Among those who went to Newport Saturday and returned Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, Harry Sprenger and family and Mrs. Pennell and children.

Mrs. Florence Harrison of Brownsville, who has been taking care of Mrs. H. Mornhinweg, left Saturday. Mrs. Dawson is taking her place.

Six presidents of the United States have died in the office—half of them by the bullets of assassins.

Coolidge's father is a notary public and he administered to his son the oath of office as president of the United States in their home at Plymouth, Vt.

A NEW EXPLANATION

Here is an extract from an address recently delivered at the Institute of Hygiene:

"Children are not really greedy; they are simply improperly fed. That is why boys rob orchards—in order to get the vitamins that the whole organism is screaming out for."

Perhaps, suggests the London Post, that is why Eve gave way in the Garden of Eden!

The Nation Mourns

The shock with which the news of President Harding's death was received Thursday night was greater than that when Garfield died, for he was known to be well on the way to recovery from the intestinal and lung troubles which had interrupted his excursion.

In Garfield's case the people were more apprehensive, for it was known that the patient's strength was failing, notwithstanding the fact that his physicians were designating as "laudable pus" the suppuration from the festering wound that was eating his life away.

A stroke of apoplexy such as ended Mr. Harding's life comes instantly and without warning, irrespectively of whether the victim is feeble or apparently in the most robust health.

Mr. Harding's special train was converted into a funeral outfit and his remains were carried to Washington, where obsequies were observed yesterday.

Final ceremonies and interment will be at his home town of Marion, O., tomorrow.

Everyone lauds the bravery of the widow, whose whole life was wrapped up in the husband of whom she has always seemed so proud. Dry eyed, she has sat in the funeral car on its long journey, the object of a nation's reverent sympathy, which will follow her in her desolate home.

I was at Washington, when she resigned the corpse to the government for the funeral, that her grief for the first time found vent in tears.

Eighty-First Birthday.

Wednesday afternoon and evening at the home of Mrs. H. M. Miller was the occasion of a reception given by Miss Beulah Miller in honor of her mother's 81st birthday. Many friends were present and she was the recipient of dainty gifts and flowers. Ice cream and cake were served.

Forty friends and relatives participated. From out of town were Mr. and Mrs. A. Randall, Mrs. S. Gamber and Daisy Buckner of Albany, Mrs. L. E. Eskrine of Portland and Mrs. J. Hudson of Pullman, Wash.

CONTROLS RADIATOR TEMPERATURE

By a newly devised combination of automobile radiator shutter and an automatic control, described in Popular Mechanics Magazine, the shutter opens when the water becomes too warm and closes as it cools.

They Found a Market

(Junction City Times)

About 12 years ago the OACO orchards on the hillsides just outside the limits of Monroe came into existence. At a recent meeting of the directors at which conditions were discussed it was found that the future looked more promising than ever before. Practically the entire yield this year has been contracted for delivery to Shreveport, Louisiana. Last year the pear crop was marketed in 16 different states, thus giving Monroe a wide range of publicity.

If one were to take a stroll about the orchards these days he would find manager Hibbs with a crew of men busily engaged in putting braces under the pear trees in order that the heavy crop may not injure the trees. Mr. Hibbs says the crop is one of the biggest and best ever seen in the west.

Could You Guess Better?

Fifteen Oregon dairymen who had done no testing of their cows were asked to select their best five cows. The herds ranged from 10 to 25 cows each. They were tested for one year. Milk weights were taken one day per month and tests made. At the end of the year it was found that not a single one had selected his best five cows. In one case the cow selected by the owner as the best one turned out to be next to the poorest. In the 25-cow herd the one thought to be the best was found to be in the sixteenth place.

An experienced dairyman in a big dairy country recently stated that when buying cows by their appearance, he found that three out of five were not worth the feed they ate. He doubts if he can see clear thru the cow into the milk pail.

How about you? Or have you discarded that system for a real record of production? Or if you have not, would you like to start such a record?

ENGLISH INNS ODDLY NAMED

Distinctions Made Centuries Ago Are Retained by Proprietors of Public Resorts Today.

