"BANNER STONES" ARE FOUND

Thought to Represent Birds That Form Part of American Indian Myths.

Construction of the dam across the Susquehanna river near Conowingo, Md., is speeding up an archeological investigation of a prehistoric Indian workshop on an island eight miles above that place.

John L. Baer of the United States National museum, who for years had been seeking the solution to the mystery of curiously wrought stones found in such abundance there and elsewhere, has redoubled Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Hocken- his efforts because the completion of the engineering project will drown the island, says the Indianapolis News. "Banner stones," as the specimens are called, are be-Mr. and Mrs. Fred Burkhart lieved to have been ceremonial objects carried by the Indians. So far they are unknown west of the Mississippi, but in New Jersey they have been found under other Indian material which indicates that they are very old.

From the shape of many of these stones, it has been suggested that they probably were intended to represent birds, butterflies and other forms of flying life which play a prominent part in many Indian my-

LARGEST FLOATING DOCK

Singapore is reported to be the destination of the largest floating dock in the world, now being prepared for service by experts of the British navy at Chatham. This dock was surrende ed by the Germans to the British, in accordance with the terms of the peace treaty, but, before being handed over, three sections of the dock were rendered useless. These parts are being renewed at Chatham, involving the employment of 800 men. Each section is 160 feet long, 80 feet wide and more than 100 feet high. The total wages bill for renewal will amount to $250,000, and, when complete, the dock will be capable of receiving the largest battleships in the world, including the Rodney and Nelson, two gian t warships yet to be

FAMOUS PINE DYING

The Berthaud pine, known to all who have toured the southwestern coast of France, is gradually dying. According to reports from Var, all efforts to save it have failed, and it is slowly dwindling away. This patriarch is located near the Gulf of Saint-Topez, or the road from Hyeres to Saint Raphael. It measures 30 feet in circumference at the base and has cele brated many a century. Stephen Liegeard has written of it: "Visable from all points of the surrounding country, its smallest branches are like trees; it *************** resembles a foresti
