Otto Lee and William Burkhardt, constituting the drug firm of Burkhardt & Lee at Albany, when arrested for illegal possession of liquor, contended that the officers had exceeded their authority in seizing the liquor and demanded its return. Judge Bingham last Tuesday decided this point against them. They also claim that the liquor was undrinkable and that they had a right to have it. Mrs. W. A. Carey went Friday to Salem, where her mother, Mrs. Stone, was ill. Miss Helen Armstrong came home Wednesday from U. of O. where she is attending school to spend Thanksgiving, returning to Eugene Sunday evening. Pedestrians are flocking to California seeking work for the winter. Many come through Halsey and they often ask for food—and usually get it. Our restaurant keepers have soft hearts. Grant Taylor is taking a three-months vacation and J. C. Bramwell is carrying mail on rural route 2. Harrisburg grammar grade footballers are coming to show the Halsey grammarians how to play tomorrow.

Carefully Conducted Surveys show that 62% of all children between the ages of six and sixteen have defective eyes. Most of these children are being forced to do school work under the handicap of a constant nervous strain caused by neglect of eyes that need help. And the pitiful part is that the parents' ignorance of the condition does not save the child from the penalty he is constantly paying.

We select several stories for the Enterprise with a view to avoiding anything that would tend to lower the moral standard of young people, many of whom read it. We also try to avoid improperly told stories of crime or bloodshed. For this reason we have discarded the pictured heading of "The Brown Mouse" which ran in the first two numbers. It portrayed a fisticuffs. The incident it referred to was not objectionable, being a proper subduing of a bully, but it has now been told in the text and we bid the episode good bye.

The Contest for Law Enforcement

The People Are Fighting Booze and Bcozers Brownsville, Nov. 26, W. F. Herwig gave an illustrated lecture at the Presbyterian church Sunday night in behalf of the Anti-Saloon league of Oregon. He spoke to a crowded house on law enforcement. Among other things he said: "We have enough prohibition laws in Oregon. The thing that we need now is officers to enforce these laws." He spoke also of the primaries next May and election next fall and of the league's intention to keep the public posted as to whom they were voting for—whether a moonshiner sympathizer or an Anti-Saloon league man. He illustrated "The Last Raid of Sheriff Kendall." Those who were at the West farm after the killing say it was true to life. He pictured the raiding of a still and told instances in the state where the fine of $3000 and one year in jail is the penalty for having an illicit still in one's possession. RALPH LAWRENCE. A dispatch in Monday's papers said: The Dragon, a sumptuously equipped yacht, was seized by customs men off Port Jefferson, Long Island, Saturday and a large quantity of liquor was confiscated. Another, from a Pacific coast address, said: "Scantily clad women fled to the hills, a motion picture director's expensive car and nine other automobiles were seized and several prominent business men were arrested in a series of roadhouse raids conducted early today by county and federal "dry" officers. The cost in fines and in confiscation of booze and of land and water vehicles is rapidly becoming greater than bootleggers can bear and they will make frantic efforts to have this congress change the law before their business becomes as unprofitable as wheatraising.

