SCARED VOTER

Coolidge would probably have been elected if there had been no LaFollette, for the republicans are largely in the majority in the country and they win unless they handicap themselves in some way. But without the LaFollette campaign could not have got as large a vote as he did. Many democrats were scared into the republican fold by that campaign.

In this state the stuffed scarecrow of capital frightened out of Oregon by the income tax scared enough country voters into voting against the tax to enable Portland tax dodgers to "put one over on the cow counties" and defeat the tax.

The farmers of today are more intelligent and better educated than were those of a generation ago, but there is still room for advancement when such a city slush fund as was used against the income tax can put such a scare into many of them as was evidenced Nov. 4.

There are Portland business men who have the good of the general public at heart. And there are many who love the farmers as a hog loves corn—as a means of waxing fat. They get a good slice out of the farmer's $1 and the consumer's $3 for a given product. Out of that slice they subscribed to fight the income tax—the only tax some of them paid.

Anarchists threaten a world-wide uprising if two Italians, who have been convicted of murder in Massachusetts, are hanged. Americans need not fear it. The reds stood up to be counted Nov. 4 and they were in the minority.

The Portland livestock show is the biggest in the world and was bigger this year than ever before, though the heaviest wind and rain storm in years continued throughout its eight days.

The republicans state central committee and the anti-income tax people spent good sums advertising their causes in Oregon newspapers. See the results.
