With the High School Class By MARGARET BOYD

"Happy is this, she is not yet so old but she may learn."

There has been much speculation as to the age at which people cease to be able to learn.

For the next term the principal and assistant in the schools remain the same. The other teachers are Erma Shotwell, Salem, high school; Louise Robnett, Halsey, seventh and eighth grades; Mrs. J. S. Blakeslee, Cascade Locks, fourth, fifth and sixth, and Mrs. Minnie Cross, first, second and third.

Nobody but a printer can realize the perversity and impish malice of type. Last week the Enterprise attempted to tell of tent meetings two blocks west of the Halsey garage.

Languages have always been held to be a subject that should be studied during youth. The very young child is learning words all the time, and it makes little difference to him whether the word is Latin, English, French, Italian or Russian.

Benjamin Franklin began his study of languages after he had been for a long time the proprietor and editor of a newspaper, had published "Poor Richard's Almanac," had founded the Philadelphia library, and had done enough other work to make the average man think there was no need for him to study anything new.

Teachers are generally of the opinion that a child entering school at the age of eight reaches high school at the same age as a child of equal native ability who enters kindergarten at the age of three or four.

Older people who have difficulty in mastering new subjects are no more numerous than young people who have similar difficulty—the ease with which one learns a new subject has little to do with age; it is rather a matter of native ability and a competent teacher.

"Such is the strength with which population shoots in that part of the world, that, state the numbers as high as we will, whilst the dispute continues, the exaggeration ends."

Less than a century and a half ago, when Burke made this statement in parliament, he feared he would be accused of exaggeration when he stated the population of the colonies as two and a half millions; now the population of the United States is 110,000,000—40,000,000 of which have been added during the last quarter century.

A quarter of a century ago, before the last forty millions were added to our population, excessive wealth and excessive poverty were practically unknown.

Back in those days every village and town contained dozens of vacant lots, and great commons where the village cows grazed and where the circus annually pitched its tents.

The last forty millions have changed all that. Vacant lots are becoming fewer each year; people in towns and villages no longer keep cows, because it is too hard to find pasture for them; wild flowers are becoming so scarce that we no longer encourage children to pick them; nut trees have been cut off to such an extent that a boy is fortunate to gather a quart where a boy of the earlier day could have gathered bushels.

With the increase in population has come a tremendous increase in our dollar and cents wealth, and few people ever stop to think whether this increase is a sound one.

The ultimate result of a rapidly shooting population is a crowded country such as China now is. The next forty millions will not crowd us as badly as China is crowded; but it will crowd us altogether too much for comfort.

Most of the famous sayings of history were said by men who paid no attention to the maxim "Silence is golden."

The extreme pleasure we take in talking of ourselves should make us fear that we give very little to those who listen to us.

Among the famous inventions of the Chinese are the following: The compass, printing, lithography, suspension bridges and gunpowder.

"I don't mind you boys practicing puts in the office with an umbrella," remarked the boss, "but please don't try to illustrate drives. That last swing nearly cost the chandelier!"

Of the several thousands of different species of snakes, only about one-third have poison glands. The bite of not more than 150 would cause death to man.

Best Premiums Ever Offered for Single Subscriptions

We are in the field for more subscriptions. We want to be able to address a larger clientele during the coming political campaign. With this object in view we are making more liberal premium offers than were ever made before or probably ever will be made again.

Every new subscriber who during June pays $1.50 for the Enterprise one year may have his choice of the premiums listed below, except Professor Horner's history. The subscription, to win the prize, must be received during June.

Here They Are

Seven-inch Heavy Wear-Ever Aluminum Frying Pan

Four-quart Gray Enameled Preserving Kettle

Small Gray Enameled Dishpan

Two Matinee Tickets

1 pound Peanut Brittle

1 pound Chocolate Cream Candy

1 lb. Royal Club Coffee

Valid order on the M. V. Koontz store for 50c in goods

1 dozen Eagle Pencil Co.'s Mikado pencils

Prof. Horner's Short History of Oregon

See these Premiums in the Enterprise Office Window

These Offers Expire June 30

Any present subscriber who is not in arrears may take his choice from the premium list for every new subscription he brings in, with $1.50, and the new subscriber will also receive the same prize.

