But in these automobile days many residing elsewhere find it advisable to do at least part of their buying in the larger town. Deeply Puzzled, Dinsdale Brought Water in His Felt Hat and Poured It into the Jug.

take care of a warrior's lodge," he warned.
The girl gingerly took hold of the handle and lifted the jug. So great was her amazement and fear on beholding the jug remain intact that she came near to dropping it. Then holding it away from her and walking on tiptoe she began the ascent of the slope with the white men striding along before her. Scissors explained to his mystified friend:

"Years ago, and long before I became wakened and had learned to forget useless things, I went to school in St. Louis to an old Frenchman. He was a very wise old man, and from him I learned among other things how hydraulic pressure will knock the bottom out of a small-mouth vessel if the vessel is filled to the brim and the stopper is inserted violently. I also learned that where the cleavage is clean the vessel can be fitted together and made to hold water if filled to the brim and the stopper inserted gradually and gently. The atmospheric pressure on the jug is uniform. But let the stopper be disturbed ever so little, let there come a space the width of a hair for the air to get in, and out comes the bottom of the jug. Now we will see what we shall see."
With the girl counting every step of the way in her anxiety to have her part in the mystery concluded, Scissors proceeded to Shunca-luta's lodge and called on him by name, speaking in a loud voice. The medicine man came out and glared at the picture man and waited for him to speak. The girl halted behind the medicine man and carefully placed the jug on a smooth level spot, and fled as if demons were after her. Heads popped from the surrounding lodges when Scissors began calling on the medicine man to face him. Now men and women were watching the two.

"Shunca-luta, you have meddled with my medicine," accused Scissors. "They say Tunkan is angry at you." "They say a lie," hissed Sorrel Horse. "Red men do not touch the white men's medicine."

"Two Knives Talking is not a white man. He is red," solemnly declared Scissors.
A bell tinkled and Crazy Horse walked around a lodge, coup wand in hand, and surveyed the two gloomily. Scissors, pointing to the jug, said: "That is made of stone. Tunkan can speak through it. It is painted with the sign of a Wolf-dreamer. It belongs to Shunca-luta. Tunkan can speak through it to him."

Sorrel Horse answered: "The stone god tells me through the stone jug that Two Knives Talking makes bad medicine against the red men."

"Then let the jug give a sign that you have spoken true words," challenged Scissors.
Sorrel Horse was now thoroughly puzzled. But the eager gaze of his chief and warriors told him he must do something. "Tunkan has already said through the jug that the white men are liars and will go under the skinning knives."

The listeners accepted this as conclusive and their fierce eyes exulted in anticipation of the sport.

"Two Knives Talking has asked Tunkan for a sign to prove his tongue is straight. The jug is stone and very strong, and yet before Shunca-luta can drink from it Tunkan will break it," Scissors asserted.

The onlookers, incredulous, grunted and jeered. Scissors folded his arms and with level gaze dared Shunca-luta to make the test. The girl had brought it, filled with water, even while he was talking with the white man. He took it by the handle and lifted it. It was a very strong jug. It was impossible for anything to break it before he could take a drink. And to prove that fact he yanked out the stopper and started to lift it to his lips.

The bottom dropped out and the water splashed down the medicine man's legs. To the white men it was a ludicrous tableau. The medicine man stood rigid, the stopper clutched in one hand, the upper part of the jug held in the other, his eyes bulging. But there was nothing humorous in the spectacle to the Indians. Ever Crazy Horse stepped back and stared uneasily at the prisoners. With a low gasp of fright Shunca-luta dropped the fragment of the jug and darted back into his lodge.

Here was a genuine demonstrator of a superior medicine. It shook and racked his very soul. That Tunkan should turn against him and favor a white man was unthinkable; and yet it was a fact. There had been no chance for cheating. Two Knives Talking had not touched the jug. The appearance of the jug on the scene was merely an accident.

The jug was whole when the medicine man plucked it up. It was filled with water. It did not break until he attempted to drink. The catas trope was too great to permit of jealousy; it was so terrific that he did not have thought even for his loss.

G. O. P. Propaganda

(Official party utterances)
LaFollette Has Not Helped Working Man in State He Controls.

Portland, Or.—(Special).—Labor that is following LaFollette had better look to performance of the LaFollette program elsewhere rather than rely upon the promises of what the plan offers labor, according to a statement issued by Chairman I. L. Patterson of the Republican State Central committee here. He said a study of the way the LaFollette program has worked out in Wisconsin will prove a bitter disappointment to labor.
"One would suppose, he said, that in Wisconsin, where LaFollette and his policies have been enthroned without interruption for a quarter of a century, the status of the laboring man would be ideal. If not entirely perfect, it would be assumed conditions there would certainly be far better than in any other state of the union.