When Judge Cheney and wife were traveling in Scotland and the north of England a few years ago, Mrs. Cheney made notes of some of the quaint names of the inns in the countryside towns. Centuries ago when the common folk could not read, the signs contained gayly painted pictures of animals and birds which every one could understand, underneath which the artist printed their names. Mrs. Cheney made a memorandum of many of these names in her notebook and here are some of them:

Buffalo Head, Red Lyon, Sow and Pig, Adam and Eve, Coach and Horses, Tiger's Head, Wheat Sheaf, Rose and Crow, Live and Let Live, Chequers, Three Pigeons, Trowel and Hammer, Cross Hands Inn, Star and Garter, Dog and Duck, Eagle and Child, The White Hart, Red Cow, Black Boy, Cock and Bull, Two Horses, Pig in the Pound, Swan and Castle, Dog and Partridge, Seven Stars.—Los Angeles Times.

THE KIANG OF TIBET

The opening up of mysterious Tibet as a result of various expeditions by the British and others has awakened the interest of naturalists in the Tibetan animals, a number of which are peculiar to that lofty region. Among these, one of the most remarkable is the kiang, an animal intermediate between the wild horse and the wild ass. It is described as standing about thirteen hands high at the shoulder, its color a bright red bay, the muzzle, underparts and legs dazzling white. It is confined to the central desert of Tibet, where in the winter it develops a coat as thick and rough as a dog's mat.

Brownsville Briefs

(By Ralph Lawrence)

Mrs. C. J. Howe and daughter Emma returned from Columbia City, Saturday.

Gladys Hoy is spending the week with the Burson family, while her folks are at Corvallis.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Dawson and daughter, Evelyn, were down to visit relatives the latter part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoy took their little daughter, Myra, to Corvallis to have her tonsils removed. A short time ago Myra was operated on for appendicitis at the same place.

The "younger set" at Ash Swale had a party, Saturday night in the play-shed at the schoolhouse. About forty were present. A good time was reported.

Mrs. Peter O'Mara and daughter Esther have returned from Wisconsin, where they have been visiting in their former home. They say Oregon looks best to them.

The statement that Rev. Mr. Woodworth was back from California was a mistake. He is still at Palo Alto and says nothing of returning soon. [The Enterprise took a report of Mr. Woodworth's return from a letter in an Albany paper.]

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harrison motored to Scio to visit at the George Rodgers home, returning Sunday. Recently Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers took a boy and girl, from the Boys and Girls' Aid society at Portland, into their home to raise.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fee and daughters Zeta, and Margaret, and Mr. and Mrs. Ira Lawrence and little daughter, LaNeve all of Lebanon, spent Sunday at the J. C. Harrison home. Mr. Lawrence and Mrs. Fee are relatives of Mrs. Harrison.

Mrs. Vivian Shaffer of Pacific Grove, Cal., has been visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. C. Harrison, while here, they and Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Harrison went to Moyer's mill to gather wild blackberries and hazel nuts. They were gone two days and came back with both nuts and berries. Tuesday Mrs. Shaffer returned to Lebanon, to visit relatives for a few weeks before returning home.

The W. C. T. U. picnic will be tomorrow.

Claude Michel has gone to Coburg, where he has employment.

Mrs. F. M. Tindle, who fell and broke her leg some time ago is slowly recovering.

Rev. A. M. McClain, formerly pastor of the Presbyterian church at South Brownsville, is now pastor at Waldport.

Dr. Garnjobst's Brownsville office is still open, with Mrs. E. E. Stanard, nurse, in charge and the doctor paying it a daily visit.

Brownsville, Fairmount and Charity granges had a joint picnic at the Brownsville park Sunday, in which seventy-five or eighty people participated.

Miss Sarah Kirk died last week Tuesday, aged 65. She was a member of the numerous pioneer Kirk family and was very well known.

Charles Poole and family of Lebanon have gone east for a vacation. Before going Mr. Poole sold his Brownsville undertaking business to Delbert Starr, his only competitor in that field.

Brownsville Boy Scouts did not go to the Fish Lake encampment, as had been proposed. Leslie Haskin, photographer and botanical enthusiast, went to teach the scouts about the floral beauties of the region.

Last Sunday a group of families united to celebrate the birthdays of C. H. Bradfield, Erwin Austin. Miss Bertha
