Mrs. G. Mitzner visited the county seat Monday.

Mrs. Andrew Brown visited her parents at Shedd Tuesday.

Frank Kirk's house on First street is receiving a new coat of paint.

Gordon, four-year-old son of Ned Callaway of Brownsville, died last week.

Charles Gibson returned Tuesday from Portland, where he had taken a load of cattle.

Richard Sanders of Brownsville is building a home on the crest of Holloway Heights.

There were about 200 in the parade at the Brownsville Sunday school picnic Sunday.

Rev. C. T. Cook preached the opening sermon of the Shedd revival series week Wednesday.

Olaf Nelson climbed the 100-foot flagpole at the picnic grounds at Brownsville and made possible the raising of the flag.

H. B. Suiker has given up the Simon place near Taugent and the family has moved to a home near Peoria.

Douglas Taylor returned Saturday evening from Spokane, where he attended the funeral of his brother, B. J. Taylor.

G. W. Mornhinweg and wife, accompanied by Mrs. Hazel Wallace and children, arrived Saturday evening from Newborg. Mrs. Wallace and children will reside here.

Miss Cecile Mayberry is waiting on customers in Stewart & Price's confectionery while Dillard Price is assisting in the harvest.

Clayton Gaub and Marvin McMurphy arrived Friday evening from California to spend the harvest here. They are employed by O. F. Neal.

Whether you buy at home or at the county seat, you will do the Enterprise a good turn if you deal with those who advertise in its columns and tell them so.

Since he bought his residence Dr. Marks has had carpenters, painters, etc., at work remodeling, sandpapering, painting, etc., to the tune of some $500, and the end is not yet.

John Standish spent Friday afternoon in a hay field and came home with blistered hands and nicely sun-burned. He reports that he prefers "the black art" to hay making.

So large a crowd attended the funeral of Sheriff Kendall at Albany Saturday that the sermon preached in the church was repeated outside to those who could not get in.

It is not at Turner, as erroneously stated last week, but at Marion, in Marion county, a much larger town, that Mr. Cornelius, formerly railroad agent here, is stationed, and it was to that town that he moved his family last week.

The Brownsville prohibitionists ask Governor Olcott to use the power of the state to suppress the moonshining in Linn county which has come into the spotlight as a result of the murder of Kendall and Healy.

The flouring mills at Brownsville, having been strengthened at the bottom by a lot of concrete work, have been repainted. Mills & Son, the owners, have surely contributed their part to the advancement of the town.

Amos Ramsay unloaded an up-to-date thrasher and engine at the depot Monday. It made a good carload. It has been used one season in eastern Oregon, where big harvesting machinery is more common than here. Shining in new paint it looks like new and is said to be as good. Its mouth beats Slim Jim's, being three feet wide, and looks as though it could "chaw" a lot of grain in a day. It is a 36-60 separator.

Dr. and Mrs. Garnjobst's on Tuesday took Mrs. Garnjobst's sister, Mrs. John F. Dora, to Albany, on the way to her home in Seattle, after a visit with the doctor's family.

This is the automobile season of the year and dealers recognize the Enterprise as a good medium through which to reach buyers in one of the most prosperous sections of the United States. Foote Bros. of Halsey, the Albany Tire and Service station, Vick Brothers and Morton & Dawson of Albany and the Fisk tire makers are represented in our columns this week.

Did the spectacle of an unspeakably cruel Russian count killing pigeons for sport in the "Foolish Wives" play at the Rialto Friday increase your admiration for the noble sport of hunting and shooting living things? Did it make the game commission's pet, the professional sportsman, seem more godlike than the "pot hunter" who kills an animal to feed his family?

Mr. Barteher of the Albany Furniture Exchange, which frequently advertises in the Enterprise, comes naturally and hereditarily to the furniture business, it seems. An Albany paper points out that the first specimen of the well-known piece of furniture called the Davenport was invented and manufactured by Mr. Barteher's grandfather.

The scope of the Enterprise is wide. Perhaps some would-be wit will say it's a scattergun. Last week there was an article on the first page about spirits and devils and this week there is a story on pages 2 and 8 about an angel boy.

Our angel is very unconventional, though, for he plays circus, rolls in the mud and keeps a dog. He must be an earthly angel, for the Bible says of heaven: "There shall be no dog there."

Rev. J. W. Craig of Brownsville has picked fifteen gallons of cherries from one of the trees in his garden, with more to come, and he has enabled the Enterprise people to testify, from experimental knowledge, that they are of excellent quality.

He has taken the oath of office and it's Sheriff Dunlap now and Miss Amy Rose is his deputy.

The widow of David West of Plainview, who killed Kendall and Healy and himself, gets all his estate under a will made sixteen years ago.

