D. J. Hayes was in Albany Monday. Miss Mearle Straley returned to Monmouth last week. Mrs. Ollie Miller was a Halsey visitor Tuesday. Last week Theodore Henry went to Glenbrook to work. Mrs. Geo. Hayes and son Keith were Albany visitors Wednesday. O. T. Olson of Brownsville went to Eugene Wednesday via Halsey. Mrs. Florence Leeper of Eugene arrived Tuesday to visit her mother, Mrs. May Miller. Henry Davis and Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Straley and little son Lowell motored to Corvallis Sunday. Sam Henry went to Chitwood Wednesday, where he has employment in a logging camp. Mrs. E. J. Hayes of Dallas arrived here Wednesday and motored to Brownsville for a visit with friends. Mrs. Bailey of the missionary society, who visited the society here in Halsey, spent Tuesday night with Mrs. Wells. Mrs. Thomas Bailey and Mrs. Esther Strome, both of Eugene, were speakers at the missionary meeting at the Christian church Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Vannice were called to the home of Mr. Vannice's father Tuesday night. The old gentleman was not expected to live. G. R. Walker has traded his farm to W. E. Kyler of Corvallis for irrigated land at Yakima, Wash. Look out for a big auction sale. D. H. Sturtevant and family motored to Eugene Sunday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Kimbrel and son. Pehrson & Sylvester spent $1 advertising baby chicks in the Enterprise and believe that orders for 1200 resulted from the advertisement. The motor vehicle hasn't run the horse out of the country by a good deal. The big stock of team harness hanging in Hill & Co.'s store indicates that old Dobbin is still man's most useful four-footed friend. Miss Lois Johnson, from the Ringo drug store, has gone to Seaside to hold a position in the Log Cabin drug store for the busy summer season. Her mother, Mrs. Avis Johnson of Salem, will reside at Seaside with her. Sam Henry was home Sunday night and returned Monday to Chipwood, near Toledo, to his work in a logging camp. He recently got thrown from logs he was riding in the water, but righted himself and went ahead as if nothing had happened. R. F. Campbell and family, who are occupying Nettie Spencer's house on Second street, came here from Shedd. Mr. Campbell is engaged in installing the block signal system on the Southern Pacific and the family moves from town to town as the work progresses to the southward. The Campbells expect to be in Halsey about two months. Delegates from all over the county have asked the county court to offer the Oregon and Western Colonization company $5,000 for its right of way through the Santiam pass and, if the offer

BASKETBALL

Last game of season Big double-header Shedd vs. Halsey Freshmen & Sophomores Second team and Alumni vs. Halsey High School March 8, 8 p. m. At the CITY HALL Admission, 15 and 25 c.

The young people's gospel team conducted the services at the Methodist church Sunday evening. Mr. Parker being at the Oak Plains school house. Mrs. L. E. Walton and Mrs. Jay Moore went to Eugene Wednesday for a visit with Miss Minnie Harlow. Mrs. Walton also consulted a dentist while there. A. A. Tussing and J. P. Hunter, president of the Linn-Septon Oddfellows, visited the Albany lodge last night. Albany Oddfellows are coming over Feb. 18 to put on the degree work here. The radio entertainment at the city hall last night drew a full house. The leading feature was the old-fashion violin music by Walker Brothers of Forest Grove. The Walkers have been volunteering these concerts, going to the Oregonian station to give them, and the Portland station had sent out a request for a surprise donation to them. Responses totaling nearly $100 were reported to last night's meeting here, some coming from as far away as California. Halsey gave enough last night to leave $5 for the Walkers after the hall rent was paid. A vote of thanks to H. C. Davis for the Halsey affair would not have been out of order.

A Community Building

Halsey is not dead—not even asleep. Our "city hall," where the council meets, is not a very inspiring architectural show place. But wait. There are people here who see visions (of better things) and dream dreams which may come true. The movement of the Study Club for a "bungalow for books" has halted a moment to contemplate one of these visions. We need a big community hall. The school needs gymnasium accommodations. Monday evening the more ambitious and sanguine souls started the ball rolling at a meeting at the city hall with Mayor Clark as chairman and B. M. Bond secretary. C. H. Koontz, C. P. Moody and G. W. Laubner were made a committee on arrangements for another meeting, at which outside speakers may talk. The idea is to erect a building that shall house public library, city council, large public gatherings, school activities and the like—a community house.

A Pot-pourri

William F. White is home after a four-months stay in Los Angeles, California. While there he worked at the carpenter trade for which he received $1 an hour. Here is California as he sees it: California was discovered by the Spaniards, settled by the Yanks, built by the Japanese, worked by the Chinese, fought for by the Irish, owned by the Jews and run by the Native Sons. Los Angeles has but two kinds of weather, perfect and unusual. When he was asked if he experienced any of the earthquake shocks to which that country is subject, he replied that he did not, but that he nearly shook the country with a chill he had prior to a spell of pneumonia which he contracted there.

