Festus J. Wade Says Anarchy Disappears With the Development of Thrift.
 When the savings pass-book comes into a man's life to stay the red flag goes out. What the country needs is to bring about a condition whereby the man who works with his hands shall take the same interest in his affairs as the capitalist does in his. Probably the best way to do this would be to turn the workman into a capitalist. And this is exactly what he becomes when he saves his money and builds up a reserve fund. He remains a capitalist as long as he holds on to that money. The satisfaction of seeing his money reserve mount up will discourage the waster to take a layoff now and then. It will encourage him to work a full six-day week and thereby increase the labor hours applied to production.
 The American people can solve any problem they set themselves to. We provided for a sound currency when the greenbackers and inflationists were routed and the gold basis established. The Federal Reserve Bank was established and solved a problem for which most people thought there was no solution. A number of years ago, when there was a crisis or when a bank failed, we all used to shut up our vaults tight and let nothing get out. Instead of bettering conditions we made them worse. Now if failures occur few people, except those directly interested, are disturbed.
 Perhaps the most important problem of all right now is to do away with labor waste. It never can be done by preaching, by agitation or by force. It can be done by selling the workman on the idea of becoming a capitalist. This can be brought about by the right kind of bank advertising. Who is there to say that an advertising dollar bringing about this result would not be a constructive dollar?—Festus J. Wade.

 The Times had a pretty good snake story last week and unlike many snake stories it has the earmarks of truth. W. C. Elmore and C. B. Tycey and their wives and at least one of the Elmore boys were enjoying the great outdoors at Canyonville, together with L. D. Tycey of Oakland, Cal., son of the Tyceys and brother of Mrs. Elmore. An Elmore youngster who, free from the superstition which causes most humans to hate and fear all snakes, had been amusing himself by picking up garter snakes by the tail, made a jump to do the same with a six-foot rattlesnake. His uncle saw it and set a dog on the reptile which distracted its attention from the boy till Mr. Elmore was able to shoot it. The boy had a narrow escape from snake bite.
 Dean Tycey has gone to Oakland, Cal., to take a situation with an electric plant.

AGE OF DISCOVERY
 An ancient Roman temple to Adonis has been uncovered by delvers from the Armenian Boy Scouts near Beirut, Syria. The exact location is at Kassaba. That sounds more like a place where they cut melons. Fancy finding a temple to Adonis at Kassaba! But the archeologists and other explorers are making some wonderful discoveries of late. They claim to have found one of the "Keep Off the Grass" signs that Nebuchadnezzar had on his lawn.
FARMS IN NEW YORK CITY
 New York city, with its vast area of 300 square miles, still includes a good many farms, according to the last census. They number 800 in all, comprising about 20,000 acres. But this number is less than half the number of farms in the city 20 years ago, says the Outlook. The value of the 800 farms is more than $35,000,000, of which only about one-ninth is credited to buildings. Another generation will doubtless see the transformation of most of these farms into city lots.

 The class colors are black and orange
 Next Saturday the Sophomores will give a party for the initiation of the freshmen. This being the week of the State fair probably accounts for the absence of so many students from school.
 The weather man did his best to give us a fair Monday this week. He predicted it but he must have forgotten that the state fair was to open that day. It did, and of course there was rain about all day. Tuesday morning the weather man triumphed over the jinx and fair weather came again temporarily, but it has been shifty all the week.