Brownsville caterpillars are reported to be eating poison cats.

Mrs. Joseph Drinkard went home to Portland Monday after her visit at the home of her son, J. W. Drinkard.

J. W. Drinkard and wife, accompanied by Miss Alberta Kooz and Mrs. Edith Robnett, drove to Albany Friday night and attended the concert given by Mr. and Mrs. George Hotchkiss Street of Portland.

Thrashing wages and prices in Linn county for this year will be the same as last season.

Mr. and Mrs. Bond, from near Lewiston, Idaho, arrived Friday for a visit with the former's brother, Milton Bond, and sister, Mrs. Berry Cummings.

Probably the barbers' union did not instigate the sermon to be preached at the Christian church Sunday evening. Who knows but the talk may apply to those outside.

Halsey girls who are having their hair "bobbed"?

J. W. Moore and wife were in Albany yesterday.

E. B. McKinney of Eugene was in Halsey on business Wednesday.

Miss Agnes Struthers of Hartdale, Wash., visited at the Hutton home Wednesday.

Mrs. L. E. Walton and son James Rector returned home from a visit to Portland yesterday.

C. H. Koontz took a carload of Scouts to Lake Ogle last evening for a swim.

D. S. McWilliams and family, accompanied by C. P. Stafford and wife, were Sodalville visitors Sunday.

R. B. Mayberry and family, accompanied by Mrs. Mayberry's sister, Mrs. Stewart, and daughter of Albany spent Sunday with other picnickers at Waterloo.

A telegram from Miss Cleona Smith, who is visiting friends at Pomeroy, Wash., states that she expects to remain there a little longer.

Miss Geraldine Cook is expected home from Independence today. Her father, Rev. C. T. Cook, went for her in his car.

No Charivari
Homer Mornhinweg's bride was Miss Beth Allen of Tacoma. When the pair got home to Shedd their residence was not ready for occupancy, so they went to the boarding house and there was no charivari.

Not a cow bell was heard, not a tin pan note.
As Homer returned to Shedd married.
Not a firecracker holder discharged a shot.
As the pair to the boarding house hurried.

Jud Tunkins.
Jud Tunkins says an envious man suffers so much that while you can't admire him you've got to sympathize with him.

Dr. E. W. Barnum, dentist, at Hotel Halsey every Tuesday and Friday.

Sixteen human beings died a violent death because they chose to exercise their right of working where they pleased when they pleased for a wage satisfactory to them. Murder never has been, is not now and never will be a justifiable method of settling disputes between labor and capital. —Albany Herald.

The still of the moonshiner drips a deadlier concoction than any liquor, however vicious. It drips despite of law and anarchy and death. Such has ever been the product of the distillery, but now that the still itself is outlawed there exists no reason in law or conscience why this should be. And very far from being an argument against prohibition, the Plainview murders and suicide serve as reminders of the spleen and passion that are associated with liquor. —Portland Oregonian.

Another "Farm Bloc" Victory
Judge Skipworth is of the same opinion as Judge Kelly that it is illegal for county courts to accommodate the state highway commission by taking market road funds from their intended use and putting them into the Pacific highway.

Lane county tried to divert $43,000 in that way by the subterfuge of designating a portion of the highway a market road, but Skipworth says the legislature made it a state highway and the county has no power to make it a county road.
It looks as though there is some hope, after all, for roads that will help farmers and attract settlers and build up the state. Abolish the commissions.

Sport bath her casualties no less than war. Darrell Lobb, 10-year-old spectator at a baseball game at West Seattle, was instantly killed by a batted ball which hit him on the head last Tuesday.

THE ENTERPRISE does not carry advertisements to as many homes as are reached by some papers that are published in larger cities than Halsey, but it carries them into a list of homes that cannot be reached by any other publication or combination of publications.

Its circulation is largely in the homes of prosperous farmers in the fertile Willamette valley—farmers whose trade is worth while to advertisers. Wise business firms, whose shrewd management has made them prosperous, advertise in its columns because it pays them to do so. If it did not they would not keep it up for years, as many of them have done.

The local newspaper that is watched for every week and eagerly read when it arrives carries the advertiser's message more effectively than any circular or any metropolitan publication could do. And in these modern days, when the announcements are changed frequently, they constitute as interesting news as social gossip and are read in the homes with as much avidity.

The quantity of local news which we publish is evidence of the cordial co-operation of the people of the community. Without that it would be impossible to make the Enterprise as good a local newspaper as it is.

The publishers are gratified by this attitude of the people toward their venture and are thankful for their help. We hope to deserve and receive a continuation of these evidences of good will. Tell us the news and we will tell it to all our readers.
