THE WAITER'S TIP They had spent some happy weeks in California. The sunshine was brilliant and the hotel fare was good. On the last day the waiter had their table decorated with flowers. "A pretty touch of sentiment," commented ma. "More likely good business," declared pa. "Huh?" asked ma in surprise. "Have you noticed what these flowers are?" asked the observant pa. "No. What are they?" "Forget-me-nots."—Boston Transcript.

WHAT DO AMERICANS THINK? Write to the Peace Award Committee and Let the Verdict Be Known

The American Peace Award brought forth 22,165 plans and many thousands of letters. Since many of the plans were the composite work of organizations, universities, etc., a single plan often represented the views of hundreds or thousands of individuals. The content of these plans is therefore an index of the true feeling and judgment of hundreds of thousands of American citizens.

These plans come from every group in American life. Some are obviously from lifelong students of history and international law. Some are from persons who have studied little, but who have themselves seen and felt the horror of war—or who are even now living out its tragedy.

But among them all are these dominant currents: that, if war is honestly to be prevented, there must be a face-about on the part of the nations in their attitude toward it; that by some progressive agreement the manufacture and purchase of the munitions of war must be limited or stopped; that while no political mechanism alone will insure cooperation among the nations, there must be some machinery of cooperation if the will to cooperate is to be made effective; that mutual counsel among the nations is the real hope for bringing about the disavowal of war by the open avowal of its real causes and open discussion of them; and finally that there must be some means of defining, recording, interpreting and developing the law of nations.

The only possible pathway to international agreement with reference to these complicated and difficult factors is through mutual counsel and cooperation which the plan selected contemplates. It is therefore the unanimous opinion of the Jury that of the 22,165 plans submitted, Plan Number 1469 is "the best practicable plan by which the United States may cooperate with other nations to achieve and preserve the peace of the world."

It is the unanimous hope of the Jury that the first fruit of the mutual counsel and cooperation among the nations which will result from the adoption of the plan selected will be a general prohibition of the manufacture and sale of all materials of war.

The Question to Be Voted Upon The substantial provisions which constitute the plan selected by the Jury of Award, and upon which the vote of the American people is asked, are hereby submitted by the Policy Committee as follows:

- I. ENTER THE PERMANENT COURT That the United States adhere to the Permanent Court of International Justice for the reasons and under the conditions stated by Secretary Hughes and President Harding in February, 1923. II. COOPERATE WITH THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS, WITHOUT FULL MEMBERSHIP AT PRESENT That without becoming a member of the League of Nations as at present constituted, the United States Government should extend its present cooperation with the League and propose participation in the work of its Assembly and Council under the following conditions and reservations: Safeguarding of Monroe Doctrine 1. The United States accepts the League of Nations as an instrument of mutual counsel, but it will assume no obligation to interfere with political questions of policy or internal administration of any foreign state. In initiating its efforts with those of other States for the preservation of peace and the promotion of the common welfare, the United States insists upon the safeguarding of the Monroe Doctrine and does not abandon its traditional attitude concerning American independence of the Old World and does not consent to submit its long established policy concerning questions regarded by it as purely American to the recommendation or decision of other Powers. No Military or Economic Force 2. That the only kind of compulsion which nations can freely engage to apply to each other in the name of Peace is that which arises from conference, from moral judgment, from full publicity, and from the power of public opinion. The United States would assume no obligations under Article X in its present form, or under Article XVI in its present form in the Covenant, or in its amended form as now proposed, unless in any particular case Congress has authorized such action. The United States proposes that Articles X and XVI be either dropped altogether or so amended and changed as to eliminate any suggestion of a general agreement to use coercion for obtaining conformity to the pledges of the Covenant. No Obligations Under Versailles Treaty 3. That the United States will accept no responsibilities under the Treaty of Versailles unless in any particular case Congress has authorized such action. League Open to All Nations 4. The United States Government proposes that Article I of the Covenant be construed and applied, or, if necessary, re-drafted, so that admission to the League shall be assured to any self-governing State that wishes to join and that receives the favorable vote of two-thirds of the Assembly. Development of International Law 5. As a condition of its participation in the work and counsels of the League, the United States asks that the Assembly and Council consent—or obtain authority—to begin collaboration for the revision and development of international law, employing for this purpose the aid of a commission of jurists. This Commission would be directed to formulate new existing rules of the law of nations, to reconcile divergent opinions, to consider points hitherto inadequately provided for by vital to the maintenance of international justice, and in general, to define the social rights and duties of States. The recommendations of the Commission would be presented from time to time, in proper form for consideration, to the Assembly as to a recommending if not a law-making body.

Author's Name Not to Be Revealed Until After Referendum In order that the vote may be taken solely upon the merits of the plan, the Policy Committee, with the acquiescence of Mr. Bok, has decided not to disclose the authorship of the plan until after the referendum. The identity is unknown to the members of the Jury of Award and the Policy Committee, except one delegated member. JOHN W. DAVIS LEARNED HAND

With the High School Classics By MARGARET BOYD (© by Margaret Boyd.) "... she had ravaged Soho and the adjacent provinces, in search of impoverished French, who, tempted by shillings and half-crowns, would impart culinary mysteries to her." —A Tale of Two Cities.

