

Mrs. May Miller and son Wilford went to Newberg Friday to visit G. T. Kitchen and family.

Albany Directory

This is good advice: "If you live in Albany, trade in Albany; if you live in some other town, trade in that town." But in these automobile days many residing elsewhere find it advisable to do at least part of their buying in the larger town. Those who go to Albany to transact business will find the firms named below ready to fill their requirements with courtesy and fairness.

MORE SERVICE FOR LESS MONEY

"I'm sober enough to locate two-ounce diggings within fifty rods of here blindfolded," proudly assured the prospector.

Dinsdale growled in disgust. "See here. Try to remember this when you wake up tomorrow morning. I'm off for Deadwood City. Word from San Juan Joe. I make you a present of the grub-stake. Lay off that whiskey."

"Lord! I hate to have you go! Stay till tomorrow and we boys will have some fun tonight. That new cuss knows the same old songs that I do—"

There was an old woman, had three sons—
"Drop it! Listen to me carefully. Sober up. Keep your mouth shut. The man who calls himself 'Easy' isn't as easy as he pretends. I'm positive he's the man I cracked over the head with my gun barrel up on the divide."

CHAPTER VIII

The Trap at Mato Tipl.

Dinsdale was very curious for the latest news from Deadwood City, but Scissors galloped ahead until they were clear of the town and defeated all attempts at conversation. When the picture-man slackened his pace it was to ask:

"You are still carrying considerable money with you?"

"About thirty-five hundred more than I had when I left Deadwood. Took that much from the fellow with the busted head. I'm remembering that I owe you a prize for tipping the deck."

"I wasn't thinking of that. I knew you'd treat me all right. Any one could have tipped the deck, but a wakan witsasha is better than a common man," gravely said Scissors. "I've learned things from being around gambling places. Only a road agent, or a gambler would bet so much money on one card like that man did."

"I bet like he did," reminded Dinsdale, his eyes glinting.

"You're no road agent," promptly declared Scissors. "You haven't any partners up here. You may be a train robber. It's no business of mine if you're one or the other. But that man back there worried me. He's no gambler or I'd have seen him in Deadwood. A man willing to bet as he did wouldn't hang around Rapid City, drinking Cavin's whisky and singing his foolish songs. Not being a gambler, nor a miner, he must be an agent. As robbing folks is his business he won't knuckle down to losing so much money, nor letting you get away with what was your own. If I was a card-man I'd bet we'll be held up inside the next ten miles."

Dinsdale was frankly concerned, although he tapped his guns and grimly declared:

"Let them come. You just lay low and when they begin in sight leave it to me to receive them."

"My old owl would know better than to make such talk. He'd know the agents would never give you a chance to pull a gun. The man with the sore head will tell his mates—and he has men within call—that it'll be dangerous to give you a show. We're fools to be following this road to be overrun. Your horse is tired. It isn't much good. They've got the best horseflesh in the hills. This minute they're probably pounding after us, taking it easy so's not to overhaul us till we're quite a few miles from Rapid City."

Dinsdale glanced over the winding back trail, then pleased his companion by saying:

"I'm not a fool even if I do wear two belt-guns. We'll swing one side if you think best. I have quite a lot of money on me in greenbacks and a decent pot of gold. What's more, San Juan Joe is in a hurry to see me on a business deal. I can run just as smart as I can fight."

"Good! Now you make a medicine talk!" cried Scissors; and within the next quarter of a mile they turned down a narrow gorge that ran east.

They followed this for less than two miles and then swung back until they were moving parallel to the stage road and separated from it by a long ridge. Pointing to the ridge Scissors announced:

"From the top of that one can look down on the stage road. If we had time to spare we could get up there and see if the soreheaded man and his friends are after us."

"We'll take time. I'd like to be sure if that's Mr. Easy's game," declared Dinsdale.

Scissors turned in toward the ridge and galloped to a clump of spruce and secured his horse. Dinsdale did likewise. As they neared the crest Scissors directed:

"Take off your hat and play Indian. Just below us the road narrows. Stage drivers call it the 'bottle.' Maybe Sorehead hasn't had time to fetch his friends along. Maybe they're taking it comfortable and planning to jump us after we've camped. We'll see."

They cautiously lifted their heads and pulled aside the grass. They watched for a minute and then beheld some objects rapidly advancing into the middle distance. They were horsemen and riding furiously. Dinsdale counted six. From their elevated position it was impossible to distinguish one from another except the man who rode next to the leader. He wore something white about his head.

"My debt to you increases, Scissors," muttered Dinsdale. "The second man was Easy, and he's after my money. The way they're traveling shows they're keen to have it over with as soon as possible."

