"Sleep that knits up the ravel'd sleeve of care,
The death of each day's life, sore labor's bath,
Balm of hurt minds, great nature's second course,
Chief nourisher in life's feast."
—Macbeth.
Man can live longer without food than without sleep. There are many recorded instances where men have gone for forty or more days without food and have recovered from the experience. I do not know the maximum number of days that a man can go without sleep, but it is far short of forty. The expert workmen who line the great digesters in paper mills must often work for sixty hours without more sleep than they can snatch during the time that new material is being brought in to them, never more than ten minutes at a time. Surgeons and doctors sometimes work continuously for fifty or sixty hours at a time after great battles. These men are always exhausted after such periods of work and sleep excessively long periods in order to get back to normal. It is probable that a man who was not working could go without sleep for a longer period; but it seems to be the general testimony of those who have been kept awake for as much as sixty hours, by third degree methods, that by that time they are willing to confess to any crime or do anything else to get sleep.

High School Notes
(School Reporter.)

With much rejoicing and some sorrow, as it might be, as well as a marked display of summer sunburn, the high school students started on another term Monday morning. The attendance of the first day consisted of 45 pupils.

Mr. English and Mrs. Freeland have been retained in their same positions. Mrs. Shotwell, formerly of Scio, is the third instructor.

The high school this year offered the students a choice from sixteen subjects, of which 13 were selected.

The juniors, fourteen in number and the largest class, met and elected Frank Koontz president, Roberta Vannice vice-president and Philip Tussing secretary and treasurer.

The 1924 senior class boasts seven members with hopes of adding more later. Ida Jackson is the only new member.

The frosh, who have gathered from several vicinities as well as Halsey, are started on their way, aided occasionally by reminders from the upper classmen.

News Notes

The next annual Oregon conference of the Methodist Episcopal church will be held in Eugene. It was decided at the 78d conference in Medford.

Work on the forest road between Five Rivers and Deadwood has ended for this season, according to Ralph S. Shelley, supervisor of the Stuslaw forest.

Oregon celery grown by the Troutdale Celery Growers' association won first, second and third prizes in the national exhibit at Louisville, Ky., according to a telegram received by H. E. Lounsbury, general freight agent of the O-W. R. & N. lines.

Fordis & Larsen, owners of a sawmill near Nett, 20 miles west of Eugene, have recently built and furnished a new schoolhouse near their mill and the district will provide a teacher, according to E. J. Moore, Linn county school superintendent.

The state tax commission has sent out approximately 6000 notices relating to the payment of the second and third installments of the state income tax. The two installments have been combined in the notices, with date of payment fixed at not later than October 6.

A plea that the region within ten square miles of the Josephine county caves be set aside as a federal game reserve will be forwarded to President Coolidge at once, according to decision reached by the board of directors of the Isaac Walton league, meeting in Portland.

The River Lumber & Logging company of Seattle has started the preliminary work on the erection of a sawmill at Kasakla, north of Bend, on the Deschutes river. The mill will be equipped with a band saw and a resaw to cut between 125,000 and 150,000 feet of lumber a day.

Plans originated by farmers of Deschutes county for the erection of a public market in Bend have virtually materialized. Representatives of county granges, labor unions and the city council of Bend are working together on the project, which has been under consideration for several years.

The work of relocating the Columbia highway about one mile east of Astoria to avoid danger from sliding ground is expected to be completed in about six weeks. Two steam shovels are working on the heavy cut and a third will be put to work soon on a new entrance way into Astoria along the Date street route.

Heavy showers in both the Cascade and Coast mountains are believed to have extinguished all forest fires in that section, say national forest officials. A large number of small fires had been burning on the Cascade national forest for several weeks and the continued dry weather made it very difficult to prevent their spread.

A lightning belt in which forest fires are constantly springing up from electric storms extends along the ridge of the Cascades between Mount Hood and Mount Jefferson, says H. D. Foster, assistant forester of Mount Hood national forest. Mr. Foster has just returned from a six-weeks stay at Clackamas lake ranger station, midway between the peaks.

Workmen of the Flora Logging company are busy repairing damage done to the company's holdings west of Carlton by fire. Equipment damaged included 12 donkey engines, of which all can be repaired except one, on which a tree fell. About a mile of roadway, including three trestles, was burned over. The fire burned over about two square miles of logged-off land, doing no damage to standing timber.

Buried on the banks of the Deschutes river, a cache of large spearheads made of obsidian was discovered when a large boulder was moved from its resting place within the city limits of Bend. The spearheads apparently had been placed by their maker in a small fissure in the rim of basalt which faces the Deschutes river from the east. The articles, approximately 200 in number, were found when a blast was discharged in the basalt rim in preparing ground for pavement.

Nearly 50,000 pounds of blasting gelatine have been used in the effort to clean out the subaqueous rock in the channel at Yaquina bay and remove the pinnacles that are an obstruction to navigation. It was announced at the office of Captain George Mayo, United States army engineers, in charge of the first Oregon district. The work of clearing the channel of these dangerous pinnacles will be halted when weather conditions at the entrance become bad, which will be about October 1. The projected depth is 20 feet and in places the government engineers have nearly reached that point.

Fifty-eight per cent of the state income tax comes from people who had heretofore shirked all taxes, though making big incomes off Oregon.
