"Success in life depends upon the investments made of talents and time," says an article on investing prepared by the Committee on Public Education of the American Bankers Association. "Future return will be gain or loss, according to these investments. That is a law of life which controls investment of money, just as it controls investment of talents." The article, which is particularly timely in these days when so many are being robbed by fake investments, continues:

In the business sense, the word in perience to undertake to make investvestment relates to the use of money in acquiring ownership of property. Ownership may represent entire possession of property as of a home; partial ownership as holding stock in corporation; or conditional ownership as in the case of buying a mortgage or a bond. When a person makes an investment in bonds, he is really always a temptation by which thou-sands of thrifty people are deprived loaning his money to the government or corporation issuing them. He will receive the interest which they earn s long as he owns them, or until herited money are frequently sought and made the targets of these fake-

Ownership of great corporations is vested in individuals who have investd money in their stock or bonds. Many people regard the ownership of the United States Steel Corporation, for example, as differing from the ownership of, say, a small workshop. Yet investors in shares of Steel Corporation stock are entitled to the same rights, under the law, as the owner of the workshop. In the corporation, the ewners hold certificates of stock as evidence of their investment, whereas the owner of the little workshop holds a deed as title to his land.

Capitalistic Laws Protect Investors Because the laws stand for the equal protection of all investors, it is possible and profitable to make good investments. It gives an incentive to work hard and to invest. The person who wishes to invest must first work and accumulate funds with which to Bonds are always secured by mort-gages on the lands, buildings or other property of the corporation for which the mency has been used. When a matures the money must be repaid to the owner of the bond.

All investors are a part of a great financial system which gathers up and puts to work the wealth of the country for the mutual benefit, prosperity and well-being of all. In America, it is possible for any one who is willing to pay the price of self-denial and hard work, to be an investor. Good investments made in early life by saving such small sums as may be possible, lay the foundation for providing the comforts of later years, when it is harder to earn a livelihood and when poverty often becomes the condition of those who have not practiced thrift in youth. It is not wise for those without ex-

Deadhead Advertising

Harry Woods of the Wellingnational legislative committee ton (Kans.) News went to a church supper a few years ago Acceptance of Ford's Muscle to which he had been given a "free" ticket. As he neared the portals, he heard one good sister whisper to another, "Here comes one of those deadl eads." Refectively he ate his chicken wing and returned to his office and got out his trusty pencil. He found that he had given that particular supper just $8.45 worth of advertising and in return therefor had received one chicken wing and the name of "deadhead." Since that day he has collected cash for all church suppers and other pay-socials, has never accepted a free ticket to anything and he also gets the choice part of the chicken.

CONFERENCES to aid AGRICULTURE

Collective Marketing, Diversified Farming, Promotion of Agricultural Education and Use of Bank Instead of Mercantile Credits Chief Lines of Suggested Action.

By D. H. OTIS,

Director, Agricultural Commission, American Bankers Association.

Four lines of action to improve the business of farming stand out in the discussions that have occurred at a series of farmer-banker conferences now being held throughout the United States. They are collective marketing, diversified farming, the promotion of agricultural education and the use of the more economical bank credit rather than mercantile credit. At many points active steps to foster action along these lines have been taken.

The conferences were initiated by the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association to the end that the condition of the man on the farm be improved. The first conference was held in conjunction with the Wis-

D. H. Otis consin College of Agriculture at Madison. An important point of contact for the work of the Commission was established at this meeting in the form of co-operation with the agricultural colleges.

In five other states—California, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, and Utah—it was agreed at subsequent conferences that bankers agricultural committees would meet at the state agricultural colleges and, in co-operation with the college officials, work out a program that they would recommend to the banks. The Texas Plan

It was at the Texas conference that it was developed that the officials of both the bankers' association and of the state college felt the big problem for that state was the establishment of a system of collective, orderly mar-keting. In order to bring this prob-lem effectively before the farmers and the bankers it was agreed to hold a banker-farmer meeting in December. Efforts will be made to get from 200 to 250 bankers to attend, each banker to bring with him several representative farmers of his community. The program and demonstration will emphasize the need of meeting the marketing problem and point ways to a satisfactory solution.

At Athens, Georgia, the conference recommended that the State Bankers Association take steps to raise a fund for assisting deserving students to complete a college course in agriculture or home economics. This conference, recognizing the valuable work being done by county agricul-tural and home demonstration agents. also went on record as favoring the employment of agents in each county.