As a matter of fact, the contrary is the truth. An examination of official wage statistics shows that wages in Wisconsin fall far below the average wage level of the country as a whole.

The manufacturing section United States census of 1919 shows that the average monthly wage in the manufacturing industries of the country was $96.50. The same report shows the average wage in Wisconsin was only $91.69. When ranked with other states, Wisconsin stands 29th in its average wages.

Later studies of wage scales show that the situation still obtains. The average weekly wage paid in Wisconsin in all industries in June, 1924, as stated in the report of the Wisconsin industrial commission, was $23.93. Strange to say, while wages elsewhere have risen, they have declined in Wisconsin in the past four years, the average wage in July, 1920, being $27.73, in comparison with the above figure for this year. Yet the LaFollette group has been in undisputed control in Wisconsin during these four years.

Hours of labor in Wisconsin are long. In the country as a whole, 48.6 per cent of wage-earners in the manufacturing industries work 48 hours or less a week, according to the U. S. census of 1919. In Wisconsin, however, only 81.3 per cent of the workers in the manufacturing industries enjoy a 48-hour week, or an eight-hour day. Among the states, Wisconsin takes the humble rank of 39th in the percentage of its industrial workers who enjoy a 48-hour week or one of less hours.

Obviously, then, the political economy of the LaFollette regime in Wisconsin has not made the lot of the wage-earner any happier than in the rest of the nation. Indeed, it is less advantageous than that of the worker in most of the states, viewed from the double standard of hours and wages.

If LaFollette, with a free hand for his policies for 25 years in his own state, has been unable to help the working man there even so much as to place him as well off as the average working man throughout the country, how idle it is for the working man in Oregon to expect any benefit for himself by voting for LaFollette.

Chairman Patterson Recalls Costly Venture During World War.

Portland, Or.—(Special).—That the people of the United States have been twice hurt by experiments in government ownership of transportation means, once with the shipping board and again during government control of railroads and that these expensive adventures should not be repeated was the gist of a statement issued here by I. L. Patterson, chairman of the Republican State Central committee. Mr. Patterson said:

"LaFollette proponents for government ownership of railroads forgot, no doubt, the shipping board's prolonged and costly attempt to operate the nation's vessels at a profit. The experiment cost the country many millions.

"They must have forgotten, too, government operation of railroads during the war period. This was an experiment in socialism and was a colossal and extravagant failure.

"Government operation lasted 26 months. It gave the public the poorest freight and passenger service it had ever known and the most expensive. Although cost was increased, nothing was given the public in return, either in upbuilding the railroads, or in service.

"Railroads of the country had been adding to their equipment at an average rate of 100,000 freight cars and 500 locomotives a year. The government operated the lines a little more than two years and turned them back to their owners with 204 fewer locomotives and only 1300 more freight cars than when it took control, while more engines and cars were out of order than at any time in railroad history.

"It might be said that the railroads went through an emergency period, the war period, and that is true. Figures show the lines carried 1.8 per cent more freight than under private operation, but to carry this heavier load, the number of employees was increased 11 per cent and the operating expenses by over 40 per cent.

"Within six months after the government seized the roads, all passenger rates were increased to a basis of 2 cents per mile and mileage passenger books were discontinued. All freight rates were increased 25 per cent.

Wid Allen went to Eugene Saturday.

G. W. Laflar of Salem was in town Saturday.

W. J. Carey made a flying visit to Halsey Saturday from his home in Eugene.

Benjamin Garrison Thompson of Oakville has become assistant entomologist at O. A. C.

The Peoria school is raising money to complete payment for a piano, recently purchased.

A. A. Barber is home from California. He says that state is suffering from drought and a surplus of alien labor.

To speed things up, Mr. Burbank has had Ed Jewett excavating for that new auto service station.

Mrs. Frances E. Gray of Cottage Grove was in town over the week end. She helped her son in publishing the first newspaper in Halsey.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Sudtehl have engaged a new six-piece orchestra for the winter season, beginning Saturday. It will consist of two saxophones, a trombone, a trumpet, a piano and drums. Tumble Inn has been equipped with a new heating system.

C. E. Hansen of Long Beach, Cal., was here Friday and Saturday looking over property with a view to change from the too-sunny land, but he thought the price of farm land he looked at was too high. This valley has land that can be higher in price than land almost anywhere else without being too high.

The dairy farmers of Lewis county, Wash., are putting on a campaign for pure-bred dairy sires. The buying period will be from Nov. 10 to Nov. 29. Naturally, Linn county, the home of pure-bred stock, is looked to for some of these animals. Farmers having pure-bred dairy bulls for sale should apply to A. C. Heyman, 418 First National bank, Albany, for blanks on which to list their offerings, with data.
