Mary Succeeds on Main Street By LAURA MILLER © 1923, by Laura Miller BUSINESS, BRAINS AND BREECHEES City jobs and salaries are time wasters, according to Ruth Fiesbach. She thinks she is probably earning the largest income of any person in Hays, Kan., and fully intends to make it larger within two years. The chief set-back she has found is the belief of the average chair farmer in the average big office that "only a man can do that"; it's contagious, and the girl wastes time accepting the dictum that business, brains and breeches are inseparable. Ruth Fiesbach was orphaned when she was three. At seventeen she was teaching. At nineteen her savings had gone into a commercial course and she tried five jobs in one year looking for one that would pay more than $7.50 a week. For the sixth, "I carried a bunch of positions for part time. Soon I was earning the $15 a week I had set out to get. But it kept me racing all the way from the city market (this was in Kansas City) to the far corners of uptown. "I applied for every position I heard about, sometimes waiting in line with 50 others. When I answered one and the manager looked at me and said: "Two years' experience required." My letter had said I had had ten months. So I looked at the baby doll and then at the manager and said: "You won't be able to buy my services for $50 a month then? Two weeks later he had fired the pretty girl and I was on his pay roll. In five years there I reached $30 a month, but that was the most any girl could hope for. "In a fever of patriotism I turned court reporter in Hays so the young man could go to the front. That paid me, with fees, about $150 a month. "After other adventures Miss Fiesbach became successively secretary of the chamber of commerce and publicity director of a building and investment company. Her ambition is to start an advertising agency, "right in Hays to help the small town merchant advertise his goods and compete with the mass order houses."

H. C. Waddell of Roseburg, of the official staff of the state department, American Legion, has been appointed by Governor Pierce to go to Seattle and inspect the battleship Oregon. Calvin T. Funk post, American Legion of Cottage Grove, has gone on record as opposing the settlement of a major part of the northern portion of Lane county by Doughbors, a large colony of whom are said to be planning to move to this country from Canada. Plans were completed at Salem for the first annual Chautauqua to be held under direction of the Oregon Jersey Cattle club. It will take place at the state fair grounds in Salem, May 28 and 29, and will succeed the annual jubilee held by the club in previous years. Nine gold quartz claims located on Link river near the city limits of Klamath Falls were filed with the county clerk as result of the discovery of low-grade gold ore in the excavation being made for the new half-million dollar power plant of the California-Oregon Power company. Members of the Marion County Pomona grange, at a meeting held in Salem, went on record favoring needed repairs to the present plant of the state training school for boys, at a cost of a few thousand dollars, instead of expending $300,000 in the construction of a new institution. An intensive campaign against violation and non-enforcement of the prohibition laws will be waged June 3, 4 and 5 in Portland by the Anti-Saloon leagues of Washington, Idaho and Oregon. Plans include the appointment of a committee of 1000 to insure the success of the citizens' law enforcement campaign. Forest fires were under way in many places in Oregon and Washington, and the situation was threatening to become serious, according to reports received by George H. Cecil, district forester, with headquarters in Portland. The most serious fire in national forests in the district was at Wind River, in Washington. Considerable numbers of salmon are reported to be entering the hatchery racks at the Klaskanine river and as they are of the early spring run, the variety greatly prized for propagation purposes, stringent regulations will be imposed to protect them. There has been a vast amount of poaching in the stream during the past few weeks. Construction of a 12-story building at a cost of approximately $1,000,000, on the northeast corner of Sixth and Alder streets in Portland will be commenced March 1, 1925, by the Bodell company, operating a chain of women's apparel stores in the United States, according to an announcement by A. M. Bedell of New York city, president of the firm. Oregon pensions have been granted as follows: Robert Weber, Portland, $12; George W. Hamblin, McMinnville, $12; Joseph E. Jones, Maplewood, $12; Martha L. Bates, Canby, $30; Charles A. Whitney, Hubbard, $12; Zeno D. Brishois, Klamath Falls, $12; Harvey A. Smith, Portland, $12; Ethel G. Folger, Salem, $30; Otto Egberg, Portland, $12. Elimination of the so-called contract system in Oregon industries, in isolated places, and compulsory insurance based on occupations classified as hazardous under the provision of the present workmen's compensation act, are provided in an initiative petition filed in the offices of the secretary of state at Salem. The petition was filed by the Oregon Workmen's Compensation league. There were four fatalities due to industrial accidents during the week ending April 24, according to a report prepared by the state industrial accident commission. The victims included Fau Godfrey, Medford, lineman; William H. Owens, Reedsport, bucker; Joseph E. Worth, Portland, grain inspector, and Lester W. Smith, Medford, swamper. A total of 689 accidents were reported during the week. The secretary of state has awarded the contract for furnishing the 1925 motor vehicle license plates to the Irwin-Hodson company of Portland. The low bid was 13.47 cents a pair, or a trifle less than paid by the state for plates last year. The contract calls for delivery of 200,000 pairs of plates. The plates will have a lemon-yellow background, with black letters and figures and will be similar to those now in use in Idaho. The bodies of Dewey Morris, 30, Edward Nichols, 65, and Roy Wilson, 35, three trappers of Beqd who had been missing since about January 18, were recovered from Little Lava lake, where they had been thrown by the murderer or murderers after each of the victims had been shot. A shotgun, a revolver, and a hammer were used in killing the three trappers, according to announcement by Coroner Niswonger on arrival in Bend with the bodies. Sheriff Roberts has been looking for Charles Kimzey, alias Lee Collins.
