, Miss Margaret Turner, who will spend a short vacation here.

Miss Elaine Woodworth left Mon-day for a visit at Lacombe. She will be the guest of Rev. Mr. Boyce.

Brownsville will not have a can-ery this year, owing to the fact that Oren Stratton, the main fruit-grower of this section, has contract-ed his berries to Eugene. With-out this large share of produce it is doubtful as to whether the can-ery could succeed.

Misses Hulda Hammond, Evelyn Schildmeyer, Jessie Pyburn and Dorothy McCollum went to Cor-vallis to remain at O. A. C. for two weeks as representatives of the canning club here, and to receive useful instructions in cooking, etc.

Mrs. W. C. Cooley is spending the vacation at Seaside.

Miss Shirley Hemenway of Cres-well came as the guest of Mrs. Hazel Moyer during the pioneer picnic.

No party ever dared to nominate or bring forward any man but an honest man for president.—Lady Astor.

America consumed a dollar's worth of beet sugar per head of population last year. One-fourth of that dollar was due to the customs tariff.

Cave Man Stuff

Back in the beginning of things our prehistoric forbears would have perished from the earth had they not understood the science of reading advertising. The cavemen didn't know much about underwear, hair tonic or phonographs, but they did have to eat. The one who could follow the tracks of the game he hunted or read the meaning of a twisted leaf or broken twig was best off in life. Then, as now, the most constant reader of advertising was best dressed, best fed and most contented. There has been something of an evolution in advertising in the last few thousands of years, but the principle is just the same. The consistent reader of the advertisements is invariably best informed on what to eat and where to get it, what to wear and how much to pay for it, what to do and how to do it. He's up on the most important things in life. Consequently he gets most from life. Throughout the ages advertising has done much to make life liveable and pleasant. We owe it much.