Any paid-in-advance subscriber who brings in two names and $3 may have two of the premiums for himself and each of the newcomers may have one.

Any person entitled to two premiums may have, in their stead a copy of Prof. Horner's Short History of Oregon.

Any subscriber who is in arrears may become eligible to draw prizes for procuring new cash subscriptions by paying his own subscription to or beyond July 1, 1924.

Wear-Ever is the best aluminum goods made. It is produced under enormous pressure, which gives a very hard, compact body. Spun ware is made from soft sheets and soon wears out. Cast ware is lighter than pressed, containing many minute cavities into which the few impurities that can damage aluminum find their way and work for its ultimate destruction.

Every housewife knows the virtues of enameled ware—free from rust, easy to keep clean. The fresh berry and fruit season will soon be here. When you have a surplus over home consumption you will not want to let it stand and spoil. Put it on the range in this little kettle while there is a fire for other purposes, and fill a jar or two for use next winter, when it will be so delicious.

Handy when there are a few dishes to wash or on a hundred other occasions when a good-sized vessel is needed about the house.

Good for the afternoon at any regular-price show at the Globe theatre, Albany.

Made by the Elite Confectionery, Albany, and packed in a nice box.

Who does not enjoy chocolate creams. Here is a whole pound free to every new cash subscriber during the month of June. And if the new name and cash are brought in by an old subscriber whose subscription is not in arrears the latter gets another pound.

One of the most popular brands of high-grade coffee on the market.

Any paid-in-advance subscriber, or anybody who becomes such, who turns in two new subscriptions to the Enterprise, with $3, while each of the new subscribers gets choice of the premiums, may have, for the service, two of the above premiums, or, if he prefers, a copy of Horner's new and up-to-date Early History of Oregon, which sells for $1.

This book summarizes in an authoritative manner the natural phenomena and artificial achievements, prehistoric and modern, which led up to the founding of the commonwealth of Oregon.

Teacher Gets Promotion Miss Nettie Spencer got home Tuesday from Elkton, where she taught in the schools the year just closed. She has been elected principal of the Elkton schools.

Miss Spencer was able to secure a rare treat for the schools and people of Elkton on commencement day, May 28. It happens that she is personally pretty well acquainted with a citizen of Oregon by the name of Pierce and she invited her friend to attend the school exercises and he did so.

It also happens that this friend of hers is governor of the state at present, and this latter fact caused the people to flock to the schoolhouse to listen to the speech of the guest and then to grasp his hand. May 28 became a red letter day in the Elkton school calendar.

Governor Pierce spoke on the foundation stones of America's greatness, which he says are her schools and her churches.

Mr. Pierce says that the recall, whose parentage was a cause of inquiry when that alleged movement showed signs of life, was begotten of the bootleg influence and hasn't uttered a squeak since the sermon in the churches on the Sunday of law enforcement week.

The friends of booze are just now fighting in court to upset the law passed by the legislature at its last session to enable the governor to appoint a special prosecutor where the elected official fails to try to convict lawbreakers.

G. R. Walker and family started yesterday for a couple of months on wheels. Their itinerary includes Portland, The Dalles, Clarkston, Wash., Troy, Idaho, Spokane, the home of a daughter at Brewster, Wash., the Yakima valley and home.

The McNary-Haugen bill is dead, and the Enterprise believes the farmers are none the worse for its demise.

Have You Appendicitis and Don't Know It?

Much so-called stomach trouble is really chronic appendicitis. This can often be relieved by simple glycerine, Buckhorn bark, etc., as combined in Adlerika. Most medicines act only on lower bowel, but Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels, and removes all gases and poisons. Brings out matter you never thought was in your system. Excellent for obstinate constipation.
