News Notes

(Continued from page 1) Six boys' and girls' industrial clubs of Lane county have received their charters from the Oregon Agricultural college. State traffic officers in annual conference at Salem raised a fund with which to purchase an appropriate monument for the grave of Earl Perkins, who was killed a year ago while a member of the state traffic department. William M. Pitney, 76, prominent pioneer of Lane county, was killed instantly when Southern Pacific passenger train No. 14, northbound, struck an automobile which he was driving over a crossing on the outskirts of Junction City. Fifty thousand ballots went out to patrons of all Portland mail routes to be used in the referendum on the question of whether the clerks and carriers of the Portland postoffice shall have Saturday afternoons off from May 1 to October 1. Ballot title for the initiative measure looking to the abolishment of the Oregon public service commission has been completed by the attorney-general. The measure will be referred to the voters of the state at the general election in November. At a recent meeting of the Newport chamber of commerce and citizens of Lincoln county, a resolution was unanimously adopted calling for the completion of the Roosevelt highway and the remainder of the roads as proposed by the state highway commission. A joint meeting of the state board of control and a special committee of the Salem city council was held in Salem Wednesday to consider the organization of a drainage district comprising a large area of land east of the city. Both private and state lands are included in the proposed project. Since April 1 203 carloads, or 274,000 bushels of wheat have been received at the Astoria terminals from the producing points of the interior, making a total of 3547 carloads or 4,764,705 bushels of wheat which have passed through the Astoria elevator since the opening of the present shipping season. There were two fatalities due to industrial accidents in Oregon during the week ending April 17, according to a report prepared by the state industrial accident commission. The victims were Morris Lockridge, Portland, electrician, and Alfred J. Haikura of Seaside. A total of 590 accidents were reported during the week. The Portland school board adopted a resolution asking the people to vote a special tax levy of $750,000 on June 21 to meet the actual operating expenses of the schools for 1925, with the alternative of cutting down the school year from ten to eight months and eliminating all manual training and domestic science instruction. There will be no change in the plans to hold the annual encampment of the Oregon national guard in California, according to announcement made by George A. White, adjutant-general. Following issuance of the official encampment order some opposition developed because of the foot and mouth disease now raging in various sections of California. Eighty-eight candidates who filed for various offices at the primary election have submitted statements to the secretary of state for publication in the voters' pamphlet. This pamphlet under the law must be in the mails eight days prior to the election. Of the total 79 are republicans and nine democrats. A total of $5005 was paid to the state by these candidates. There will be no relaxation on the part of Oregon officials in enforcing the embargo against California products offered for shipment into Oregon. This was made plain when Governor Pierce sent a letter to F. M. Hudson, secretary of the Produce Exchange at Los Angeles, to the effect that a stricter quarantine may be expected in case the foot and mouth disease is not immediately brought under control. The mystery of months' standing caused by the sudden disappearance of Sheriff Topping of Jefferson county in December ended just as suddenly with his reappearance in Madras last week. Topping was accompanied by his attorney, Denton G. Burdick of Redmond. He sought out Howard Turner, justice of the peace, waived preliminary hearing on the charge of larceny of public funds preferred against him early in the year, and was held to the grand jury. The Marion county circuit court, in a decree signed by Judges C. G. Bingham and Percy Kelly, enjoined the state tax commission from collecting the state income tax imposed upon the Standard Lumber company of Portland, plaintiff in a suit brought against Governor Pierce and other members of the state tax commission to test the validity of the income tax act. The state immediately filed notice of appeal to the supreme court, and the case has been set for argument on May 15.

Just as We've Done Before

(S.) The seasons roll around, And so 'tis spring once more. We grab a spade and dig and dig. Just as we've done before. We grub and dig and prod. Till we grow stiff and sore. The fishing worms glide from the sod, Just as they've done before. We dream of gardens grown And set a heap of store. On raising beans and turnip greens. Just as we've done before. We plant the beans and peas And spinach we adore. And sweat and set the onion sets. Just as we've done before. From cabbages to cauliflower Our aspirations soar. We're full of hope and all such dope. Just as we've been before. A timid hen appears And swallows worms galore. She knows she'll get the garden yet. Just as she's done before.

The Study Club

Mrs. Martin Cummings was hostess to the Halsey study club last Thursday. Eleven members were present and joined in a brief discussion of Americanization, led by Mrs. Marks. It was decided to hold a cooked food sale and serve a dinner May 16, election day. Mrs. Sidney J. Smith and Mrs. G. W. Mornhinweg were elected delegates to the state federation May 19. The lesson, given by Mrs. Moore, dealt with the life and letters of Carlyle. Mrs. Stafford gave a review of "Jess & Co.," a work of J. J. Bell. Mrs. Jones of Corvallis, mother of the hostess, was a guest. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. W. A. Cummings. At the next meeting, May 1st, officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

Oregon Farm Crops

Among the recommendations of the farm crop committee of the O. A. C. farmers' conference last winter were: No reduction of winter wheat acreage. Replace spring wheat acreage of low production with barley varieties recommended by the experiment station. Standardize on recommended grain varieties in each county, use certified and have fewer varieties to store and handle. Use straw and crop residues in maintaining productiveness. Grow flax on rich land to an extent sufficient to meet manufacturing developments. Use federal grain grades on domestic and export wheat and do not revert to old-type sample plan. The open season for deer this year will be Sept. 10 to Oct. 31. The open season for humans is already on. One was shot in Lane county last week presumably by mistake for a protected deer.

Business men use Southern Pacific service for short trips as well as for long ones. It costs so much less than any other form of transportation. And yet Southern Pacific service is the most dependable of all. It's fast and comfortable, too. In other words, it's Southern Pacific Service and that means much to those who have traveled widely.