Enterprise Correspondence Miss Pearl Pehrson was home from O. A. C. last week end. Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Knighten visited at the Guy Bramwell home in Brownsville Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. George Chamberlain and Mrs. N. E. Chandler and daughter Agnes were Albany callers Saturday. Mrs. Jensen, Mr. Francis and Prof. and Mrs. Horner of Corvallis attended the community club meeting Friday evening. Prof. Horner spoke on Oregon history. Mrs. Gibson, W. G. McNeil and Waterprise Correspondence A banquet was served to Scio after the game Friday night. The Halsey girls will play Brownsville on the latter's floor Friday (tomorrow) night. The high school will give a party after the games Saturday night for the purpose of presenting the letters to the basketball teams. Friday night at the city hall the Halsey boys got their coveted revenge on Scio, winning by a score of 20 to 8. The line-up was: Halsey—Corbin, r. f.; Cross, l. f.; Van Nice, c.; Miller, r. g.; Robnett, l. g. Scio—McKnight, r. f.; Miller, l. f.; Knauf, c.; Zysset, r. g.; McKnight, l. g. Knauf and McKnight played best for the losers. Knauf made a long sensational shot from back of center. The last basketball game of the season will be at the city hall Saturday evening, when there will be a double-head entertainment. The Shedd freshmen and sophomores will play the Halsey second team and the alumni will play against Halsey high school.

By MARGARET BOYD (By Margaret Boyd.) To love one maiden only, cleave to her, And worship her by years of noble deeds. —Idylls of the King. Whether or not a man can love more than one maiden is a question almost as old as the human race. The philosophers and poets are no more agreed on the subject than are common mortals. "No, we never sicken with love twice," writes Jerome K. Jerome. "Cupid spends no second arrow on the same heart. Love's handmaids are self-lifelong friends. Respect, and admiration, and affection, our doors may always be left open for, but their great celestial master, in his royal progress, pays but one visit, and departs. We like, we cherish, we are very, very fond of—but we never love again. A man's heart is a firework that once in its time flashes heavenward. Meteor-like it blazes for a moment, and lights with its glory the whole world beneath. Then the night of our sordid common-place life closes in around it, and the burned-out case, falling back to earth, lies useless and uncared for, slowly smoldering into ashes. Emerson evades somewhat the question of whether a man can love more than one maiden, but seems of the opinion that there is little chance that one will fall violently in love after the age of thirty. He, however, thought love quite as potent a force as Arthur believed it, writing: "For, though the celestial rapture falling out of heaven seizes only upon those of tender age—no man ever forgot the visitations of that power to his heart and brain, and art; which made the face of nature radiant with purple light; the morning and the night varied enchantments; when a single tone of one voice could make the heart beat, and the most trivial circumstances associated with one form, is put in the amber of memory; when we became all eye when one was present, and all memory when one was gone."

Bacon thinks that even one maiden is altogether too many to love.

He states: "The stage is more beholding to love than the life of man. You may observe, that amongst all the great and worthy persons (whereof the memory remaineth, either ancient or recent), there is not one that hath been transported to the mad degree of love; which shows that great spirits and great business do keep out this weak passion. You must except, nevertheless, Marcus Aurelius, the half partner of the empire of Rome, and Appius Claudius, the decemvir and lawgiver."

A Testimonial.

"Your medicine has helped me wonderfully," wrote the grateful woman. "A month ago I could not spank the baby and now I am able to thrash my husband. Heaven bless you."—Boston Transcript.

Farm Co-operative Selling

(Continued from page 3) bankers offered to loan $1,500,000, in spite of the fact that one of the leading banks of the South gave out the opinion that the whole co-operative movement was illegal. Judge Bingham offered a million dollars of his personal fortune. The country bankers, too, hundreds of them, loaned their limit. Altogether they subscribed $5,400,000. A group of expert buyers worked out a system of grading. The system hit upon is declared to be the best one ever devised. The tobacco was graded at the local warehouse where the grower received a receipt which stated what he had delivered together with a draft upon the association of so many cents per pound for the grade. The local banker paid full value for this draft. After the tobacco was re-dried and stored in the Lexington warehouse President Stone wired all the buyers to come and give their orders. And he sent them samples of all the 52 grades. For the first time in history the buyer asked—"What are the prices?" Within 40 days all the loans for the first advance payment had been paid off and a second payment had been made to growers based on sales. The average price received was 21 1/2 cents per pound net after all overhead charges had been deducted. The average price received by growers outside of the association was almost two cents less. The average operating cost during 1921 and 1922 was three-fourths of a cent per pound. Many New Members. Since the first sign-up more than 21,000 growers have joined their neighbors for co-operative marketing in the burley district alone. The association functioned in full blast with the 1923 crop, handling 120,000,000 pounds of a 175,000,000-pound crop. Other tobacco farmers in other tobacco states have taken up the work. Their membership adds three-quarters of a million more to the co-operative ranks. In the Virginia and the Carolinas 85,000 bright-tobacco growers have organized the Tobacco Growers' Co-operative association, handling 66.98 per cent of the total crop. The 60,000 members of the Dark Tobacco Growers' Co-operative association control 75 per cent of the total crop. In the eastern states is the Connecticut Valley Tobacco association, which has over 3,300 members producing 84 per cent of the cigar wrapper tobacco grown in Connecticut and Massachusetts. In Wisconsin 78 per cent of the state's crop is controlled by the members of the co-operative tobacco pool. Jeff Clay, whose average income for ten years had been somewhere around $400, doubled it in 1921. For the first time in five years Jeff bought new shoes for his little family. If you were to happen down in Bourbon county today you would find Jeff Clay living in a new four-room bungalow with flowered wall paper in the parlor and a Brussels rug on the floor. Jeff doesn't owe the country grocer a cent, for the first time in twenty years—so the grocer says. Jeff is just one of the thousands and thousands of tobacco farmers who are learning something about living.

Family, A. F. Albertson and family and Ira Miner and family went to Ingram Island Sunday to attend the revival meetings there.

The people of this neighborhood were quite surprised Saturday morning to learn that one of the burglars captured in the LaMar store was an old neighbor, having lived where Otto Neff does several years ago.
