unshaken confidence. I knew that he could see his way and what a sense of comfort came of that knowledge! More than we can tell we are indebted to the calm and masterful face of Washington. It holds up the heart of the army in all discouragements. His faith is established. He is not afraid of evil tidings. This great, god-like personality of his has put me on my feet again. I was in need of it, for a different kind of man, of the name of Arnold, had nearly floored me."
 "Sit down here and tell me all though. I wouldn't ask no woman to marry me till the war is fit out. I'm liable to get all shot up any day. I did think I'd ask her but I didn't. Got kind o' skeered an' skittish when we sot down together, an' come to think it all over, 'twouldn't 'a' been right."

 "You're wrong, Solomon," I answered. "You ought to have a home of your own and a wife to make you fond of it. How is the Little Cricket?"
 "'Cummin'est little shaver that ever lived,' said he. 'I got him a teeny waggin an' drew him down to the big redder an' back. He had a string hitched on to my waist an' he pulled an' hauled on' hollered whoan an' git up till he were about as hoarse as a bull frog. When we got back he want-the army. He had loaned them dollars worth a hundred cents. They are paying their debts to him in dollars worth less than five cents. Many, and Washington among them, have suffered in a like manner. My father has little left but his land, two horses, a yoke of oxen and a pair of slaves. So I am too poor to give you a home in any degree worthy of you."

 "Dear old Solomon has proposed to make me his heir, but now that he has met the likely women I must not depend upon him. So I have tried to make you know the truth about me as well as I do. If your heart is equal to the discouragement I have heaped upon it I offer you this poor comfort. When the war is over I can borrow Neat's-Foot Oil.

 Neat's-foot oil is obtained from the feet of such animals as oxen and sheep. It is commercially valuable as an industrial oil, because it remains liquid at a freezing temperature, and it can therefore be used in lubricating exposed machinery. Neat's-foot oil is pale yellow and is practically odorless.
The Grape Cure.
 The "grape cure" is practiced in Switzerland by persons who are troubled with gout or liver diseases. The time they spend among the grapes of Mt. Pieter, above Vevey, or Bexles-Bains, seems to benefit and calm patients. The juicy white grape of Switzerland is most beneficial because of its easily digested skin.

Brownsville Briefs
 (By Special Correspondent)
 Little Mina Burson fell and broke her arm one day last week.
 Vitz Ramsdell of Portland was in the vicinity on business last week.
 Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Harrison took in the Strawberry Fair Saturday.
 Belle and Mable Burson spent the days of the Strawberry Fair at Lebanon.
 The Baptist Sunday school has decided to hold its annual picnic the last week in June.
 Marvel Lawrence, who has been working in Albany, is home for the summer owing to her mother's poor health.
 Victor Carlson spent the week end at his home west of town. Also Mrs. Ruby Salvog (nee Carlson) spent the week at home.
 Didn't we tell you that wednesday? Fay Overton and Karl Warren were married Saturday and Vina O'Mara and Marvin Allen were married Sunday morning.
 Work is continuing on the new market road west of Ash Swale school house and from all appearances the farmers north of town are going to have a decent road connecting them with the highway.
 A number of the farmers around town dared the weather man last week by cutting their clover hay. However, nothing happened in the line of rain, so this week they are hauling the hay to their barns.
 The correspondent for the Enterprise spoke last week about Nelson Crume trading his property here in town for a rooming house in Corvallis. The deal fell through as Mr. Crume decided that rooming house work would be too strenuous.

about Franklin," he said with a smile. "I told him what was going on in Paris and especially of the work of our great minister to the court of Louis XVI."
 "He heard me with deep interest and when I had finished arose and gave me his hand saying:
 "Colonel, again you have won my gratitude. We must keep our courage."
 "I told him of my unhappy meeting with Arnold.
 "The man has his faults—he is very human, but he has been a good soldier," Washington answered.
 "Solomon came into camp that evening. He was so glad to see me that he could only wring my hand and utter exclamations.
 "How is the gal?" he asked presently.
 "I told him of our meeting in Passy and of my fear that we should not meet again.
 "Solomon is a man of faith. He never falters.
 "He said to me: 'Don't worry. That gal has got a backbone. She ain't no rye straw. She's a-goin' to think it over.'
 "Neither spoke for a time. We sat by an open fire in front of his tent as the night fell. Solomon was filling his pipe. He swallowed and his right eye began to sting. I knew that some highly important theme would presently open the door of his intellect and come out.
 "Jack, I been over to Albany," he said. "Had a long visit with Mirandy. They ain't no likelier women in Ameriky. I'll bet a pint o' powder an' a fish hook on that. Ye kin look fer 'em till yer eyes run but ye'll be obliged to give up!"
 "He lighted his pipe and smoked a few whiffs and added: "Knit twenty pair o' socks for my regiment this fall."
 "Have you asked her to marry you?" I inquired.
 "No. 'Taint likely she'd have me," he answered. "She's had troubles ed to go all over me with a curry comb an' braid my mane."

 "The old scout roared with laughter as he thought of the child's play in which he had had a part. He told me of my own people and next to their good health it pleased me to learn that my father had given all his horses—save two—to Washington. That is what all our good men are doing. So you will see how it is that we are able to go on with this war against the great British empire.
 "That night the idea came to me that I would seek an opportunity to return to France in the hope of finding you in Paris. I applied for a short furlough to give me a chance to go home and see the family. There I found a singular and disheartening situation. My father's modest fortune is now a part of the ruin of war. Soon after the beginning of hostilities he had loaned his money to men who had gone into the business of furnishing supplies to a thousand pounds to keep a roof over our heads and a fowl in the pot and pudding in the twiflers while I am clearing the way to success. The prospect is not inviting, I fear, but if, happily, it should appeal to you, I suggest that you join your father in New York at the first opportunity so that we may begin our life together as soon as the war ends. And now, whatever comes, I would wish you to keep these thoughts of me: I have loved you, but there are things which I have valued above my own happiness. If I cannot have you I shall have always the memory of the hours we have spent together and of the great hope that was mine."

Senatorial knifers of the world court are being smoked out. They no sooner adopt a new camouflage for their enemy, like the Lodge plan or the Pepper plan, than it is torn off. They face an urgent, aggressive public opinion, which demands favorable action on the Harding-Coolidge plan without further procrastination.
 President Coolidge's memorial day speech was a straight shot which destroyed their defense. We must enter the world court and assume all incidental obligations without shilly-shallying, or we must frankly say that we will stay out.—Portland Oregonian.

State Grange Meeting
 The State grange gathered at The Dalles Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of last week, in its fifty-first annual meeting. There are 201 granges in the state, with over 10,000 members. Eleven of the granges are in Linn county, National Master Tabor was present.
 Chancy Sick and wife were representatives from a Charity grange. Mrs. Lillian Kizer, lecturer of Charity grange, went with them.
 Something like 1000 members of the order attended the meeting.
 The chamber of commerce gave the visitors a baked-salmon supper with all the fixings, and the guests estimate that this must have cost $600 or $700.
 Something over 150 members took the Pomona degree.
 Resolutions were adopted favoring the oleomargarine and income tax laws, among other things.
 Governor Pierce was one of the most active members present.

Halsey visitors to Albany yesterday were Mrs. Low Merriam, Mr. and Mrs. Claron Gormley and Miss Hazel Davis.