"I'm very wakan. My pictures are wakan. But the pictures I see inside my head are taku wakan—most mysterious and wonderful. I dream of hawks, which is very lucky," proudly retorted Scissors. "Now we must get back to the horses and ride fast. For there's another gorge ahead and it's possible Sorehead will begin to suspect we're off the road and ride down the gorge to head us off. I shall feel better when we are beyond it."

The gorge was reached and passed with no signs of the hard-riding horsemen. Scissors' simple face was very grave and he was studying the surroundings sharply.

Cattle Ranching Is Becoming Intensive

Methods Changed Considerably in Past Few Years.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cattle ranching methods in the United States have changed much within the last few years, with the passing of land into private ownership and the fencing of range. It will become very intensive, says the United States Department of Agriculture, as capital accumulates, prices of beef rise, and the importance of producing enough forage and providing sufficient range to keep the cattle through the winter becomes more pressing.

Ranches, says the department, must be big enough to carry from 100 to 800 head of cattle. This means that in many cases a ranchman must have permits to run a good share of his live stock on forest ranges. It is predicted that large ranches will be divided, and that, on the other hand, small ranches will be consolidated into units of sufficient size for economical operation.

Ranchmen are now mainly concerned with improvement of the carrying capacity of forest ranges. It is to their interest, says the department, that the ranges, instead of being exploited, should be made more productive.

Prune-picking weather.

Which is the largest advertisement in this paper?
Nora Pehrsson has returned to Willamette university.
Prof. English's family is home. All set for the school year.
Miss Myrtle Tobey leaves today for West Linn to teach school.
Frank Tobey and wife and daughter from Portland were visiting at J. W. Gormley's last week.
The Pine Grove Community Club will have a booth at the Linn county fair to exhibit products.
Frank Gausle, Rodney Savage, George Danner and several others started on a hunting trip Sunday.
William Caaffee & Co. yesterday shipped to California 221 lambs which they had bought in this vicinity.
Miss LaVelle Palmer went to Corvallis for a short visit Wednesday. She begins teaching school Monday.
Miss Galena Sandwick of Whiteson was in town between trains Tuesday, and called at the B. M. Bond home.
Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Standish are at the bedside of their son Everett, who is very low at the Salem hospital.
Time and tide and railroad trains wait for no man. A new timetable went into effect Sunday on the S. P. See page 4 for Halsey train time.
Don C. Wilson of that sprightly young publication the Corvallis Independent paid this office a call yesterday. He seems as full of vim as the paper.
Frum & McMahan shipped a carload of hogs to Portland Tuesday.
Melba Neal came home from Brownsville Saturday.
Clifford Carey will preach at Oakland, Oregon, next Sunday.
Mrs. May Smith and son Fleming spent Sunday at Lee Hayes'.
Harry Commons came home Saturday from a fortnight's hunting trip.
Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Armstrong called at the Wilbanks home Sunday.

Horace Armstrong and family visited at the L. V. Chance home Sunday afternoon.
Mrs. M. C. Bond and daughter, Miss Mona, left yesterday for southern Arizona, where Mona will teach school the coming term.
Mr. Hoffman has installed a Hobart electric sausage grinder at the meat market. Moreover, he uses enough ice to keep his stock fresh if Halsey's do not buy it all the first day.
F. W. Sexauer, Albany painter, had both legs broken in an auto accident in St. Louis. One leg was broken in four places and the other in two. It is reported that he cannot leave the hospital before Christmas.
The city council met Monday night, took C. H. Koontz into fellowship in place of G. W. Mornhinweg, who has removed to Newport, and appointed a committee to consider the erection of signs at both city boundaries telling travelers that this is Halsey.
Mrs. Irma G. Blackburn of Scio, who comes with high recommendations from County Superintendent Geer, has been secured to teach the fourth, fifth and sixth grades of our schools, left vacant by the resignation of the engaged teacher under ill health.
Everett Standish, who has been in the hospital the past four years, with tuberculosis, was reported so much worse last week that Mr. and Mrs. Standish went to the state hospital at Salem to be with him. Later reports represent him as still sinking.
Harold Smith, who is well-known about Halsey, was married Wednesday to Miss Esther Medley of Oakland at the bride's home. Miss Medley is a cousin of Mrs. Horace Armstrong. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gardner of this city attended the wedding, accompanied by Adrian Smith, a brother of the groom.
Mrs. Eliza Brandon's granddaughter, Mrs. Mabel Miller, who was lost to her for several years after the San Francisco earthquake and fire, received a visit from her this week. The two ladies went Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Finley of Burbank, Cal., for a visit with Mrs. Brandon's son and daughter in Portland.