For many centuries France led the civilized world in the matter of cooking and eating. The French believed with their compatriot Savarin that "The destiny of nations depends upon the manner in which they feed themselves," and they bestowed upon the subject of eating the attention that a destiny-determining matter deserves. While their neighboring nations were leaving the matter of cooking to menials, Frenchmen were regarding it as one of the fine arts. No one thought it at all incongruous when the chef of Louis XVI declared that "Prominence in cookery never occurs under thirty years of age, and nothing but consummate experience can elevate one to the rank of chief professor. In connection with diligent and studious application one must also possess no small share of intellect."

Within recent years, the rest of the civilized world has begun to rival France in its interest in food and food values. Our interest has been growing steadily ever since the Japanese soldiers performed such feats during the Russo-Japanese war on their fish and rice diet. The statement that a third of our school children were undernourished proved a decided impetus to the study of culinary mysteries.

The effect on the French people of their study of culinary mysteries is delightfully set forth by Max O'Rell, who, writing a decade or so before the late war, stated: "The French are essentially a happy people. Their cheerfulness, which strikes the foreigner the moment he sets foot on French soil, is due to a sound stomach. Dyspepsia is not known in France. From the rich banker's mansion in the Champs Elysees to the simple mechanic's garret at Belleville, business cares are never allowed to interfere with the pleasures of the table."

As to the economic side of good eating, the brilliant journalist writes: "The pleasures of the table are within the reach of all classes in France. The working people are better off in England than in France, but they are not so well fed or so happy. What the English working classes throw away in bones, scraps and vegetables, would suffice to nourish a poor French family. I assure you that with a vegetable soup, a stew, some cheese or fruit, and good bread, these people dine remarkably well at two or three pence a head."

From this it seems evident that Miss Pross was but exercising good business judgment when she exchanged shillings and half-crowns for French culinary secrets.

The visitors did the better and smoother team work. The Halsey girls were victorious over Brownville in a snappy contest Saturday night. The score was 9 to 23. There was a fair turnout of townspeople, considering the weather, and the students are sincerely thankful for it, but they hope to have a larger crowd Friday, Feb. 1, when Halsey plays Monroe here.

A reception was given the two teams Saturday night after the game. The high school will send four or five delegates to the convention at Eugene January 11 and 12.

New Chapters in Old Bible

Perhaps the largest Christmas card ever made was completed in an American orphanage in the Russian Caucasus when, on Christmas day, 22,000 children completed the signing of a card addressed to the whole American nation in gratitude for the care which has meant life to them. The card is now in the mails, and on its arrival in America will be delivered to President Coolidge.

In Bethlehem, where Christmas day originated with the birth of Christ the day was celebrated in an American orphanage where there are nearly a hundred children.

Nazareth, the home of Jesus for most of his life, was the scene of another celebration. More than a hundred boys are being trained as carpenters in a shop across the street from the shop of Joseph and Jesus.

From Athens, where Paul once preached, another Jew, Henry Morgenthau, asked America to provide, not Christmas goodies, but homes in an orphanage for 5000 children.

At Beirut, Syria, was a different Christmas celebration. Word had just come that hundreds of Christian children, left homeless when their parents were exiled from Asia Minor, were wandering in the storms of central Turkey. A relief expedition from Aleppo gathered up two hundred, all for whom there was room in the orphanages of Syria and Palestine.

"Dispatches from the near east sound like new chapters from the old Bible," says J. J. Hand-saker, 913 Stook Exchange building, Portland, state director. "We can respond to these appeals only as funds and warm clothing continue to reach us."

HEARD, NOT SEEN

The young mother had just read in a newspaper that every one is surrounded by a halo, the color of which is determined by the temperament of the person. When her husband came home she tackled him on the subject. After settling the color of all her neighbors' halos to her entire satisfaction, she remarked: "And what about baby, Alfred? What color is he, do you think? Pink, I imagine, because he's the pink of perfection."

"Well, my dear," replied her husband, caustically, "he may be pink when I'm away, but when I'm home he's the most startling yell!"

The new addition to the old building was dedicated last Sunday with proper ceremonies. At the morning worship, the pastor spoke on "Monumental Institutions" and at the conclusion of his remarks the congregation joined the dedicatory response service. This was followed by the dedicatory prayer by the pastor. Two very beautiful vocal duets were rendered by Misses Rena and Marjorie Walker and by Miss Donna Robertson and Mr. Albert Isom. When the morning service was over all adjourned to the social rooms in the basement where an excellent dinner was served to the large number present. Mrs. George Taylor was chairman of the committee for the fellowship dinner, and had a fine corps of assistants and helpers.

Letters were read from President E. C. Sanderson of the Eugene Bible University, who preached at this church 28 years ago; Lester Jones, former pastor, who is now at Astoria; Prof. H. E. Knott, pastor of the Harrisburg congregation and H. L. Wood, from the Brownville church.

At a meeting of the church board in the afternoon, George Taylor was elected chairman; Mrs. Edith Robnett treasurer and Irwin Gardner clerk. These took offices immediately.

Next Sunday the every-member canvass will be taken at eleven o'clock, when the church will try to reach the goal set by the board in the session last Sunday.
