 For maintaining Southern Pacific roadbed in Oregon in prime condition seven section foremen have been given $100 in cash each and annual passes for themselves and their families. They are Lou G. Merriam, Halsey; Thomas G. Haven, Green; Charles R. Delk, Drain; Peter Stoks, Gerards; Albert D. Dotson, Blair; Andrew Jensen, Bertha, and Ed W. Stoller, Dallas.
USE CORN STALKS AS ARMOR
 Placed Behind Steel Plates on Battleship and, When Pierced by Shell, Fills Gap.
 Behind the armor plate of the modern battleship lies a packing of cellulose six foot thick. If the outer armor plate is pierced by a shell the water reaches the cellulose, which immediately swells and fills the hole. So certain is the action of this material that all warships have been equipped with the queer jacket. The cellulose is made from cornstalks. These stalks are dried for six or eight months and then cut into short pieces and the pith extracted. The pith is treated with chemicals to make it fireproof, and compressed to one-sixteenth its original bulk. After being cut into blocks six inches square it is shipped to the navy yards.
 At the Ball Game.
 She—Who is that man they are all quarreling with?
 Her Escort—Why, he's keeping the score.
 She—Oh! And won't he give it up?
 Auto Supplies Camel.
 The automobile has supplanted the camel as a mail and passenger carrier over the hot sands of Arabia. The car makes the trip in four hours that required an entire day for the usual camel caravan.

With the High School Classics. By MARGARET BOYD. (© by Margaret Boyd.)
 "With the life of a generous monarch... perished all the projects which his ambition and his generosity had formed."—Ivanhoe.
 Hugo says of leaders of men that "while themselves advancing, they cause their satellites to progress, and it is an entire solar system moving onwards."
 Our familiar solar system is made up of the sun and its satellites, the stars and planets. Some of the planets have satellites of their own; but the entire system is dependent upon the sun, which, we are told, is itself dependent upon a greater sun in outer space. Ours is not the only solar system; there are neighboring ones all around it.
 If our sun should be suddenly destroyed, there would be a period of chaos. When order emerged again from chaos, there would be a new center of our solar system and a rearrangement of the stars and planets.
 So it was when Richard died. All the group that he had gathered about him was thrown into chaos. From this chaos emerged a new governing group, with a new king for its center.
 With Richard perished all the projects which his ambition and his generosity had formed—both projects for the good of the country and projects for the advancement and happiness of his favorite knights. Herein lies the bitterness of death, that a man cannot hope to have his plans and projects carried out by his successor. Each man has his own interests, his own satellite or satellites, and his own way of doing things. Try as hard as he may, he cannot do a piece of work in the exact manner and spirit of his predecessor. Nor can he often accomplish work with the same corps of people that his predecessor found serviceable.
 The commonly heard statement that some one can always be found to take one's place is rarely true of leaders. No one could take Richard's place after his death. Another became king. It is true, and the country continued its existence; but the destiny of the country, and especially the destiny of Richard's knights, was inevitably changed by his death.