At the Raleigh, North Carolina, conference the pressing problem, in addi-tion to loans for worthy students, was held to be encouragement of the farm-er to practice greater crop diversifica-tion. The conferees felt that the first big step was to get farmers at least to produce sufficient vegetables, fruit, milk, meat and poultry to live on.

More Economical Credit

At the conference at Ithaca, N. Y., those participating felt that a better understanding between farmers and bankers would be beneficial to both. At present a large amount of the cred-it used by farmers is in the form of mercantile credit, which, it was pointed out, is much more expensive for them than bank credit. It was felt that a campaign of education is needed to-acquaint farmers with banking facilities. The conference, therefore, recommended that the Agricultural Committee of the State Bankers Association, the agricultural college and rep resentatives of the Farm Bureau and the State Grange get together for the purpose of working out programs and plans for further meetings to be held!

in the various counties of the state. At a conference held at Amherst, Massachusetts, there were representatives from Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut. Emphasis was placed on the importance of the Boys' and Girls' Club work. The New England conference also felt that the importance of bank credit over mercantile credit should be stressed. A resolution was adopted and is being sent to agricultural ocumittees in each State urging that they get in touch with their agriculural colleges and map out a program for educating the farmer in regard to the importance and the economy of bank credit over mercantile

The emphasis on this resolution came not so much from the bankers present as it did from the representatives of the agricultural colleges and the farmers.

HOW A RIP-ROARING RADICAL WAS TAMED By JOHN OAKWOOD

The best story of the taming of a radical I have ever read is told by A. B. Farquhar is his book "The First Million the Hardest." It throws more light on the meaning of capitalism and the futility of socialism than a li-brary full of books on sociology, eco-nomics and politics. Here it is as

The best antidote for acute economic insanity is ownership of prop-erty. My favorite example is Otto Steininger. He was one of my first employees and was a rip-roaring anarchist. He insisted that all wealth came from the workers and therefore fhould go back to the workers. He was particularly bitter against his ord and hardly a week went by that he did not announce that he had definitely decided that he would like to shoot the landlord the next time he came around for the rent. Finally I asked him smilingly after one of these outbursts:

Buy, Don't Shoot lord? Then you would not have to pay any rent. If you do shoot him you may get into trouble.

"He did not think much of the idea apparently but in a day or two he asked me how he could buy the house. I answered: 'That house can be bought for $800. You are getting good wages. I will buy that house for you, take $4 a week out of your wages, and in less than four years you will have it paid for.

'He went off again. The next time he came back it was with his wife. He said: We are going to buy that house but since we have no children you can take $10 instead of $4 a week out of my pay envelope."

"I bought the house and then Otto's chief concern was to get it paid for, which he did in a little more than a year. There was another house next door to him. In a short while after he had paid for his first house, he sidled up to me and said: "'I can buy that house next door

There is no other certain way. "He bought that house and joined the hated landlord class. Some years later when it was reported that a band of strikers were advancing to shut all the factories, Otto rushed into my office at the head of an excited group of men from the shop

"Get us a lot of shotguns and we'll keep those fellows out of here! Those fools expect a man to work and save and then walk in here and take what he has got without paying for it!" "And that," Fargubar concludes, "I think, is always the way to develop a conservative."

GROWING RECOGNITION OF ADVERTISING'S USE

Advertising first established its place as an economic factor as a sales aid. but as understanding and use of it have increased, its possibilities in other fields have developed until today we find it employed in many forms of service hitherto unthought of. Advertising has long been hampered in its use by precedent, tradition, conventions, and prejudices, which, un-der analysis and experience, find little to warrant their existence. Gradually the falsity of their claims is be ing proved. We were told for many years that "Why don't you buy your own it was undignified for a bank or fidu-house instea. of shooting your land- clary institution to advertise, and this edict, born of some superstition of the past, was accepted without question until finally it was intelligently challenged and it was discovered under analysis that there was no sufficient reason for its support. The inevitable conclusion of logic is that, whatever is of genuine use to human beings, whether it be goods or services, can, with truth and digrity, be advertised and sold, and that it is just as proper to merchandise forms of service as various kinds of commodities. In the logical development of this new understanding of the power of advertising during the last decade, we have seen many of our banking aductary and investment institutions actively employing the sales value of advertising in the marketing of their services. In this intelligent use of publicity they are not only increasing their own immediate business return, but they are also helping to spread a better understanding of financial service and economic fact and theory upfor a thousand dollars. Now that wo on which solid business relations can have no rent to pay we are going be built.—Francis H. Sinson, Journal along good. What would you think of the American Bankers Association.