By MARGARET BOYD (By Margaret Boyd.) "I made a voyage to Grand Cairo, on purpose to take the measure of a pyramid."—Sir Roger de Coverley Papers. If we had to gather all our information at first hand as the Spectator did, we should know much less than we do; but what we did know would be more likely to be accurate. Stefansson, the great Arctic explorer, has recently written a short article on "Educated Ignorance," in which he speaks of "the self-perpetuating quality common to the educated man's ignorance." The primary purpose of his article is to set us right on the subject of Eskimo dwellings. These dwellings are ordinarily made of "sod and wood, earth and wood, wood and moss, wood and skins, or a combination perhaps of bones, stones and wood." They are not made of snow except during emergencies, such as being caught abroad in a storm. Practically all textbooks state that Eskimos live in snow houses, and leave the impression that all Eskimos live in such houses all the time. Many of them state, too, that the temperature inside the houses cannot be allowed to go above 32 degrees, or the house would melt. Stefansson says he has been in a snow house when the temperature indoors was 60 degrees above zero, and that the roof was perfectly dry. Take the matter of the porcupine as a further example. Some hundreds of years ago a book on natural history stated that the porcupine threw his quills at his pursuers. The statement has been disproved by scientist after scientist, but the makers of textbooks keep right on copying the error from older books. It is possible to find books of quite recent date that say porcupines throw their quills, yet the best-informed scientists say such a thing is pure nonsense. There is, too, the matter of the ostrich and his habit of burying his head in the sand when danger threatens him. Explorers who have spent years in Africa declare the ostrich never buries his head in the sand under any circumstances. It always comes as something of a shock to me to find that some bit of information that I have clung to for years is erroneous. Time after time I have gleaned information from printed sources that seemed authentic, only to discover that statistics quoted for last year were the ones that belonged to a year a quarter century past, or something equally disconcerting.

High School Notes

(Reporter, Agnes Hayes) Thanksgiving days are over and the students are again back at school. The English I and II classes wrote themes pertaining to their vacation, so that is all we have left of the welcome holiday except fond memories of the roast turkey and other Thanksgiving delicacies. Halsey high was beaten by the alumni at the basket ball Friday night, 34 to 31. The line-up and points credited to each player were: Alumni, right forward, Kenneth Cross, (6); left, Jesse Cross, (24); center forward, Carl Hill, right guard, Delos Clark, (2); left guard, Wayne Robertson, (2). High school: Right forward, Everett Corbin; left forward, Frank Koontz, (4); center, Kenneth Van Nice; right guard, Thomas Miller, (2); left guard, Truman Robnett. Alumni substitutes: Sneed for Hill; Hill for Sneed; Corbin for Frum; Robertson for Corbin. High school substitutes: George Cross for Corbin. The referee was Wesley Robins. Another alumni game will be played during the Christmas holidays. The high school boys are out to beat the alumni in the next game. A charge of 25c will be made in order to help pay hall rent and finance the buying of suits for a good second team. The boys intend to develop two good first teams so that in the future basket ball material will not be lacking. The suits will be the property of the high school when the season is over. The apparent stars of the losing side were: Kenneth Van Nice, Frank Koontz and George Cross. The latter gives promise as a coming foul shooter, something Halsey has lacked in the past. On the winning team, the two Cross boys, Jess and Kenneth, the two Cross boys, Jess and Kenneth did excellent work. The high school teams are practicing daily in order to develop winning teams and they expect to get good support from the townspeople when games are played. A double-header of interclass games will be played Friday night at the city hall. Five and ten cents admission will be charged. The freshmen boys will play the sophomore boys and the girls of the freshmen and junior classes will play the girls of the sophomore and senior classes. The judges chosen by the captain of the girls' basketball team, Rena Walker, have named the main team. On it are the following: Right forward, Pauline Hardin; left forward, Rena Walker; right guard, Lena Bass; center, Agnes Chandler; side center, Agnes Hayes. The three substitutes were Willamina Corcoran, Grace Pehrsson and Helen Williams. (By an Enterprise Reporter) (By an Enterprise reporter) The seniors are planning to give their play Dec. 22. The seniors and juniors have been having a series of debates. The result was a tie, which will be decided by a debate at a later date. Ever since the harvest the board of trade speculators have been trying to keep the price down until the farmers would have sold. They have shouted "surplus!" "Surplus!" Now Representative Little of Kansas has done some figuring and says at the present rate of export the surplus will be all gone by January 1. He quotes "the figures of the Secretary of Agriculture thus: Crop, 1923, 781,000,000 bushels; exported to date, 77,000,000 bushels; used, 80,000,000 bushels; the people will eat 39,000,000 bushels; this leaves for export 48,000,000 bushels which will last only until Jan. 1.
